to be heard with the Boston Symphony Esplanade Concert.

"Triple Concerto") with Victor, Michael and Myron as soloists, the Symphony will perform "Consecration of the House," Romances in F and G, Alexander Romanul, soloist, and Symphony No. 5 in C, Opus 67.

Thayer Academy To Present 'You Can't Take It With You'

Four Quincy residents are taking part in the Thayer Academy students production of "You Can't Take It With You" Friday, Feb. 29, and Saturday, March 1, at 8 p.m. at the school's Frothingham Hall.

The local residents are Virginia Mann and Elizabeth Skoler, cast members; and student assistants Jon Katz, technical director; and Marina Kelly, sound.

The George Kaufman and Moss

Hart comedy is based on the philosophy that "life is pretty simple if you just relax."

The hero, Martin Vanderhof, played by math teacher Stan Shimkus, feels people should enjoy life as it comes, to comical consequences.

This is the second year that Thayer students and faculty have combined their talents in a winter production.

Tickets Now Available For Heart Fund Theater Party

Richard J. Koch, Special Events Chairman of the Quincy Heart Fund, announces that the 11th annual theatre party "The John J. Daniels Memorial Night" will be held Monday, March 24 at 7:30 p.m. at the Strand Theatre, Chestnut St., Quincy Center.

A total of $14,650.00 has been raised by the single event in the past 10 years with all proceeds going to the research and education of heart disease.

A special motion picture has been selected to conform with the Lenten Season, "Brother Sun, Sister Moon" starring Alec Guinness, Graham Faulkner and Judi Bowker.

The two-hour film focuses on the early years of Francis of Assisi, the founder of the Roman Catholic Order of Franciscans. He sought communion with the natural world by renouncing the riches of his family in order to seek his own destiny unencumbered by material possessions.

Francis was, in a sense, history's first "dropout"; he left a life of comfort to seek a spiritual union with the world a philosophy which was then, as it is today, very hard to understand and accept. It is an uncommonly rewarding and meaningful film experience. The Academy Award nominated film was co-scripted by Lina Wertmüller (Sweet Away . . . ) and Franco Zeffirelli (Romeo and Juliet).

A number of door prizes will be awarded immediately preceding the presentation of the film for those in attendance.

Mayor Arthur Tobin is honorary chairman of the event and Mrs. Rita Daniels will be guest of honor.

Tickets are $1 each and may be obtained from any of the following committee members: Chairman Richard J. Koch, Raymond C. Cattaneo, Daniel Raymond, David J. Donaghue, Richard J. Koch, Jr., Rita Daniels, John Daniels, Jr., Charles Alongi, Carmen Leone, Raymond Dunn, Frank McLaughlin, Joseph Lydon, Shaun Mulvaney, Gemma Fertile, George Page, Mrs. Patricia Gauthier, Harold Coose, William Souden, Mrs. Barbara Lynch, Harold Davis, Joseph O'Connor, and Gerard A. Coletta, Jr.

Those unable to attend the theatre night but wishing to donate to the success of the event may make checks payable to the Quincy Heart Fund, c/o Treasurer John J. McGue, Hancock Bank, North Quincy Branch, 415 Hancock Street.

Volunteers wishing to assist on the committee may contact Mr. Koch at his home, 241 Newbury Avenue, North Quincy.

Harold Seeks Truth In Home Insulation Advertising

State Sen. Paul D. Harold is co-sponsoring legislation to require minimum standards and truth in advertising for home insulation manufacturers and dealers.

The bill, co-sponsored with Rep. Thomas Lussier of Pittsfield, would require that the newly-established State Energy Department set rules on the quality, safety, manufacturing, and insulating value of insulation sold in Massachusetts.

Insulation which is dangerous may not be sold, and manufacturers will be required to provide written instructions on proper installation, under the legislation.

Further, no advertisement for insulation may contain any misleading or false claim, and may make no claim about the insulating value of the insulation unless it states it in terms of the standard "R" value so that consumers may compare it with other insulation offered for sale.

"We have been stressing the need for conservation and for insulating homes, but we need to set minimum standards to prevent any slick operators from selling or installing insulation of little value, or of less insulating value than they claim," Harold said.

"People are spending good money on insulation, and they ought to get their money's worth."

Keohane Funeral Home In Golden Rule Order For 16th Year

Keohane Funeral Home, Inc., 785 Hancock St., Quincy, has been accepted for membership in the International Order of the Golden Rule for the 16th consecutive year.

The Order is one of the world's largest limited membership organizations for funeral directors. Before being admitted, a firm must be recommended by families it has served and by other professionals in the area. To remain affiliated, a firm must requalify annually.

"Over the years," said Executive Director Dale Rollings, "the Order has become a more and more professional group. There are now nearly 1300 members throughout the world, and the knowledge and experience they share make them uniquely able to serve their respective communities."

Rollings noted that regional meetings and an international conference are held each year to offer members sources of new information relative to the profession.

"Our entire concept of what is 'relative to the profession' has changed in recent years," Rollings said. "With the growth of thanatology, grief therapy, and other fields of study in the universities, we are able to obtain speakers with new and valuable things to say. The emphasis is now placed upon making funeral service truly helpful and meaningful to the survivors, to those who are left behind and must go on."

Acupuncture Associates Open In Quincy Center

The city's first acupuncture treatment center recently opened to the public:

Acupuncture Associates of the South Shore (471-5577), at 44 Greenleaf St., is staffed by acupuncturists Jerry Kantor and David Kailin, along with a supervising medical doctor. They say they hope to make acupuncture both more accessible and familiar to health services consumers.

"The practice of needle insertion," Kantor says, "is at least 5,000 years old. It is part of a traditional system of medicine which stresses the balance of bodily energies and the importance of living harmoniously. Many types of illnesses, acute and chronic pain, and neurological conditions, respond to needle or heat (moxibustion) stimulation."

The acupuncturists claim to have had their best results with lower back pain, headaches, menstrual disorders, athletic injuries, obesity, and tobacco addiction.

"Eighty percent of all painful conditions," Kailin says, "respond to least to some extent to acupuncture therapy. Frequently, acute pain can be completely eliminated within a few treatments; chronic conditions take longer. Naturally, not all conditions are cured; acupuncture is not magic."

According to the acupuncturists, little pain is involved in the procedure. The needles are very thin and flexible, like fine wire, and quick insertion speeds them past the pain receptors in the skin.

"We certainly would like to broaden the popular understanding of acupuncture as being only an anesthetic technique, or an appetite-reducing aid for weight loss, both of which it can do," states Kantor, "so that people may enjoy the full benefits of acupuncture's healing capacity."

Cambridge Rindge In Court Appeal

Quincy In But Will Tourney Be Played?

If Division I of the Eastern Mass. Basketball Tournament ever gets under way Quincy will be in for the fourth time in the last five years and will take a 16-4 record into the competition.

The tournament was scheduled to start last Tuesday but, because Cambridge Rindge and Latin has gone to court to overturn the ruling by the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association [MIAA] that Cambridge must forfeit games in which ineligible players participated [maybe as many as 11 or as few as four], the tournament can't get started until everything is settled.

The Suburban League athletic directors had previously voted, 8-1, to put Cambridge [16-1] in last place in the league and the MIAA later acted on their appeal and reversed an earlier decision.

"I don't see how the tournament can start any earlier than Saturday," Quincy coach Joe Amoroso said. "And there is even the possibility it may have to be cancelled."

Quincy, runnerup in the league, dropped a 65-64 squeaker to Brockton in its final regular season game last Friday as it went cold in the second half after an "excellent first half which saw it roll to a 42-28 lead.

"We had everyone back for the first time in several games and I substituted freely," Amoroso said. "Everyone played and I wasn't too concerned about the outcome. The big thing is we will be at full strength if the tournament is held."

Some outstanding foul shooting kept Quincy in the game as the Presidents hit on 26 of 30 free throws.

Brian Donovan scored 21 points, Rich Finnegan had 13 and Stan Benson grabbed 12 rebounds.

Earlier in the week Quincy rolled over Weymouth South, 72-50, with junior Steve Priscella, one of the league's top scorers, having 16 points, Benson 16 and Donovan 12 [10 plus nine rebounds in the last period].

Doug MacFarlane's Quincy junior varsity, leading by 12 at the half, dropped a 74-70 decision to Brockton but won the league title with a 13-4 record.

Peter Papile had 21 points, Danny Whyte added 18, Gary DiNardo had 13 and Al Memmolo eight.

Earlier in the week Quincy staged one of the great comebacks of the year as it trailed, 29-9, at the half but came back to edge Weymouth South, 46-45.

"This was a remarkable comeback and every player did an outstanding job in the second half," MacFarlane said. "We put on the pressure and wore them down."

DiNardo scored 12 points, Shawn Barnes had 12, Whyte 10 and Papile six.

Again Because Of Cambridge Rindge:

Did North Qualify For Tourney-- Or Didn't It?

Did North Quincy's basketball team qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament or didn't it?

At this writing the question still wasn't answered, although Coach Eddie Miller has been prepping his Raiders for the post-season event.

Two weeks ago North was eliminated but, when it was ruled that Cambridge Rindge and Latin must forfeit games in which ineligible players took part, one of the forfeits was to North Quincy, which gave the Raiders a 14-6 qualifying figure.

The Cambridge officials have appealed in court and until the situation is ironed out the North team won't know if it is in the tournament (if it is ever played) or not.

The Raiders would have some momentum going for them if they are in the tournament as they won their last five games.

They finished up last week with a 64-50 victory over Revere in a non-league game, taking a 30-23 halftime lead and increasing it in the last two periods.

Junior Mark Millane, the league's number two scorer, finished up with 18 points. Bill O'Connell had 15 and Paul Gill 14.

Earlier in the week the Raiders had survived a great comeback by Brookline (38 points in the last period) to win, 72-67.

Millane had 21 points, O'Connell 16 and Gill 10.

"I feel if the tournament is played we are in it," Miller said. "The case of Dan Chatten, a Cambridge transfer student from New Hampshire, is cut and dried. Transfer papers were not filed in his case and that's an automatic forfeit.

Stay tuned.

Paul Bregoli's North junior varsity finally won its fight to finish over .500 with two wins last week to wind up 10-9.

The young Raiders avenged an earlier defeat when it topped Revere, 52-38, with an outstanding defensive performance.

Danny Marsters scored 14 points, including seven for eight from the floor. This sophomore came on strong over the last half of the season. Jack Brown had 11 points, Steve Belcastro and Rico McTaggart eight each and Steve Sacchetti played an excellent floor game.

Earlier North topped Brookline, 60-47, with Belcastro scoring 11 points, Marsters 10, Pat King 10 (five for six from the floor), McTaggart nine with nine rebounds and Chip Bunker eight points and seven rebounds. Billy Gray played a fine floor game and had five rebounds and three steals.

He is leading the Crusaders in scoring with 22.6 points a game.

ENC Faces Keene In Playoffs

The Eastern Nazarene College basketball finally won its bid to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) District 5 playoffs and tonight (Thursday) faces Keene State, in Keene, N.H.

ENC takes a 19-7 record into the game after finishing third in the annual King's College all-sports tournament last weekend in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y.

The Crusaders have won this tournament nearly every year but last week lost to Eastern College, 73-65, in the semifinals.

ENC, which had defeated Nyack in the first round, came back to top King's College, 55-47, in the consolation game.

Sophomore Mark Carr was named to the all-tournament team for his outstanding performance which included 73 points scored, 19 rebounds, 14 assists and seven steals in three games.

Carr scored his 100th career point Saturday night against King's. The sophomore guard hit the plateau on his first basket just five minutes into the game. Play was stopped for the announcement. He scored 20 points in the

Quincy Bantams Bow To Wilmington

Two years ago the Quincy Pee Wee hockey team edged Wilmington, 6-5, in five overtime periods in the Quincy Kiwanis International Youth Hockey Tournament.

Last Sunday these teams met again as Bantams in the division finals of the Kiwanis tournament and this time Wilmington won, 5-4, for the title. This game also was won in overtime.

With Quincy leading, 4-3, and 30 seconds left to play, Quincy's Bob Lynch was hit with an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty for butt-ending. Wilmington pulled its goalie and, with 10 seconds left, Bob Curran scored the tying goal. Quincy coach Ed Holt called it a "bad call at that time," but referee Terry Partridge said, "The Quincy player just overdid it. It happened right in front of me after play had been whistled dead. I couldn't let it go or the game might have ended in a brawl."

Mike McGrath had two of the Quincy goals and Dean Phillips and Keith Smith one each.

"We had only 10 kids playing today and three good lines will beat two good lines any time,"

Holt said.

Nova Scotia Premier Sends Letter To Kiwanis Club

John M. Buchanan, premier of the Province of Nova Scotia, sent the following letter to the Quincy Kiwanis Club:

"Hockey, of course, knows no boundaries of borders and neither does sheer good fun.

"In light of that, I am pleased to send along these greetings to all those young people who will be getting together on the ice in Quincy and to the Kiwanis members who have organized this tournament.

"It goes without saying that Nova Scotia has long standing and very special traditional ties with the State of Massachusetts and I am sure that sporting get-togethers like this will today, and in the future, help to cement and strengthen these ties.

Wind Up As Class A Champs

For North Girls A 'Cinderella Season'

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy girls' track team, unbeaten Suburban League champion, and state relayes tiffist, completed its "Cinderella" season last weekend by tying for the state Class A championship at Harvard.

The Raiderettes appeared to have the title clinched but could finish only sixth in the relayes, while Needham finished second to tie North with 34 points.

"We were happy to get the tie and we were very pleased to end up where we did," Coach Lou Tozzi said.

The highlight for the Raiderettes was the performance of sophomore Michelle Millane, who capped an undefeated season by winning the shot put with a toss of 41 feet, two inches.

Michelle won every dual meet this year and also won in the league championship meet.

"I owe it all to assistant coach George Liset," Michelle said.

"I couldn't have gone as far as I have without him. He's been really great and has taught me a lot. The thing about him is that he gets just as psyched out there as I do."

There wouldn't have been a girls' team this winter if Tozzi, Liset and Ken McPhoe, the boys' coaches, hadn't agreed to take over after Jeff Strungis resigned.

Kara Crehan finished a close second in the high jump at 5-2 behind Hingham's Lianne Supple, who jumped 5-4.

Deirdre Donovan placed second in the 600 with a time of 1:26 and ninth grader Linda Kennedy took fourth in the mile at 5:12.7.

"Linda is going to be a really good one," Tozzi said. "She has what it takes."

Mary Crehan finished fourth in the 1000 with a 2:44.5 timing.

The North girls accomplished their amazing record with mostly underclassmen. "All these kids did about the best they're capable of doing and that's what you need in the big masts," Tozzi said. "And that's really something. I'll have all of them back next year. None of the girls who scored in the state meet were seniors and I think that's great."

Quincy's only scorer was Donna Reardon, who placed sixth in the two-mile. She was the one bright spot for the undermanned First Ladies this winter.

The Raiderettes had finished their regular season with an easy 72-13 win over the short-handed Quincy girls to finish an unbeaten league season.

The unbeaten season and league crown were especially sweet for seniors Elaine Robertson, Eileen McKenna and Laurie Adams, who have been on the team during four frustrating seasons.

The league finale was no contest, as Quincy Coach Jim Piccini again had only an eight-girl squad.

"I've been working with six, seven or eight kids for three years and it has been really rough," Piccini said. "The few kids we have give me 100 percent, but what can you do with so few on the team?"

Piccini had one outstanding runner, Donna Reardon, who was the First Ladies' only winner against North and set a new school record in the two mile [11:45], the third tastest time in the league this fall. During the season Donna also set school records in the mile and 1000.

North's Robyn O'Donnell [6:06.8] and Ann Gorczyca finished 1-2 in the mile, Linda Kennedy [2:57.3], Nancy MacDonald and Lynn Gillespie of North swept the 1000. Deirdre Donovan [1:37.7], Mary Crehan and Lisa Cavanaugh of the Raiderettes swept the 600. Elaine Robertson [42.9] won the 300, followed by North's Linda Morash and Quincy's Terry Irvine.

Mary Kate Kennedy, daughter of School committee vice-chairman Christopher Kennedy, won the dash in 6.5 followed by Donna Marston of Quincy and North's Eileen McKenna. North's Loretta Garrigan [8.1] won the hurdles with Laurie Adams of the Raiderettes second and Quincy's Terry Hannon third, undefeated Michelle Millane of North won the shot put [38-3½], with Rita Pasqualone of Quincy second and Donovan third, North's Kara Crehan [4-8], Garrigan and Mary Kate Kennedy swept the high jump and North's relay team of Mary and Kara Crehan, Kathy Moriarty and Robertson won in 4-40.4.

The North girls then went on to win the state relayes at Tufts and dominate the league championship meet at Newton. There is no team championship in the league meet but North captured the most medals.

In the state relayes Tozzi shuffled his personnel in order to pick up valuable second and third places in addition to first places. As a result, the Raiderettes won the meet by 17 points.

Mary Kate Kennedy, Mary Crehan, Donovan and Morash won the mile relay, Garrigan, Adams and McKenna picked up a second in the shuttle hurdles. Gorczyca, Sheila Barrett, O'Donnell and Linda Kennedy were second in the two-mile relay, McKenna, Mary Kate Kennedy, Garrigan and Kara Crehan placed fourth in the 880 and the Crehan sisters, Morash and Donovan were second in the spring medley with their best time, 3:44.

Earlier in the week, in the league championships, the North girls dominated the meet as Millane wound up an unbeaten league season with a fine toss of 41-5½ in the shot put, winning by five feet.

Mary Kate Kennedy won the dash, Linda Kennedy placed second in the mile and Donovan came within a tenth of a second of winning a third gold medal as she was edged at the wire in the 600.

The Raiderettes took second in the mile relay, 4½ seconds behind Brookline, and probably would have won except for a dropped baton. The team comprised Donovan, Mary Kate Kennedy, Mary Crehan and Robertson.

McKenna, who had an excellent season, finished second in the hurdles.

Quincy's Reardon was fourth in the mile and Marston took fifth in the dash.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Only 3 men in history have ever scored 100 or more points in a college or pro basketball game... Can you name the only 3 who have done it?... They are Bevo Francis, of Rio Grande College, in 1953... Frank Selvy, of Furman University, in 1954... And Wilt Chamberlain, of Philadelphia in the NBA, in 1962.

One of the most amazing games in basketball history was a freshman game some years back between Duquesne University and St. Francis... Because of touts, Duquesne finished the game with only 3 players instead of 5 on the floor, and they had no more left on the bench to put in - but what makes this game one of the strangest of all-time is that Duquesne ACTUALLY DID BETTER while they had fewer men playing than when they had a full team!... With 7:29 left in the game, the score was tied 59-59 when a player fouled out leaving Duquesne with only 4 players against St. Francis' 5... During the next 5 minutes Duquesne went ahead 77-61... With 2:23 left, another player fouled out, leaving only 3 players against 5... But, Duquesne not only held their lead - they actually built their score and won the game!

I bet you didn't know... That Colman's has the most complete line of sports footwear in the area. Styles for all sports for men, women and children.

Says Carter Due For Fall

Low Primary Ratings Fail To Faze Connally

By TOM HENSHAW

John B. Connally hasn't fared very well in the early primaries and caucuses for the Republican presidential nomination but that doesn't bother the former Democratic governor of Texas one bit.

"Did you know that when you get through the first nine primaries and caucuses that 87 percent of the delegates to the Republican convention in Detroit are still to be chosen?" he will ask.

"So let's not get too exercised and try to pick a winner too quick," he warned members of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce last week at a luncheon in the Lantana in Randolph.

President Carter may be riding high right now on the strength of Iran and Afghanistan, he said, but the man in the White House is due for a fall.

"One hundred and 10 days ago, President Carter was recording the lowest ratings ever," said Connally. "Sen. Kennedy was clearly outstripping him by 2 to 1 in every poll. Most people conceded that he could not be renominated much less elected."

"One hundred and nine days ago the street mob seized our embassy in Teheran. Right after Christmas the Soviets invaded Afghanistan. Today the President's popularity is higher than anybody's. It's assumed he'll be renominated and reelected."

"Nothing's changed, except his rating in the polls. There has been a profound change in the perception of this President in the last 109 days because of the actions basically of two men—the Ayatollah Khomeini and Leonid Brezhnev.

"Politics in America has flopped in the last 110 days and it's going to flop again."

"The hostages will be freed one of these days, when the Iranians decide to do it, not because of anything we do. When that happens this President is going to have to defend his handling of the inflation problem, unemployment, all the other things.

"When he does, I think his popularity is going to go right back where it was."

Connally takes a rather dim view of the immediate future.

"I wish I could stand here today and tell you that I'm looking forward to a very prosperous year in 1980 but I'm not," he said. "I'm not going to say that because I don't believe that."

"I think we're going to have a very difficult year in 1980 and I think we're going to have a bad decade because we have failed to live up to the responsibilities of leadership and we failed to recognize and deal with the realities of the times."

"But," he added, "I'm a natural born optimist. I believe we can do anything we set our minds to do. But we have to know what we want to do."

"The American people don't understand that yet. They're confused. They're disturbed because of the uncertain trumpet they've heard. We have to sound a clear, concise note for everybody in this country to hear and understand."

Money-making opportunities open up by Tuesday. Others interested in telling you how to spend funds. Healthwise, book over appointments for older and younger relatives. Education accented Wednesday.

No Gasoline Storage Permits Needed For Condo Cars Garaged Underground

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Quincy condominiums will not need gasoline storage permits for residents' cars garaged underground, as do apartment buildings, according to Building Inspector Allan MacDonald.

The matter came up before last week's License Board meeting when Architect Michael Ross discussed with the board plans for an eight unit complex at 470 Adams St.

Ross said the units will be sold as condominiums and asked if a gas storage permit would then be necessary.

MacDonald had said that under the Building Code, if the units are sold as condominiums they would be considered attached single family dwellings and gasoline storage permits wouldn't be needed.

However, Fire Chief Edward Barry said, "This is the first time such a case has come down the line and I think we should consider it".

MacDonald and Chief Barry discussed the matter later in the week, and agreed that since the Building Code does rule the condominiums as attached single family dwellings, no hearing for a permit would be necessary.

Kennedy, Reagan Win Here

By TOM HENSHAW

EDWARD KENNEDY

It was Reagan and Kennedy in Quincy.

Ronald Reagan, the conservative former governor of California, topped the Republican presidential primary ballot Tuesday with 2,291 to 1,572 for George Bush and 1,194 for John Anderson.

Bush, a Milton native and one-time head of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Anderson, a congressman from Illinois, were fighting it out for the lead statewide.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, whose campaign for the White House has been staggering nationally in recent months, easily prevailed over President Jimmy Carter in Quincy by a vote of 12,575 to 5,534.

The 2 1/2 to 1 margin was roughly the same as Kennedy maintained over Carter across the Commonwealth.

With 97 per cent of the vote counted early Wednesday, Bush was leading Anderson by a scant 878 vote margin statewide. Percentage wise, they were knotted at 31 per cent with Reagan close behind with 29 per cent. Baker had five per cent.

Kennedy, an easy winner, had 65 per cent of the Massachusetts vote to Carter's 29 per cent. Brown had 4 per cent.

registered voters cast ballots, far surpassing the predicted 35 to 40 per cent forecast.

The three state committeemen and women who faced opposition for re-election in the Norfolk senatorial district, including Kennedy, won new terms by comfortable margins.

Rep. Andrew Card of Holbrook polled large margins in the towns of Braintree, Holbrook and Avon to beat Andrew Korny of Quincy.

RONALD REAGAN

Overplayed Says Health Commissioner

Shipyard Asbestos Reports Exaggerated?

Both city and state are moving to determine if there really is a hazard to the people of Quincy Point from asbestos that was used in the Fore River Shipyard 30 to 40 years ago.

A study by Dr. Irving Selikoff of the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine, New York, reported that 80 to 85 per cent of yard workers had a chance of contracting cancer, asbestosis or other lung diseases.

Now it appears that Dr. Selikoff, who tested more than 300 workers at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard last November, may have been speaking of a study done earlier in Baltimore.

Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeough told the City Council Monday night that he had a letter from Dr. Selikoff, dated Jan. 29, which said the doctor was still evaluating the Fore River X-rays.

Dr. Selikoff promised to forward the results of the study to Dr. McKeough as soon as they are available.

"I have no documented proof that the studies that were done here are not available," said Dr. McKeough, "but I got it through the scuttlebutt that they would not be available for as much as a year."

"I also have information that Dr. Selikoff was using projected figures from his other studies."

Dr. McKeough said he felt that the story of Dr. Selikoff's study, which caused a furor in Quincy Point, was overplayed.

"If you read the fine print it says cancer and other respiratory diseases," he said, "but when you look at it you get the effect that 85 per cent of the patients are going to get cancer. This is not so and Dr.

Selikoff did not say so."

Dr. McKeough said he plans to meet today (Thursday) with Gerald Parker, assistant commissioner of State Department of Environmental Health, to discuss the problem.

He drew a careful distinction between residents of Quincy Point and those who worked at the Shipyard, where asbestos has not been used in new vessels since 1972.

"Around the yard is a low exposure area and we don't know what the hazards are," he said. "In the yard I don't think there's any doubt that there's a danger."

"But the investigation has got to be done coolly, sensibly and economically. You can't do all the things that have to be done with a telephone call."

The asbestos furor touched off an explosion by Councillor Daniel G. Raymond Monday night. Quincy Point and the shipyard are in his Ward 2.

Raymond appeared to be incensed by a story that said Sen. Paul D. Harold was about to bring a bus load of X-ray equipment into the Point and test everyone for cancer.

"We ought not to be in the business of scaring people," he said. "At some point we have to be factual."

"We are not going to resolve this problem in the back of a bus. I can't accept this kind of politicizing."

"God help us if this is based on a study in Maryland and he is scaring my people with this."

"They wouldn't send a bus into Milton, Brookline or Wellesley. They're not going to send a bus into Quincy Point."

Raymond suggested that Dr. Selikoff may be scaring people so that he can justify his study grant from the National Cancer Institute.

"Let's find out if he is a big balloon of federal money," he cried.

Dr. McKeough suggested to the Council that "no one mention the word asbestos for two months and let it die and then we can do intelligent work about it."

Harold said he wasn't planning on taking a bus full of X-ray equipment into Quincy Point but that he was planning a probe of the problem in conjunction with the Norfolk County Hospital.

"We're going to do it through a series of questionnaires," he said. "We want to get a representative

Quincy And The Caribbean Connection

By TOM HENSHAW

It was an undercover officer, a youth from another town posing as a transfer student on the make for narcotics, who turned up the plot while investigating drug dealing at one of the Quincy high schools.

During the course of the investigation, one boy emerged as a leader of illegal drug activity at the school. Although a student, he was not, it turned out, your average, run-of-the-mill schoolboy dealer.

The undercover officer discovered that the young man, along with three or four other students, were planning a trip to a Caribbean Island during the February vacation to bring back marijuana. A trap was laid.

The trip got off all right. The youngsters, carrying some $3,750 investment capital, relaxed awhile in the sun. Then they made their buy. Marijuana is relatively cheap in the Caribbean. They bought more than 25 pounds.

This is the third in a series of articles on the drug problem in Quincy.

The pot was packaged in small plastic envelopes. During the flight back to the states, the kids managed to hide the packets in various places on the plane. When they went through customs in New York, their luggage was clean.

But the kids had not counted on the curiosity of a fellow passenger, a little old lady who wondered what was in the plastic envelope she found hidden behind her seat. She took it to the captain of the plane. He smelled it. He knew what it was.

The plane's departure was held up while customs agents searched it. They found the hidden marijuana. When the plane finally arrived in Boston, there were three disappointed groups of people.

They included the travelers who disembarked empty-handed, the youngsters who were waiting at the airport to distribute the pot in communities south of Boston—and the officers who were waiting to arrest them with the goods.

MARIJUANA PIPES can be manufactured by students themselves in school workshops or at home. These were confiscated in Quincy by John W. (Butch) Mahoney, social health coordinator.

New Contract, But—

Layoffs For 150 More At Shipyard

Yet another minor contract award has done little to stem the tide of layoffs at General Dynamics' Quincy shipyard.

Workers received word of a $1 million repair contract for two Navy frigates Tuesday morning, four days after 150 workers got layoff notices last week.

"It's a small job, and we don't know how many people it will keep on," said Earl Christian, executive secretary for Local 5 Shipbuilders Union. The frigates will arrive in June and work will probably be completed in September.

Daniel Crowley, of Congressman Brian Donnelly's Washington office confirmed the contract award Tuesday and said the announcement would probably be made later that day.

The overhauls of the USS Campadamo and USS Miller would probably save 175 to 200 jobs for the three to four month period, he said.

Meanwhile, the number of workers at the yard is down to about 3,100, about 2,000 less than last year. According to Christian, 62 welders finished work last Friday and were laid off. That same day, 100 more welders and 50 shipfitters were given 40-hour notice that they'll be laid off this Friday.

The mood among most of the workers is grim, Christian said. "Some of them don't care," he said, referring to unemployment and other benefits. "But most of them would rather have the work."

The prospects now underway at the yard are construction of two Liquefied Natural Gas tankers, repair work on five barges, the Neptune cable ship and the Sea Tiger oil tanker. Work on most of these is expected to end this year.

Challenges 'Fiscal Autonomy'

Tobin Will Urge, Council To Cut School Budget

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Mayor Arthur Tobin says he will urge the city council to make major cuts in the school system's 1980-81 budget.

Traditionally, the school budget has been protected by law from cuts by the City Council. But Tobin claims only that portion of the budget within the state's four-percent cap is protected by the principle of "fiscal autonomy."

When asked if he agreed with Tobin's analysis of the law, School Committee Vice-Chairman Christopher Kennedy said, "No, obviously. We're being mis-treated."

If the city council made the cuts suggested by Tobin, the issue would probably end up in court, Kennedy said.

"The tax cap and the state law on collective bargaining seem to fly in each other's face," Kennedy said, contending the committee could not both honor the raises it had negotiated and stay within the four-percent cap.

The School Committee was expected to give final approval Tuesday night to a budget almost 17 percent over last year's. That increase is about $4.2 million more than normally allowed under the four-percent spending cap.

Tobin, as chairman of the seven-member committee, vowed to vote against the budget.

"If the vote is 6 to 1 for the budget, then I have to send it to the City Council. But I'm going to recommend that it be cut. And if the City Council votes to pass that budget, then I'm going to make it known that it's a City Council tax rate," Tobin said Monday.

He added he would recommend that the City Council cut the entire portion of the school budget over the four-percent cap. That would leave the system with an increase of about $1.3 million, or a total budget of about $34.7 million.

The $38.5 million proposed budget would be up about $5.6 million over 1979-80. Because it exceeds the four-percent cap, it would require the approval of two-thirds of the city council.

The committee was scheduled to make a final vote on the budget Tuesday night after its public budget hearing. Committee members predicted few, if any, changes from the $38,501,515 budget given tentative approval last Wednesday.

"I don't think we have to apologize for this budget," said member Patricia Toland. "We're living on just about the same budget as two years ago."

Most of the $5.6 million increase is contained in negotiated salaries (up $3.8 million over 1979-80), oil and electricity (up $992,000) and state-mandated Chapter 766 tuition (up $75,361), which total $4.9 million.

The so-called "instructional line," the cost of instructional materials and equipment, has remained at about the same level for the last three budgets, Dr. Creedon said. The 1979-80 budget included $1,004,111 under this line. Creedon's proposal of $1,011,747 for 1980-81 was cut by the school committee to $986,747.

Also dropping in this year's budget are maintenance expenses, from $1,132,852 to $1,022,780.

Creedon also said the budget includes over 60 fewer teaching and administrative posts than two years ago.

Because of declining enrollments, 25 fewer teaching posts were included in the 1979-80 budget than in the previous year. An additional 12 teaching and administrative posts have been left vacant by attrition during this school year and were not budgeted for 1980-81. Finally, 25 teachers' and five administrators' jobs are eliminated in the 1980-81 budget, Creedon said.

These last 30 jobs represent a saving of $588,000 which was not included in Creedon's proposed budget.

Because of the four-percent cap on the city's tax levy, any increase over four percent in the school budget would have to result in cuts in other city departments, Tobin claimed. These would most likely come in the large fire, police, public works or hospital budgets, he said.

Furthermore, the $5.6 million school increase represents about a 20% hike in next year's tax rate, Tobin said.

The school committee and leaders of the teachers union have combined to make him "the bad guy" in the budget crisis, he claimed.

"Mayor Tobin didn't cause double digit inflation. Mayor Tobin didn't cause increases in the cost of energy. These things are happening all across the country," Tobin said.

"I happen to be the mayor during perhaps the worst economic crisis this country has seen since the Depression. All I've asked is that people be reasonable. I've been saving all along that we don't have the money. But nobody is listening."

"If he cuts our budget, I hope he can answer to the parents when there's no heat in the schools next year," said committee member Joan Picard.

Member Mark Collins said the same problems facing Quincy schools were affecting school systems across the state. At a recent Massachusetts Association of School Committees meeting, she said, "They asked how many of us expected to come in under the four percent cap. Two people, out of 30 or 35 raised their hands."

"I don't know whether we have fiscal autonomy only up to the four percent cap. I don't think so," said member Patricia Toland.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon questioned the city's dire financial straits.

"If the city has eight or nine million dollars in new revenue, some one should ask where it's going."

March has two birthstones, the aquamarine and the bloodstone. The aquamarine is a pale blue-green gemstone and like the emerald, is a very mineral but paler and more precious because of its abundance. Aquamarine means "sea water" in Latin, and this name perfectly describes the stone's delicate appeal. Ancient warriors believed it granted courage and increased intelligence. The bloodstone (also called heliotrope), is dark green with spots of red supposedly the blood of Christ on the cross. Bloodstone is a type of chalcedony, quartz found in masses rather than in crystals. The sentiment it impacts is wisdom.

MBTA O.K.'s Air Rights Tobin, Baharian See No Chance Of Garage Bond Reconsideration

By TOM HENSHAW

The proposal for a $1 million bond issue to build two more floors on a parking garage over the MBTA tracks at Granite St. is dead and probably buried beyond resurrection.

The City Council killed its last week when it failed to muster the required six votes from the eight councillors who voted on it.

"There was some talk about a move to reconsider," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, "but further investigation showed there wasn't any change in votes so that's the end of it."

"The issue is dead for now," said Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development coordinator. "I think it was a serious error on the part of the three councillors who voted against it."

The three negative votes came from Councillors Leo J. Kelly, Stephen J. McGrath and Joseph J. LaBuda.

Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who said he was in favor of the bond, declined to vote since he is president of a bank whose building is on land connected to the project.

"Those who voted against the bond did not show their conviction that the city is turning around," said the Rev. Baharian. "They showed no commitment to the downtown area."

"We will never again have a chance to get parking space so cheaply."

The subcontractor who is doing the concrete work for the garage told the contractor Friday that he could not hold the price any longer. It would be $150,000 more if he added two floors right now."

Baharian said that, since the Council vote was taken last Wednesday, Planning Director

James Lydon had contacted each of the three councillors to no avail.

Any move for reconsideration of the bond issue would have to originate with one of the three councillors who cast negative votes. None showed a willingness to start it.

"We'll just go ahead with five floors," said Tobin. "But we did get some very good news on that Monday afternoon. The MBTA directors voted for all the necessary paper work for the air rights."

Granting of the air rights over the tracks by the MBTA had been help up pending settlement of longstanding memorandums of agreement on land swaps negotiated prior to the building of the Red Line.

"This was a tremendous technical and legal undertaking," said Tobin.

"We got the air rights over the tracks at Granite St. (under a 99-year lease for $5,842 a year) and the air rights over the tracks at the North Quincy station, tremendous development potential."

"We also settled the land swap for McIntyre Mall and other trades of land between the city and the MBTA. The whole thing has been resolved, including the depression of the tracks in Quincy Center."

Expanding Business

Ryder's Moving To Milton's Store

Ryder's of 1617 Hancock St. will occupy the long-vacant Milton's store at 1487 Hancock St. later this year, announces owner Charles Ryder.

The curtain and drapery shop plans a tentative opening date of Aug. 1 at its new location, said Ryder, who has been at his present location since 1976.

"Three and a half years ago we thought Quincy was a good place to do business and we haven't changed our minds. We see the move as furthering our commitment to Quincy Center," he said.

"The attitude of the city fathers seems to be much more positive regarding the development of Quincy Center...and we love the Quincy customers who have supported us so well."

The move will more than double the store's floor space, from 3,000 square feet to 6,500. Ryder, a Hanover resident, also plans to double his staff, now seven persons, when the new space is occupied.

Ryder's now features ready-made or custom-made curtains and drapes, table linens and kitchen and bathroom accessories. The new location will allow customers to choose from a wider variety of merchandise, he said.

Ryder spent 18 years with the Grant's department store chain, managing the Quincy store before the chain went out of business in 1976. His wife, Cindy, is purchaser for Ryder's.

"Many people are intimidated or flustered by salespeople or business owners.

PAULA GOLD

Attorney Gold has been a leader in the area of consumer protection and she will be discussing common consumer problems that many of us have faced."

Immediately preceding her present appointment, Attorney Gold was Chief of the Consumer Protection Division. During her term, over 40,000 individual complaints in all areas such as credit, advertising, mail orders, guarantees, returns, etc. were mediated. In addition, three major sets of regulations relating to advertising, automobiles, and nursing homes were promulgated.

Attorney Gold will also be examining the legislation and regulations which govern utility companies, insurance companies, and civil right issues. How to find out more about public charities and environmental laws will also be covered during this workshop.

In addition to her experience in the Attorney General's Office, Attorney Gold has also served as litigation specialist for the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute and Managing Attorney for the Boston Legal Assistance Project. She has been active in the Massachusetts and Boston Bar Associations and has taught courses at Boston College Law School, Harvard Law School, and Boston University.

Oil To Gas Conversion Studied For Snug Harbor Homes

Big energy savings will result for tenants if the Quincy Housing Authority decides to convert 400 Snug Harbor apartments from oil to gas heat.

Superintendent of Maintenance James D'Olimpio told the authority to change over to gas would increase heating efficiency by about 35 percent. The resultant savings would make up the $831,000 cost of conversion in less than three years.

The homes are now heated by steam heat, fired by oil burners, many of those burners are as old as 30 years, D'Olimpio said.

Those facts are contained in a letter to D'Olimpio from a consultant asked to study the proposal on behalf of the QHA.

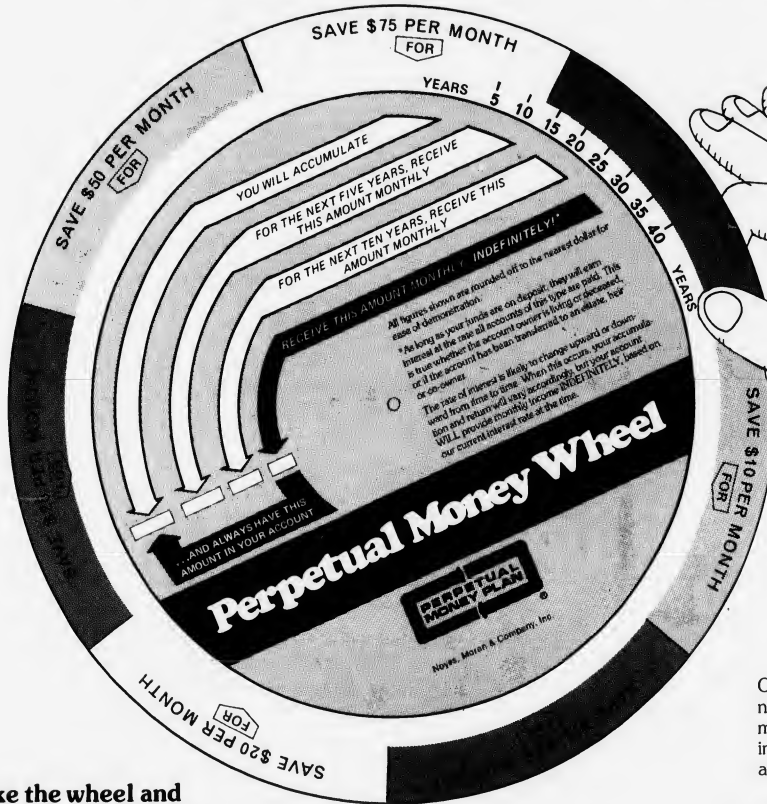

Timothy O'Leary of Contract Construction Consultants of Needham reported the oil to gas changeover would result in better efficiency for the Snug Harbor heating systems, lower bills for tenants and lower maintenance costs for the QHA. He recommended that the authority seek funding for the conversion from the state Executive Office of Communities and Development.

D'Olimpio said of the funding proposal, "It's almost a shoe-in."

Tenants in the Snug Harbor apartments paid an average of about $600 per year in oil costs for two-bedroom apartments, $900 for three bedroom apartments and $1100 for four, O'Leary said. Those figures are based on the winter of 1978-79, when oil cost 75 cents per gallon.

Your Dental Health

by Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S.

Dentistry has come a long way over the years. Not only is treatment easier, but detection and prevention of disease have become fine arts minimizing the onset of disease itself. Teeth are not extracted by tying a string to a tooth and a door. Dentures are no longer made of wood with the tendency to splinter. Braces are available to correct deficiencies in the mouth structure. Patients need simple fillings no longer ending in dowels or irritating exposed nerves. Safe, local anesthetics are regularly used. Visit your dentist for the life of your teeth.

Regular visits to your dentist can catch a problem while it is small and handled economically. Visit Dr. Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S., 539 Adams St., East Milton Square. Hours by appointment: 698-3636.

A routine x-ray exam is one important aspect of your dental visit. It enables the dentist to see inside the bone and into the spaces between the teeth. You want the best care possible. With x-rays we can detect conditions that left untreated would lead to problems later.

Civil Service List Delay

City Faces Shortage Of Police Next Summer

The Quincy Police Department is short by 17 patrolmen and, says Chief Francis X. Finn, if he doesn't get a list of eligible men from Civil Service pretty soon, it's going to cost the city a bundle in summer overtime.

"I'm vexed by the whole thing," Finn told the City Council's Public Safety Committee Monday night.

"I can't understand why Civil Service won't give us a list. They took their exams. They have been graded. My request has been in over a year. I call them weekly. When I call Civil Service on a weekly basis I'm really desperate."

In order to make up for the 17 vacancies, Finn said he has had to work his regular patrolmen overtime at time and a half, which has so cut into his budget that he would not be able to hire more than 10 new men even if 17 became available.

Drive In April

$200,000 Goal For City Crisis Shelter

A drive to raise $200,000 for a crisis shelter in Quincy will probably get underway around April 1, announces Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church, Quincy Center.

The shelter, a joint project of St. John's, the Salvation Army and the city planning department, is aimed at providing temporary shelter and meals for the city's homeless and troubled. No such shelter exists now in the city, notes Rev. McCarthy.

Committee members, including Rev. McCarthy, Esther Sanger of the Salvation Army and Carol Pisano of the planning department, are now meeting with community groups to discuss the need for a crisis shelter.

Rev. McCarthy discussed the following example with the Quincy Kiwanis Monday:

"Last Saturday afternoon, we received a call from a local hospital that they had a man 70 years of age who had been sleeping in an automobile for a year. His appearance was drab and unkempt.

"We gave him the only provision we have for temporary housing, one of the local motels. Sunday morning, the motel called and said they could not keep him, because he was causing a disturbance."

"We told the motel to call the hospital, but they refused to take him back. The man was taken to Quincy City Hospital, but they in turn called us and asked what they were to do with him."

"It was suggested he go to another motel."

Besides providing just a bed and a meal, the facility would have to offer counseling and support for persons going through crises, Rev. McCarthy said. The shelter would be aimed at creating "an environment conducive to solving problems and enabling clients to return as soon as possible to normal living arrangements, he said."

The committee is now investigating sites which would house up to 25 persons, he said.

the Public Safety Committee to satisfy Councilor Daniel G. Raymond's curiosity as to why his constituents didn't see a foot patrolman in Quincy Point as much as they used to.

Finn explained that, because of the shortage of patrolmen, the beat man on Washington St. in the Point had been given a wider area to cover and a car in which to cover it.

"We have the same problem in Squantum," he said. "We had to give the beat man portions of Atlantic."

Finn said the beat man always makes sure to check the drug store in Squantum.

"Drug stores have been closing all over Massachusetts because of robberies and burglaries," he said. "We are darn sure we don't want to lose this one."

Bishop D'Arcy Speaker

Spiritual Renewal Starts March 13 At Our Lady Of Good Counsel Church

Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Merrymount, is holding a spiritual renewal from March 9 through March 13. Rev. Peter Martocchio, pastor, said the Lenten event is part of a parish-wide effort to bring the church and its members closer together.

"In a time of crisis and turmoil, at home and abroad, and particularly during this Lenten season when Christians are called to reflect on the basic mystery of their faith we feel it appropriate for the members of our parish to come together during these five evenings in March," Fr. Martocchio said. "All members of our community, both active and inactive in the parish are urged to attend the series of discussions which will be conducted by noted speakers from the Boston area."

The Most Rev. John M. D'Arcy will set the tone for these renewal meetings by opening the Sunday night session with a discussion on faith. Bishop D'Arcy, who received a Doctorate in Spiritual Theology in Rome and Auxiliary Bishop of Boston and Vicar of Spiritual Development for the Archdiocese of Boston, will also conduct the closing session of the spiritual renewal week Thursday, March 13. The third and fourth sample of people from the area to find out what the exposure was.

For the past several months a planning committee chaired by Ann Abbruzzese, Margaret Fay, and Lou Mazzini have been planning the spiritual renewal sessions. The committee and Fr. Martocchio urge all active and inactive, past and present parishioners to join them at the renewal.

"The role that we're playing is one of just trying to find out and measure without frightening people."

"I don't know why Raymond's not even interested in the thing. It's his ward. When you have national attention focused here it seems that the local people should have the same interest."

Dr. McCough said it is possible that later on in the investigation he will seek out old X-rays of persons who may have been affected for comparison to current ones.

He noted that the diseases produced by asbestos fibres sometimes take 30 or 40 years to show up. By TOM HENSHAW coordinator of social health in the Quincy schools. "But that's not unusual in cases like this. I'm sure they found another technique of bringing the stuff in."

Quincy And The Caribbean Connection

And they always will, for there is big money to be made in peddling drugs.

"One of the reasons for our drug problem is the inability to resist the money that can be made by selling drugs," said Lt. Walter Lynch, who until recently was the head of the Quincy Police Drug Unit.

"This temptation is experienced by the child in school who is selling marijuana by the stick and single PCP pills to your child and my child all the way up to the one who is bringing drugs into a community in bulk."

The economics of the unsuccessful buying trip south of the border, according to Mahoney, went like this:

At the time, marijuana cost $150 a pound at the source in the Caribbean. On the street in Quincy, it's $40 an ounce. One ounce of pure marijuana is actually two ounces, once it's "stepped on," that is, mixed with other substances like orgeano.

Thus the 25 pounds of pot that was purchased for $3,750 south of the border was worth $32,000 if sold by the ounce.

It's even more profitable if sold by the "joint," as the loosely rolled marijuana cigarette is called.

A pound of marijuana, stepped on, will produce some 1,900 joints selling for $1 apiece. Twenty five pounds will make 47,500 joints, selling for $47,500.

It may appear as though the youngsters who made the trip to the Caribbean lost a critical bundle of cash when the little old lady got nosy. That's not really so. Mahoney estimates the young leader of the group was grossing about $4,000 a week at the time.

"A small street dealer will buy an ounce and roll his own," says Lt. Lynch. "He can make between 50 and 55 joints from this ounce. He can sell this before school starts in the morning."

A report prepared by Lt. Lynch just prior to his transfer at his own request gave this price listing of some of the most abused drugs:

"An ounce of cocaine costs $2,000. It costs $10 to $15 a line, which is a small amount of cocaine rolled up in a dollar bill or a piece of paper and sniffed through the nose."

"LSD, PCP, barbiturates, amphetamines, tranquilizers, etc. cost $2 to $2.50 apiece or $1 apiece if bought by the hundreds. Quaaludes sell for $5 to $15 apiece. Speed or methamphetamine costs $80 a gram. Pain killers like percodan are $5 apiece."

"There is heavy money in drugs," says Lynch. "Everyone is getting into the business, from the little kid in school to the big dealer."

Only part of the marijuana involved in the caper that was interrupted by the little old lady was headed for Quincy. The kids who were waiting at the airport for their shares came from communities as far south as Brockton.

"There is a great need for cooperation between communities," said Mahoney. "Even if Quincy does something about the drug problem and the others don't, we can still be affected. There has to be some lines of communication."

"What happens in Latin America and Miami affects what happens on the South Shore, too. Most of the stuff that comes out of Miami goes into the Boston area because we have the largest concentration of students in the country."

(Next week—What happened when two 11-year-old boys started showing their brand new marijuana cigarette around their sixth grade classroom.)

Peter Benelli Quincy Red Cross Campaign Chairman

Peter J. Benelli, Thayer Academy headmaster, has been named chairman of the 1980 March Campaign for the Greater Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross.

His appointment was announced by the Chapter Chairman Peter F. Macdonald.

In accepting leadership of the campaign, Benelli said:

"March is traditionally the month when Red Cross looks to the communities for renewed membership and financial support. Each year during this month, we undertake a major fund raising drive in order to secure funds for services throughout the year.

"Last year, Greater Quincy Chapter helped nearly 15 families forced from their homes by fire and floods. We committed more than $2,351 in emergency assistance to help these families recover. Yet this assistance reflects only a fraction of the work done by Red Cross volunteers and staff."

In the Greater Quincy Chapter, such reasons include the recruitment, development and delivery of life-supporting blood and blood products to area hospitals; health care instruction and safety training such as CPR and Water Safety to 4,765 people; and the counselling of more than 204 active members of the armed forces, veterans and their dependents.

"We are counting on the generosity of every community during the traditional March Campaign," Benelli said. "Every contribution will help to keep Red Cross ready -- not only to assist in the big emergencies like hurricanes David and Frederic; but also with each individual family disaster."

Those interested in supporting the Red Cross during March are encouraged to send a tax-deductible contribution to Greater Quincy Chapter, 57 Revere Road, Quincy, 02169.

Wrong Vote On Garage Bond Issue

The plan to build two more floors and 200 parking spaces atop the garage over the MBTA tracks at Granite St. apparently is dead.

It died last week when three city councillors refused to approve a $1 million bond for its construction.

We think that vote was a mistake.

Downtown Quincy is only now stirring out of the decades long lethargy that has accompanied its decline as the retail center of the South Shore.

Right now it needs a dramatic shot in the arm as confirmation that the city is united behind the efforts to revitalize its economic heart.

A City Council vote for the bond issue would have done that.

It would have shown the businessmen and women of Quincy, present and future, that the city is ready not only to restore the 117 parking spaces lost when the Campanelli-Stop and Shop building is built but to add new ones for the future.

In the words of Councillor James A. Sheets, who cast his vote for the bond:

"I have no problem at all explaining my vote to my people. In fact, I'm happy to explain it. I'm investing in lower property taxes for them down the road."

City Council President Leo J. Kelly, Stephen J. McGrath and Joseph J. LaRaia killed the bond issue.

Kelly and McGrath made their votes known long before the fatal council meeting.

LaRaia, who held the fate of the bond issue in his hand, did not make his decision known until the first vote was taken in the Finance Committee session, moments before the special Council meeting.

We find his vote against the future of downtown Quincy inconsistent and the most difficult to understand.

Only a few years ago, as mayor of Quincy, he presided over a grandiose plan for downtown development that would have demolished most of Quincy Square and rebuilt it from scratch.

It wouldn't have cost $1 million. It would have cost close to $500 million.

In fact, his administration produced a Madison Avenue-like expensive brochure that detailed his master development plan for "The New Quincy Center".

"There's a strong new opportunity in downtown Quincy," enthused the introduction. "An opportunity to create an exciting retail and commercial environment, supported by improved vehicular and pedestrian access."

And it concluded:

"Downtown Quincy has ambitions on the future. A future with the excitement and shopping satisfaction which can only be found in the downtown experience."

"If you are a retailer looking for a clearly defined untapped market..."

"If you are a developer looking for a project with reward and potential..."

"The timing is right and the market is ready. Quincy not only extends an invitation for you to join in its growth, but is eager and willing to help you succeed."

"Quincy means business."

That was Mayor LaRaia's multi-million dollar plan. But when it came time for Councillor LaRaia to vote for a more modest plan, he found $1 million too big. He could have been the catalyst but dropped the ball.

Kelly, McGrath and LaRaia, we think, will someday realize that they voted wrong.

We hope it won't be too late for downtown Quincy when they do.

Right now Quincy needs city officials with vision.

Points To Ponder

- Just about the time everyone was saying that inflation couldn't possibly continue at the ridiculous rate of 13%, a change occurred. Inflation went to 18%.

- A number of recent events in the news are very well described by the titles of some current films:

The state of your mind after listening to a political speech

The Fog

Jim Craig, the goalie on the Olympic hockey team Hero at Large

The attitude of those congressmen who allegedly took bribes Just Tell Me What You Want

- Lately, the political polls have made some errors in predicting the margins of victory for various candidates. It gives some assurance that nobody really knows who we'll vote for until we do it.

New Look For Clerk's Office

City Clerk John Gillis' office will soon have a much needed new look that should not only make staffers happy, but residents, too.

The department will spread out to occupy the entire first floor of old City Hall now that the Presidential primary elections are over.

The clerk's office and the vital statistics department now crowded into two small rooms will be re-located in large offices of their own.

The election department, now all but lost in the basement of the building, will also be moved into first floor larger quarters.

In addition, a city clerk's library will be set up in the old city treasurer's office with a table and chairs so that visitors can do research among the volumes of records and statistics.

The move was delayed until after the Presidential primaries, Gillis said, because: "When you move you seem to lose things and this is one department that can't afford to lose anything at election time."

INCIDENTALLY, Gillis was recently elected president of the Massachusetts City Clerk's Association.

SCHOOL COMMITTEEWOMAN Mary Collins reported is seriously considering running for Norfolk County Commissioner this year. She would be challenging long-time incumbent George McDonald, also of Quincy.

Close friends say Mrs.

COLLINS

Collins almost ran for the job four years ago and that she has a deep interest in county government.

This could be a political "first." If elected, it is believed she would be the first woman Norfolk County commissioner in history. And, she may be the first woman ever to run for the job.

YOU MAY NEED a scorecard to keep track of who's studying Quincy City Hospital.

Take, for example, last week's meeting of the City Council's blue ribbon commission (Mayor Tobin's), also studying the hospital and, presumably, Dr. Irons and his colleagues.

Nothing unusual, except Dr. Irons is also a member of "the other" blue ribbon commission (Mayor Tobin's), also studying the hospital and, presumably, Dr. Irons and his colleagues.

"I'm pretty certain he'll come," said John Kane, chairman of the City Council's panel, "although I hear he's pretty busy investigating himself nowadays."

FOR THE BIRDS: Quincy marine biologist Robert Dano has been undertaking a study of the Black's Creek marsh on behalf of the Conservation Commission under a recent $4,000 Coastal Zone Management grant.

Although damaged by dredging in recent years, the marsh displays a surprising variety of wildlife.

For example, Dano's progress report states that 46 species of birds were sighted in Black's Creek Marsh between October 1979 and January.

They range from the commonplace (House Sparrow, Common Pigeon, Blue Jay and Crow) to the bizarre-sounding (the Pied-Billed Grebe, the Bullhead and the Hooded Merganser).

Also making Quincy appearances in recent months were the Great Blue Heron, the Greater Yellowlegs, the Lesser Yellowlegs and the Least Terns.

And, for gull-watchers, Dano reports sightings of the Great Black-backed Gull, the Herring Gull, the Ring-billed Gull, the Laughing Gull and Bonaparte's Gull.

LOOK ALIKES: City Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Mike Eruzione, captain of the U.S. Olympic hockey team. Raymondi was a pretty good football player at Holy Cross in his day. He was captain of the team there.

Red Cross Comments On Sunbeams Column Commending WJDA

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

We found your Sunbeams column in the February 7, 1980 issue of The Quincy Sun to be thought provoking.

The American Red Cross values the support it receives not only from your outstanding weekly newspaper, but also from radio station WJDA.

We will consider your editorial as an official nomination for the Third Annual Outstanding Neighbor of the Year Award to be presented in 1981.

However, we, the American Red Cross, did officially recognize the efforts of WJDA during the Blizzard of '78 with a special certificate presented personally to Mr. Win Bertinson at the Annual Meeting of the Greater Quincy Chapter, held June 15, 1978 at Fasano's Restaurant in North Weymouth.

We, like your paper, want credit to go to those to whom it is due. However, your editorial might have given the impression that WJDA's efforts weren't recognized by the American Red Cross.

We look forward to our continued annual quality service to the citizens of Quincy.

Thank you for your assistance in this matter.

People For Hockey Tourney Hospitality

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to take this opportunity, through your newspaper, to thank all the wonderful people from Quincy, Milton and Neponset Youth Hockey for the hospitality and warmth that was shown to our visitors from Canada during the Kiwans Tournament.

Without these fine people our tournament would be an empty event. Before leaving for home, the coaches of these young boys all told me they had the time of their lives, and couldn't get over the hospitality shown them. I'm sure they will remember this week-end for many years to come.

I would also like to thank John McMann for his patience and endurance during the Kiwans Tournament. He was wonderful....

Old Fashioned But She Likes Miss Or Mrs.

Editor Quincy Sun:

I simply wanted to comment and thank The "Quincy Sun" on your Editorial in reference to giving women and ladies our titles. - Miss or Mrs. - Be it old fashioned I guess I would fit into that class, but I am so glad.

It irks me when I have noticed, lately some newspapers refer to women by only Jones or Smith - so common and undignified.

Thank you Quincy Sun and especially Mr. Bosworth for his class.

Always enjoy receiving the "Sun."

Ted Staying In

Joe Kennedy Sees Campaign Troubles Ahead For Carter

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Ask Joseph Kennedy what he'll be running for public office and he just laughs:

"Oh, Christmas. Right now we're just trying to get one Kennedy elected and get some oil for a few people."

The 26-year old son of the late Senator Robert Kennedy is making a name for himself now as a campaigner for his uncle Ted and founder of Citizens' Oil, providing cheap heating oil for low-income Massachusetts residents.

But, as he breezed into The Quincy Sun offices Monday with a smile, a handshake and a "how're you doing" for anyone in sight, it was hard not to think of him as a future candidate.

On the morning before the Massachusetts primary, he thought things looked good for his uncle, Senator Edward Kennedy.

"We're finally in a state with working people, who understand what it's like to be hit with 18 percent inflation and who understand what Ted has stood for for 18 years. We've been encouraged with the reception we've gotten in the state so far.

"Maybe we have to get 95 percent for the national press to call it a victory, but we feel we have a good solid base."

When asked if the Kennedy camp was satisfied with the results of the New Hampshire primary and early caucuses, he said: "Nobody likes to lose. But if you look at the polls over the last month or two we've done much better than expected."

"The polls had us losing big in New Hampshire. At 4 p.m., CBS was calling us 20-point losers. By 6 p.m., we were 10-point losers. Three days later we were six-point losers and now we're two-point losers."

He attributed the rapid change-around in the polls from last year, when Senator Kennedy was supposedly leading President Carter by huge margins, to the international situation.

Iran and Afghanistan have "allowed the president to play the politics of patriotism," Kennedy said. "His campaign is at a high now, but it's a short-run high. He'll have to start talking about the issues: inflation, energy, the gut-bucket issues."

It's on those issues that the Kennedy campaign has the greatest credibility, he claimed.

"I think the people in this state know what Senator Kennedy has stood for. He's fought big oil, he's fought the gold speculators and the land speculators, he's pushed for a national health insurance. He's fought big labor."

"He's been willing to take a stand for the working people of this state for 17 years."

No matter what the primary results, he said, "we'll be staying in the race as long as we feel that Senator Kennedy's message is getting across."

Straw Polls

High School Students Pick Kennedy, Bush

By DIANE DIBLASI

Ted Kennedy and George Bush were the two winners in straw polls of students in the city's two high schools Tuesday.

The Quincy High and North Quincy High Social Studies departments conducted the straw ballots for the Presidential Primary. North Quincy High students conducted the voting during homeroom period while Quincy High students held their voting all day during Social Studies classes.

During the past few months many representatives of the candidates met with the North Quincy High students. Contact was made through the Quincy school system for the Presidential Candidates Program. All the representatives were videotaped for those students who were unable to meet with them personally.

Sissy Baker, a broadcast journalist, visited North to campaign on behalf of her father, Howard Baker. John Anderson Jr., a Boston College student, spoke for his father, John Anderson. Boston businessman Paul Brennan represented John Connolly.

Anthony DeFalco, Quincy City Hospital Administrator represented Ronald Reagan. Rep. Andrew Card of Holbrook campaigned for George Bush and Sheila Kennedy, wife of Joseph Kennedy, came to speak for Sen. Edward Kennedy. John Harrington, Social Studies Coordinator for the Quincy schools made the initial contacts with the representatives.

Out of 825 students who voted at North, 479 voted Democratic while 346 voted Republican. Kennedy got 252 votes, while Carter got 124.

Bush lead the Republicans with 94 votes while Reagan trailed with 80 votes. They were followed by Anderson, 77; Baker, 21; Crane, 3, Connolly, 3 and Dole 0.

At Quincy High 988 students voted Democratic while 255 voted Republican. Kennedy got 308 votes, Carter 173 and Jerry Brown, 57.

Bush also won this poll with 84 votes, while Reagan had 83 votes. Trailing in this poll were Anderson, 58 votes; Baker, 12; Ford, 7; Connolly, 5; Dole, 4, and Crane, 2.

133 Quincy High seniors are already registered voters.

The purpose of the straw ballot was to give the students experience in a voting procedure. High school students who are going to be 18 by Nov. 4 will be able to register at school in April to vote in the Presidential election.

Mayor Signs Petition On Property Assessment Notification

Mayor Arthur Tobin has signed a Home Rule Petition that would require the Board of Assessors to notify residential property owners within 30 days of an assessment increase on the property.

The petition was forwarded to Mayor Tobin after it was passed by the City Council.

Councillor at-large Francis X. McAnley said, "In view of the chaos caused by the spot re-evaluations on multi-family dwellings last December, this legislation change is evidently necessary."

The petition will now be forwarded to the legislature.

Captain Stedman Honored By City For Sea Rescues

Capt. Giles Chester Stedman returned to duty aboard the SS Leviathan after being honored by his native Quincy for personally directing two daring sea rescues that saved 49 lives in the past few years.

Some 35,000 people turned out for the Saturday parade in his honor.

Meanwhile, Harry S. Burr was organizing the 20th reunion of Capt. Stedman's Quincy High School Class of 1914, which was called the worst in the school's history since none of its 108 members made the honor roll.

"Chester has redeemed that class at last," said Miss Sally F. Dawes, head of the English Department.

Other class members of the class included Marion Edwards, who reportedly married a Danish prince; Dorothea Brokaw, who wed a missionary to China, and Ruth G. Jones, who became a Broadway actress under the name Ruth Gordon.

Three members of the School Committee said it is possible that the school budget can be reduced to $1,029,960.26, or $7,475.13 less than 1932 because of state aid and payroll donations by school personnel.

The three members—Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting, Dr. Daniel B. Reardon and Col. Warren Sweetser—along with Mayor Charles A. Ross constituted a majority of the seven-member board.

McGrath Urges Over Water Takeoffs

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath has come out in support of Alternative 6A, the departure pattern that takes planes from Logan Airport out over the water for takeoffs.

In a letter to the FAA, McGrath urged adoption of the alternative, which has a heading of 140 degrees.

"The Alternative 6 heading of 180 degrees, bringing the aircraft over Wollaston and other sections of Quincy is unacceptable to residents who have borne the brunt of aircraft noise," he said.

McGrath noted that residents have until March 1 to express their views to the FAA on flight pattern alternatives.

Wollaston Park Association Opposes Wendell Ave. Abandonment

The Wollaston Park Association, Inc., has notified the Mayor and City Council of its opposition to the Planning Board's recent vote to recommend abandonment of a portion of Wendell Ave., from beyond Harding St. to Sachem St.

In a letter requesting the mayor's support in voting down the proposal, association president Benjamin Rudner said that the organization is "prepared to vigorously take all action necessary to have the proposal turned down by the City Council."

Rudner said that Wendell Ave. is used by all homeowners and taxpayers in the area and has been recently resurfaced by the city because it is a public way.

If the city votes to abandon the portion of Wendell Ave., continued Rudner, it will create a dangerous situation for area residents in the event of a fire or police emergency.

"The proposed abandonment is against the interest of the City of Quincy," Rudner said. "It will only benefit Eastern Nazarene College, a private educational corporation, which would acquire 19,188-square feet and allow it to build additional buildings without conforming to our building and zoning requirements."

Brownell Bid For QSD Accidents Study Gets Favorable Report

Rep. Thomas Brownell announces that the Committee on Urban Affairs has given a favorable report to his bill to require the MDC to conduct a comprehensive traffic study of the numerous auto accidents on Quincy Shore Drive located in the Merry Mount and Wollaston sections.

"I am very pleased that the Urban Affairs Committee has recognized the gravity of the traffic problems existing on Quincy Shore Drive," Brownell said. "In terms of frequency of accidents, the roadway has to be one of the most hazardous roads in Massachusetts. On a regular basis cars run off the road striking homes, traffic signals, light poles, fences, walls, pedestrians and anything else that happens to be in their way.

"In this day and age we should have the traffic technology to eliminate or diminish these unacceptable traffic conditions. I only regret that it is necessary to mandate a solution by way of a state law. But we can not sit by and allow persistent carnage and damage to neighborhood and state property to continue."

Check Representatives ID's

Revaluation Inspections To Begin This Month

Inspection of property in the city for purposes of revaluation is scheduled to begin this month, according to John Comer, chairman of the Board of Assessors.

Starting sometime in March, representatives of the firm PRC Jacobs will begin visiting all residential property to gather information on the houses and property.

The data collectors will be asked to describe the house lot, measure the home and other buildings on the lot, and list characteristics of the building.

All representatives of PRC Jacobs will carry identification, including photo-ID badges, according to Comer and Daniel Harris, project manager for the Virginia-based company. Occupants should not allow any person not properly identified to enter their homes.

In addition, they warn that information on home furnishings, decorations, and other belongings will not be collected, as it does not affect the value of the property. Any person seeking such information is not a representative of the city or PRC Jacobs.

An inspection of the interior of the home will be necessary, in order to gather information on the structure of the building, but the visit will be brief, Harris and Comer say.

Should no one be at home when the inspection first occurs, the data collectors will list the property's site characteristics and measure the buildings. A second visit will be made to the property and if no one is home to allow interior inspection, a door hanger will be left with a phone number the home owner may call to make an appointment. Should there be no response to the door hanger, the data collector will make a third visit in the evening or on Saturday morning. If there is still no one home, a certified letter will be sent to request the scheduling of an appointment for the interior inspection.

One remaining aspect of the data collection effort is the mailing to property owners of a data mailer. This document contains a listing of key property characteristics noted by the data collectors. The homeowner then has the opportunity to verify and correct, if necessary, that list and return the verified information to PRC Jacobs.

With the cooperation of Quincy property owners, the data collection effort will be completed in timely fashion, Harris said.

MASS. SECRETARY of Economic Affairs, George S. Kariotis, (left) presents a certificate of recognition to Hansford Brown, member of the CETA Quincy consortium Advisory Manpower Planning Board, and congratulates him for his contributions to the CETA program. Brown received the certificate, signed by Gov. Edward King, at a dinner recently honoring selected advisory board members throughout the state.

Complaints Against Ace Auto Parts Placed On File

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The Quincy License Board has placed on file complaints against Ace Auto Parts, 381 Quincy Ave., concerning extension of the company's Motor 3 license.

The complaints were in regard to selling used cars at 481 Quincy Ave., without a license. Anthony Poto and Joseph Simpson own both locations, but only the 381 location is licensed for selling used cars.

The owner's attorney, George Burke, told the License Board Tuesday that the situation at 481 Quincy Ave. has been rectified and "all such activity at that location has ceased."

Before voting to place the complaints on file, Fire Chief Edward Barry told the owners that the building and surrounding area should be cleaned. Failure to do so, said Barry, could result in consideration of termination of the license.

Barry also told the owners to apply for a gasoline storage license for 481 Quincy Ave. where an automobile repair shop is located.

In other action, the License Board:

- Granted a tag day permit to the North Quincy Wrestling Boosters for March 7 and 8, [rain dates, March 14 and 15]. No collections will be taken at intersections, and the boys will be supervised.

- Granted a one day all-alcoholic license to the North Quincy Knights of Columbus for a Las Vegas Night Friday, March 7, 8 p.m. to midnight at the hall, 5 Hollis Ave.

- Granted a one-day all alcoholic license to the Quincy Men's Softball League for a Las Vegas Night Saturday, March 22, 7 p.m. to midnight, at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Before voting to grant either of the all alcoholic licenses to be used in conjunction with the Las Vegas Nights, Police Chief Francis Finn asked the organization's representatives whether all the games would be run by the group's members. When told by both parties that that would be the case, Finn said to beware of professional dealers "who come in and run the games and "fleece the public."

QHA To Hear Complaints Against New Plasterer

The Housing Authority scheduled a special meeting for last night (Wednesday) to discuss the possible dismissal of or disciplinary action against an employee.

That employee is Richard Ojala of Holbrook, a plasterer hired seven weeks ago by the authority.

Ojala was hired by the authority at its Jan. 10 meeting, over the objections of Chairman Carmine D'Olimpio and member Alfonso Papile. They favored Robert Ceriani, who filled the plasterer's position on a temporary basis for a year and a half.

Ojala was chosen by a 3-2 vote, with members Edward Graham, Lolita Harris and Rev. William McCarthy voting in his favor.

At its Feb. 20 meeting, the authority went into a closed-door executive session to consider complaints against an employee. After that session, D'Olimpio announced that no action was taken.

QHA administrator Clement O'Brien this week confirmed that Ojala was the employee discussed at the Feb. 20 meeting and said that actions against him would be considered again Wednesday. O'Brien referred any further questions to D'Olimpio.

"I'm sorry. I really can't talk about it," D'Olimpio said Tuesday, noting that Ojala would probably be discussed in executive session again Wednesday.

The state's open meeting law says that, while a public board may meet in closed session to discuss the discipline or dismissal of an employee, the session may be open if the individual so requests.

"I'd just as soon we went into open session," Rev. McCarthy said. "We have nothing to hide." Ojala has been the subject of complaints concerning allegedly inferior work virtually since his first day on the job, Rev. McCarthy said. "However, the complaints have been coming from the wrong people."

"His work has been improving for the five weeks he has been employed by the Housing Authority," Rev. McCarthy said.

Consolation Win

QJC Downs Wentworth

The Quincy Junior College basketball team defeated Wentworth, 86-70, Saturday to capture the consolation game of the Greater Boston Small College Conference playoffs in Haverhill.

Coach Brian Buckley's Jaguars lost their playoff opener to Mass. College of Pharmacy, 80-71, and finished the season with an overall 17-5 record.

QJC utilized a torrid fast break in defeating Wentworth for third place in the playoffs. "We finished the season in style with some unselfish passing and exciting fast-break baskets," Buckley said. "Although it was the consolation game, the players hustled like it was for the championship."

Ed Richard scored 23 points. Jim Holleran had 17 and Bob

In the opening game QJC trailed early but came back to lead, 30-29, at the half. "At this time I thought we had a good shot at finally beating them," Buckley said. The Jaguars had lost to MCP both times during the regular season.

"Their height advantage was a dominant factor," Buckley added. "We tried to keep them off the boards but, unfortunately, four of our players fouled out in the process."

Richard, 6-2 center, was high with 15 points. Paul Donoghue scored 14 and Paul Waters 12.

Buckley, QJC's first-year coach, who was assisted by Steve Mele, loses four players, Jerry Ajamian, Tim Murphy, Waters and Capt. Evans.

3 Quincy, 2 North Hockey All-Stars

Quincy placed three players and North Quincy two on the Suburban League hockey all-star team.

The league coaches selected Quincy forwards Tom Brennan and Robbie Craig, two of the highest scorers in the league, at forward and goalie Jim Campbell.

Picked from North Quincy were goalie Bob Tierney and forward Tom Gerry.

Quincy's Scott Richardson, who combined with Brennan and Craig to make up last year's top scoring line in the league and one of the best scoring lines this year, received honorable mention.

Brookline's Bruce Milton was named the MVP and Tim McMahon of Brookline was the leading scorer.

The all-stars easily defeated league champion Brookline last Saturday, 7-1, with Craig scoring two goals. Gerry having a goal and an assist and Brennan two assists. Campbell shut out Brookline in his one period of action and, although Tierney gave up the only goal, he had the most saves of any of the three all-star goalies.

Quincy Wrestlers Capture League, Sectional Crowns

The Quincy wrestling team, which finished its regular season with a 17-3 record and won its second straight Suburban League and South Sectional division I title, had one wrestler in last Saturday's New England Tournament.

Marty Doyle, who lost a 4-1 decision to Lowell's Brouillette in the 130-pound championship match in the recent state meet, joined Brouillette in the New England, but he was eliminated early.

It was the third time this year that Doyle, one of the most decorated wrestlers on the Quincy squad, had bowed to the Lowell star.

"Martin came to us with a limited amount of wrestling knowledge and, through, his intense involvement with our program, and willingness to work on his own, he's become one of our best," Coach Carmen Mariano said. "He made the supreme sacrifice of wrestling 12 months a year for three years, not only at our practice sessions but year-round in summer tournaments and with the YMCA program."

Quincy's John Herald took third place in the 140-pound class with a 3-0 win over Reading's Warren Psarz. Al DiVincents placed fourth at 147 and Mike Monahan fourth at 169.

Quincy had two winners in winning its second straight South Sectional title. Doyle at 128 and Monahan at 169. Herald was second at 140 and Jeff Heath at 188. DiVincents was third at 147, Paul Orlando fourth at 121, Ed Ryan at 107 and Geol Caffisch in the heavyweight class.

John Madden at 114 finished sixth and was an alternate in the states.

Meanwhile, North Quincy's team, which had its best season at 12-3 and was the second place finisher in the league, placed fourth in the South Sectional Div. 2 meet and had five boys in the states.

Coach Steve Joyce had no one in the New England but Gino Pillard finished fourth at 135 pounds in the states. Dave Howley fourth at 147 and John Gorczyca third at 188.

In the sectionals Steve Sweet was second at 128, Howley second at 147, Gorczyca second at 188, Pillard third at 134 and Steve Kallenberg fourth in the heavyweight class.

Glen Collins, John McNamara and John Coughlin were alternates in the states.

Marvelle, who spent three years in the Montreal Expos system, plays in the Boston Park League and he will scout that league.

Steve Connolly Leads Curry In Assists

LEO DOYLE, Jim Moore, and Paul Cooney, all former North Quincy High hockey players, this year played for the North Adams State College varsity team, although all are only freshmen.

Quincy, North Coaches Look To Next Season

The Quincy and North Quincy hockey teams finished their seasons last week and the rival coaches look to next season with different emotions.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team, which apparently was on its way to another state tournament berth, missed out when it lost its last three games to miss qualifying by three points.

The Presidents finished with a 10-6 record and Sylvia doesn't know quite what to expect next season.

"We had a senior squad and I lose most of my players," he said. "We will have a real rebuilding job, losing one of the best lines in the state and two outstanding goalies among others. And our junior varsity team also had a disappointing season."

Quincy's senior first line of Tom Brennan, Robby Craig and Scott Richardson, led the Suburban League in scoring last year and was one of the top scoring lines this season with 92 points.

"They did virtually all our scoring and I received little scoring from the other lines," Sylvia said. "Jim Campbell and Church Dooley did a great job in goal but both will graduate."

The Presidents lost their finale to league champion Brookline, 6-3, last week, after taking a 3-1 lead. Campbell did an outstanding job in goal but was unable to stop the high scoring Brookline team, led by Tim McMahon, the league's scoring champion. Brookline's last two goals were empty net goals after Sylvia had pulled Campbell. Craig had two goals and Brennan one.

Needing three points in its final three games to make the tour-ament, Quincy previously lost to Weymouth South, 4-2, and to Brockton, 7-2.

"We were blown out by Brockton but the other two games were really well played but we just couldn't score," said Sylvia.

North Quincy Coach Kevin Lewis, who played for Sylvia at Quincy High, has a brighter outlook for next season.

The young Raiders finished with only a 3-12-1 league record and a 6-13-1 overall mark, but Lewis had only seven seniors, only four of whom played regularly.

"I think our hockey program will turn the corner next season, but we still might not be able to stay with the big boys," he said. "Teams such as Brookline and Weymouth North were loaded and have a lot of boys coming back."

"However, I hope to do better next year and I'll still be trying hard to convince North Quincy boys to stay at North instead of going to outside schools. We had several stay this year but there are still far too many good North Quincy hockey players going outside."

North lost its season's finale to Brookline, 5-2, last Saturday with Brian O'Flaherty and Robby McHugh scoring the goals.

Earlier in the week the Raiders were upset by Waltham, 4-1, as Waltham won its first game of the season.

North scored first on a goal by Rich Stevens, with Mike McNeice assisting. Both are sophomores. After Tom Gerry, the Raiders' top scorer, missed on a breakaway, Waltham came back with three goals in the second period.

TOM SULLIVAN

E.Mass Tourney Action

North Upsets Quincy But Bows To Braintree

By TOM SULLIVAN

A week ago the North Quincy basketball team didn't know if it was in the Eastern Mass. Tournament or not.

Ed Miller's Raiders finished 13-7, one win short of qualifying for the tournament but it was ruled Cambridge Rindge and Latin had to forfeit games in which an alleged ineligible player took part. One of the forfeits was to North, qualifying it for tournament play.

Cambridge officials went to court and it was finally ruled last Friday (the day before Division 1 of the tournament was due to start) that Cambridge was to play in the tournament. Miller feared this would mean the Raiders were not in the post-season event, but the judge ruled both North and Weymouth North, which also had finished 13-7, could remain in the tournament.

Quincy (16-4), recognized by Suburban League athletic directors as league champion when they voted, 8-1, to drop Cambridge into last place, found out to its dismay last Saturday that North Quincy WAS in the tournament.

Despite the absence of its top scorer and one of its best rebounders, junior Mark Millane, who had an ankle injury, North Quincy shocked the Presidents, 50-49, on Bill O'Connell's jump shot at the buzzer in the opening round of the tournament at Braintree.

However, the Raiders ran out of steam Monday night and dropped a 48-44 decision to Braintree at the Brockton High gym.

"I think we had a little letdown after the great last second win over Quincy," Miller said. "Millane was back but was still slowed down by his bad ankle. It was a tremendous game and close all the way. We led by four at the half and by a point after three periods."

"Willie Jones (a speedy 5-8 guard) scored the deciding points for Braintree in the final minutes when he twice stole the ball and scored on layups. Their 6-5 center, Jay Ferrara, had a great night with 13 points and a lot of rebounds."

North had a chance at the end but missed a couple of shots which rolled around the rim and dropped out.

O'Connell led the offense with 13 points as Miller received balanced scoring.

Miller was pleased with the Raiders' defense, as they held both opponents under 50 points.

"We really became a ball team late in the season and won our last five games including a win over Quincy," the coach said. "I feel we were better than our 13-7 record indicated and I really think the boys deserved to be in the tournament."

"I want to pay tribute to our fans, who were terrific all year long. We had three times as many fans at Brockton than Braintree did and their encouragement was really appreciated."

"Things look good for next year as we lose only two players and I think young Chip Bunker (6-9) will be ready to help the varsity. He will be our biggest player in years."

Saturday's first round game was a typical Quincy-North game and, with Millane, the number two scorer in the Suburban League, missing, Miller told his players before the game that "everyone has to pull together."

"I told them they had to try a little harder in this one," he said. Quincy led, 49-48, with nine seconds left in the game after O'Connell hit one of two free throws.

His second try bounced high off the rim and Quincy's Brian Donovan pulled down the rebound but was immediately tied up by North's Bob Bolster for a jump ball.

After Quincy called a time out with six seconds left, the ball was deflected to the sideline, right in front of the Quincy bench and North's Paul Mallory drove for the ball and slapped it to O'Connell, who took a couple of dribbles let the winning shot fly from the foul line.

O'Connell, who scored 22 points, was the hero but every Raider played his heart out and showed great poise and tenacity with their top scorer out.

"I don't think our players approached the game individually in the manner they should have," said a disappointed Quincy coach Joe Amoroso. "North is a very scrappy, aggressive team and they have the desire. They showed that any team can beat any other team on any given night."

For North Rich Kennan had 12 points. For Quincy junior Steve Prisicella had a big day with 22 points and Stan Benson had 13.

Mary Kennedy Top Point Scorer For North Girls

Mary Kate Kennedy led the North Quincy girls' track team [7-0-1] in scoring this winter with 49 points.

Deirdre Donovan had 44 points. Kara Crehan, 42½; Michelle Millane, the undefeated league and state champion, 40; Linda Kennedy, 37½; Mary Crehan, 33½; Elaine Robertson, 32; Eileen McKenna, 29; Loretta Garrigan, 28; and Robyn O'Donnell, 22.

The Raiderettes won the league championship, the state relays and tied for the state title and dominated the league championship meet. There is no team title in this meet but North won the most medals.

Bob Biagini paced the boys' team [5-4] with 40½ points, followed by Jack Leone, unbeaten in league competition and third in the state meet; 40; Steve Mastroianni, 35; Lou DiPietro, 32; Kevin Wood, 29½; Mike Ricciuti, 26; Gary Morin, 24; Joe McDonald, 19½; Mike Ellis, 14½; and Rich Palma, 10½.

No Chance Seen For Garage Bond Reconsideration

John said all that is left for future negotiation is the status of the two floors of parking on top of the Quincy Center MBTA garage.

Kelly said he opposed the bond issue because he couldn't see involving $1 million in taxpayers' money in a project that he really didn't believe was needed.

He said it was his personal observation that about 60 of the 117 spaces in the Della Chiesa lot were taken up by MBTA riders and 20 by employees of nearby business firms.

"That leaves a total of 37 parking spaces for transients," he said.

Kelly said 1,200 additional MBTA parking spaces will be available March 22 when the South Braintree station opens and 900 more will be opened next year at the Quincy Adams station.

He also said he doubted whether an office building the size of the Campanelli Shop and Shop would need 500 parking spaces in view of the fact that a city ordinance would require only 300.

"The Rev. Baharian has called that ordinance restrictive," he added, referring to the Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development coordinator, one of the prime movers behind the garage project.

Kelly said the ordinance calls for one parking space per 600 square feet of office space.

"When you apply this to the Campanelli building with its 160,000 square feet of floor space you come up with 300 required spaces, not the 500 figure that we heard," he said.

McGrath noted that he had supported the Campanelli project right from the beginning, through the original UDAG application, an earlier bond for land taking and the tax agreement with the city.

"At this point the line must be drawn," he said. "I cannot see justification for supporting a $1 million bond issue. The financial situation of the city is not that good."

He pointed out that the city will be losing 117 parking spaces in the Della Chiesa lot and adding 579 with a five-story garage so the actual loss will be 38 spaces.

"I cannot justify spending $1 million to make up for 38 spaces we are going to lose," he said.

"Adding 200 spaces is not going to solve the parking problems of downtown Quincy. The Campanelli project was never intended as a solution to those parking problems."

LaRosa said he thought the city already has "bent over backwards" on proposals for the Campanelli office building. I think two additional floors at this time are unnecessary."

"I don't think the absence of two additional floors is going to make or break the city of Quincy," he said. "We're not at the crossroads where we're going to fall into the drink and drown."

"If the Campanelli project can't survive on what the city has already done to get it moving, if it's relying on two floors of the garage, something is wrong with that project. I don't feel that's the case."

"I too am thinking of the public out there who feel we've done a lot for this particular project. I think they deserve a shot. I'm going to give it to them."

The three refused to budge in their votes against the bond despite the impassioned pleas of their fellow councillors and members of the downtown business community.

Councillor James A. Sheets told his colleagues that "in voting for the bond I'm voting for the future of downtown Quincy."

He reminded them that in the past four months he has cast nine positive votes for the Campanelli project, although "I have not felt comfortable with it."

"I felt we have given away more than we should," he said. "I've lusted for each single issue as it came before the Council."

"Each time I asked myself the same question: Why?"

"And each time the same answer came back: From a fiscal point of view, Quincy is at a cross road. It is an older city and it does not have the leisure in expanding its tax base."

"We do not have the land options that other cities have. Yet like every other city and town in the Commonwealth we face double digit inflation that forces the cost of government up."

"We can cut the budget and the cost of government is still going to go up. How are we going to pay for that increase? There's only one answer and that's the property tax."

"Either the property tax is going to continue to go up and thousands of single family homeowners are going to have to pay more and more or we're going to have to expand the tax base."

"Where are we going to expand the tax base? Are we going to take the shore line of Houghs Neck or Wollaston and build condominiums? I certainly wouldn't support that."

"The easiest, the obvious and least controversial place is in downtown Quincy. If it doesn't happen there then it's not going to happen."

"And who is going to mortgage the future of the young people and the old people in this city by failing to support in every way humanly possible the development of this downtown area."

"It's not going to be this city councillor."

"If we don't start progressive, forward steps fiscally in this city we have no future. In voting for the bond I'm voting for the future of downtown Quincy."

"Parking is basic. To me, there is no better investment of this city's money."

"I have no problem at all explaining my vote to my people. In fact, I'm happy to explain it. I'm investing in lower property taxes for them down the road."

Edward Coyle, co-owner of Maxwell's Parrot restaurant and former president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, told the Council the bond is necessary for the revitalization of the downtown.

"We need a heck of a lot more than the 117 parking spaces we are losing," he said. "We need 250. We need a thousand. We have an opportunity before us to increase the spaces by 100 per cent. It's part of a fine project in the downtown area."

"I hear the city councillors expressing concern over the citizens of Quincy. I have an equal concern for the citizens of the city."

"Hancock St. is a constant problem to keep rented. Developers are looking at this City Council and this city and saying, 'Can Quincy get its act together? Can we come in without a two or three year delay in development in downtown Quincy?'"

"The well is running dry in the business community. We need help. We need breathing room. We need that signal that goes out that says downtown is ready to be developed."

Allowing downtown Quincy to deteriorate further, said Coyle, not only means increased taxes for everyone in Quincy but it means increased prices in the stores.

"It costs me $100 to cook the first hamburger for lunch," he said. "How can I get the price down to $1.50 if it is the only hamburger I cook?"

Also speaking in favor of the bond were:

David Leitch of Burgin, Platner Insurance Co., Richard Barker of Barker's, Jack London of the Quincy Furniture Co., Andrew Walsh of the Quincy Business Council, Carmine D'Olimpio of the Quincy Building Trades Council, William Kelley of the Hancock Bank, and developer Paul Ricciardi, who has plans to renovate the Greenleaf Building across the street from the garage.

"The first thing tenants want to know is can we park downtown," said Ricciardi and he reminded the Council that "there is no such thing as the status quo, you only slide back."

Councillor Daniel G. Raymond, aware that he was fighting a losing battle for the bond, suggested that the Planning Department amend the city's lease with Campanelli to assure at least 117 spaces for transients in the garage.

"If we are getting involved in taking spaces away from the downtown then I want nothing to do with the project," he said. "We've given enough but I'm not going to sacrifice space that we have now. That's too much to ask."

"I'd just as soon keep what we have and maybe get another developer to try something else."

Raymond called it a "Dis-service to the downtown merchants and the people of Quincy if we construct this building and take away parking from the people who have stayed with the city during the hard times as well as the good."

"It is incumbent upon us not to remove spaces without returning them back to the merchants but also we should increase if we can the amount of parking in this area."

"We ask the question: 'Can we afford to construct these two additional levels? I think at this crucial time in Quincy's development we should ask: 'Can we afford not to increase this garage by two floors?'"

Raymond noted that the Burgin Parkway Extension, which is expected to be completed in the spring of 1983, will be bringing people into Quincy from Braintree and Boston in a matter of minutes.

"One of the areas that these motor vehicles will be discharged is right in this particular location," he said. "I think it's a perfect spot to have two bottom floors of shopper-oriented parking."

"Not to build parking for these cars is bad enough but to take away the parking that they have now is to do a disservice to the merchants and the taxpayers of this city."

WHICH PATIENTS SHOULD FLY?

An illness in their early years, used a crude rule of thumb of acceptance of "passengers." Anyone who can walk a city block, climb a flight of stairs, and who looks and acts normal, can fly. Recent medical studies have proven this rule to be a good one. The city of making a block of climbing a flight of stairs compares with the stress of breathing in an altitude of 5,000 to 7,000 feet.

The fact is that the average four-hour jet flight rises at about 35,000 feet, but passengers are exposed to the equivalent of the altitude of Denver, Colorado, the "mild high," only. Although there is slightly less oxygen in the air at that altitude, the reduction is easily tolerated by most people.

If a patient with lung or circulation problems has difficulty in breathing, oxygen, and to what would be heard at sea level, can be delivered onboard the plane.

Clare Answell

WEEK OF MARCH 6

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19
Changes in home — including move — are accentuated. You're especially gifted at decorating, building. Relations between older relatives strained, it's up to you to play diplomat.

PISCES — February 20-March 20
Romance takes up much more time, partnerships generally are accented. Acquisitions emphasized, which suggests shopping for antiques, attending auctions, inheriting pet.

ARIES — March 21-April 20
You're one step ahead of world, which may mean people don't make much sense to you — and vice-versa. But everyone agrees you're something of financial genius; you can make key gain by weekend.

TAURUS — April 20-May 22
Your sense of fun in fine form. Use in positive way; cheer up someone who's a little low, submit best jokes to humor magazine. Assistance you've hoped for arrives by Wednesday.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21
A loving week; you could write sonnet about way you feel now. Watch out for nosy relatives who say they're merely concerned. Judgment is fuzzy after weekend, so put off practical decisions if you can.

CANCER — June 22-July 22
Education emphasized, and there's overlapping theme of romance. Friends more candid than expected on weekend. Travel tie-ups make life confusing Monday. Emphasize family fitness now.

LEO — July 23-August 22
No matter what you say, family seems opposed. No matter what you ask, you're answered with another question. Despite these frustrations it's positive week — thanks to career advancement, surprise communiques.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22
Brace yourself for unexpected expenses, new obligations, but prepare for weekend of love, laughter. Unusual messages arrive Monday - Tuesday. You may decide on new look by Wednesday.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22
Remarks you make take on special shades of meaning — which probably are not intended. Helping hands get in way on weekend; you may have to turn down assistance. Financial gains accented Tuesday.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21
Don't stand on ceremony; write, phone, issue invitations — even if not your turn. Someone may win compliments for work you've done; speak up politely but promptly. Affections are sweetest on weekend.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 22
You see flaw in someone you thought was perfect — and it's a relief. Relatives may seem petty, don't comment lest you appear guilty of same crime. Diet-wise, resistance very low.

CAPRICORN — December 23-January 20
Take more time to make preliminary plans before actually launching new projects. Credibility may be challenged Friday. Hints you've been dropping picked up Monday - Tuesday.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You require creative and challenging environment — fighting way upstream puts you in your element. Changeability works for and against you; adaptable, yes, but also too unsure of yourself. Teamwork is accented through year. Fall is important season, you can turn casual interest into profit-making scheme.

BORN THIS WEEK
March 6th, poet E. B. Browning; 7th, composer Maurice Ravel; 8th, actress Lynn Redgrave; 9th, chess champion Bobby Fischer; 10th, actor Barry Fitzgerald; 11th, poet T. Tasso; 12th, actress Liza Minnelli.

4,752 to 3,612, for Republican state committeewoman.

Koury captured his home city, 3,128 to 1,381.

Kathleen O'Donnell of Quincy, who was expected to have a tough fight to retain her Democratic state committeewoman post, defeated four opponents, outpolling all four of them together.

The count was O'Donnell 13,281, Marianne Doherty of Avon 1,543, Suzanne Sheahan Johnson of Quincy 1,780, Barbara M. Keefe of Braintree 6,820, and Mary A. O'Connell of Quincy 2,346.

Kathryn Roberts of Quincy won re-election as Republican state committeewoman by 4,800 to 1,132 for Joyce I. Baker, also of Quincy.

Democratic state committeewoman Peter O'Neill was unopposed.

The trio of Reagan, Bush and Anderson blanketed the big field in the Republican presidential balloting in Quincy.

Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee was well behind the front runners with only 275 votes.

Cong. Philip M. Crane of Illinois had 84 and former Texas Gov. John Connally, a Democrat who turned Republican a few years ago, netted 66.

Former President Gerald Ford of Michigan drew 85 written votes.

Among the others whose names were printed on the Republican ballot, Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas attracted four voters, perennial candidate Harold Stassen got two and California businessman Benjamin Fernandez got one.

Kennedy's name was written in by 10 voters on the Republican ballot and Carter's name was added by eight.

Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown Jr. of California, who didn't campaign in Massachusetts despite the fact that his name was on the ballot, had only 640 votes.

Quincy's vote totals were delayed for some 10 hours after the polls closed due largely to a ward committee fight in Ward 2 that saw rival slates of 35 candidates opposing each other.

Ward 2, precinct 2, the last result to reach City Hall, came in at 5:45 a.m. Full totals were not available for another hour.

Card, who also served as state coordinator for Bush in addition to his own state committee race, came out of Quincy trailing Koury by some 1,800 votes.

He recouped handsily in the towns, however, leading 2,315 to 117 in Braintree; 815 to 23 in his hometown of Holbrook and 241 to 44 in Avon.

Roberts emerged from Quincy with an 800 vote margin over Baker and increased it with leads of 1,519 to 943 in Braintree, 410 to 243 in Holbrook and 172 to 92 in Avon.

O'Donnell's strongest challenge for the Democratic state committeewoman post came, as expected, from Keefe, whom she defeated for the spot four years ago.

She blanketed the field in Quincy with 11,171 votes to 2,071 for runnerup O'Connell, 1,567 for Johnson, 1,311 for Keefe and 428 for Doherty.

The margin was more than enough to resist a strong Braintree showing by Keefe, who drew 4,800 votes in her hometown to 1,368 for O'Donnell.

Expert Assures:

No Reason To Panic Over Shipyard Asbestos Scare

There is no reason for Quincy Point residents to panic.

There was no rain of lethal asbestos dust, as one published report would have it, nor is everyone in the community in imminent danger of contracting cancer.

But, says a nationally known authority on asbestos and its hazards, it wouldn't hurt for anyone experiencing a shortness of breath to have the reasons checked out.

Dr. Irving J. Selikoff was referring to his Quincy study when he said 80 to 85 per cent of shipyard workers surveyed had some problems with breathing due to asbestos fibres.

"But that 85 per cent doesn't refer to any of the people living in the locale one or two miles around the perimeter of the shipyard," says Dr. Robert W. Clubb.

Dr. Clubb, who is medical director of the National Asbestosis Foundation, attended one of the controversial seminars at the Harvard School of Public Health at which Dr. Selikoff spoke.

"As far as I know," he said, "Dr. Selikoff said specifically that this was the Quincy study. I'm not aware that he mentioned any percentage for the people who lived in the neighborhood."

Dr. Selikoff touched off a furor in Quincy Point when his remarks at the Feb. 19 seminar in Boston were interpreted to mean that residents of the Point may have undergone a lethal rain of asbestos dust.

Sen. Paul D. Harold called for the state to send a bus with X-ray equipment into Quincy Point to examine residents for lung damage and possibly cancer from the asbestos fibres at the shipyard.

Dr. Clubb said the National Asbestosis Foundation, which is based in Boston, is trying to obtain a transcript of Dr. Selikoff's remarks from his office at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York.

Dr. Clubb said Dr. Selikoff appeared at two seminars on Feb. 19 and that he attended only the morning session so he is not aware of what Dr. Selikoff might have said in the afternoon.

The figures he heard, he said, "involve those who were directly involved with a lot of exposure to asbestos," meaning the shipyard workers themselves.

"This figure is not too unlike the one that we have found," he said, "that 95 per cent of all people who have had repeated exposure to the asbestos fibre developed a

Orders Budgets Cut

Tobin Warns Of $40 Tax Hike

By TOM HENSHAW

City department heads presented their budget recommendations for fiscal 1981 to Mayor Tobin Monday morning.

The Mayor said he examined the figures, learned that they represented a possible $40 tax rate increase, and sent them back to the departments with orders to cut them in 48 hours.

Tobin indicated that he gave the department heads a green light to recommend layoffs of city workers in order to bring their budgets back under the 4 per cent state tax cap.

He does not yet have the $39 million school budget, he said, but his recommendation to the City Council will be that all money in excess of the 4 per cent cap ought not pass.

The Mayor has until April 7, or 90 days following his inaugural, to get the budget in the hands of the City Council under legislation passed by the state legislature last year.

Tobin said Auditor Charles Shea and William Grindlay, who has been acting as budget coordinator, worked through the weekend to prepare and analyze the budget for him Monday morning.

"The auditor projected that we would be facing a $40 tax rate increase," he said. "That is totally unacceptable to me."

The Mayor said the projection was based on state reimbursement figures contained in last year's cherry sheet and reports from the State House that those figures will not be increased for 1981.

Tobin and his financial advisors met all day Monday with department heads and, he said, "we informed everyone that they had to make major cutbacks in their department budgets."

Did that mean layoffs of city workers?

"You can draw any conclusion you wish," said Tobin. "It's up to the department heads to determine

Two New Stores Open In Ross Parking Area

Two new stores, Tempo Fashions and Shoe Town, are scheduled to open today (Thursday) at 10:15 a.m. at the T. J. Maxx Building, Quincy Center.

The stores will employ 40 to 50 Quincy residents and will form a brand name discount plaza with T. J. Maxx and Garland, already in operation.

Tempo Fashions, a Braintree based firm with six stores in New England, carries brand name merchandise at discount prices. The firm's corporate name is Apparel Retail and there are 80 stores nation-wide.

Shoe Town offers brand name men's, women's and children's shoes at discount prices. There are 176 Shoe Town stores on the East Coast and this is the store's first attempt in a downtown location. A wholly owned subsidiary of Hecks Corporation of Charlestown, West Va., it is listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Hecks also owns Footwear Unlimited, the largest shoe wholesaler in the country.

A fifth shop, Dawn Figure Spa, is scheduled to open in the building this month.

4 Fires At Germantown Boatyard Set

Four recent fires at the former Quincy Adams Boatyard in Germantown were all "definitely set" and probably related, according to Deputy Fire Chief Carl Valenti.

The most recent fire, Sunday, caused about $8,000 damage to the main building of the former boatyard, now occupied only by a carcater. Previous fires struck a vacant storage and repair building on Feb. 14, two "derelict boats" on Jan. 8 and another boat in December, Valenti said.

"They all were definitely set," he added. "I would say they were related."

A 132-unit luxury apartment building is planned for the site, with construction scheduled to begin this year.

Valenti said he didn't feel the proposed development and the fires, were related and said reports that neighborhood youths were involved were being investigated. The fire department, police department and state fire marshal were all called into the investigation.

The apartments will be built by O'Connell Brothers Construction of Quincy for Clipper Associates. Peter O'Connell, a member of both firms, said work was scheduled to begin "in three to six months."

However, the current tight-money economy "could slow it down, or it could kill it," he added. Clipper Associates has an option to purchase the boatyard from current owner John Kazanjian.

Fireman George Parker suffered a slight eye injury during Sunday night's fire, Valenti said. The two-alarm blaze which struck the second story of the building, was reported around 6 p.m.

As in the case of the previous three fires, accidental causes have been ruled out, he said.

"It could not have been an accident," he said. "It had to be set."

The yard was founded in 1905 by famed boatbuilder Charles Hanouy and became the Quincy Adams Yacht Yard in 1934, according to H. Hobart Holly of the Quincy Historical Society.

Its products included pleasure yachts, ocean racers and, during World War II, submarine chasers. Little, if any construction has taken place at the yard since the early 1960's, Holly said.

Here's Real Inflation: Gas Stations Charging For Putting Air In Tires!!

As one almanac put it, "When gas stations start charging for putting air in tires, that's inflation!" and that's exactly what's happening at some Quincy gas stations.

Customers are being charged from 25 cents to $1 for the air, according to Building Inspector Allan MacDonald who told License Board members at Tuesday's meeting that he has received several complaints in the past two weeks about the practice.

MacDonald also said that people are being denied the use of toilets, or are charged to use the facilities.

Board members agreed that gas stations are licensed to provide all services, and the board will introduce an ordinance to the City Council requiring that gasoline service stations provide free air and toilet services.

Garner Takes Issue

Tobin Blasts 'Bungled' Suit On School Budget

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

A March 20 court date has been set in the teachers union and School Committee's suit seeking to force Mayor Arthur Tobin to approve raises for school employees.

But Tobin didn't wait till then to blast the "bungled" lawsuit he thinks will be thrown out of court.

"When all the smoke is cleared and all the truth is known, it will be seen that Mr. (teacher's union president Robert) Garner has bungled this whole thing. The very people he's fighting for raises for are going to be on the unemployment line," Tobin said last week.

Since last December, Tobin has refused to submit a school committee request for $1.4 million in extra funds to the city council. That money would fund raises negotiated with six school department unions for 1979-80.

Whether that request came in the form of a letter, an amendment to the original budget or a supplemental budget request is a matter of discussion.

Asst. School Supt. John Osterman told the school committee that their suit will claim that the request sent to Tobin was actually an amended budget, though committee members and Supt. Lawrence Creedon have been calling it a supplemental budget request for several months.

Tobin claims the request was actually neither, but a letter he was not legally bound to respond to.

"I never had a supplemental budget before me," he said last week. "All I've gotten is letter after letter after letter."

An actual supplemental budget was actually delivered to him the day after the tax rate was set, Tobin said. "After that, it was a moot question."

For that reason, Tobin says of the suit, "We expect it to be thrown out again."

School committee members who have been criticizing the mayor without knowing if the budget request was sent in the proper form "don't know what they're doing," while Garner, who has also criticized the mayor, "has absolutely bungled this whole thing," Tobin claimed.

"The rank and file teachers are not being told the truth... They're being lied to and they're being sold a bill of goods," Tobin continued.

Garner responded to Tobin's comments by noting that QEA members have been able to attend public meetings on the budget dispute as well as follow the controversy in the press.

"QEA members are college graduates who are capable of making their own decisions, and saying that they have been lied to or sold a bill of goods insults their intelligence," Garner said.

On his alleged "bungling" of the suit, Garner said, "The question of whether the Mayor or the QEA is right will be decided by a judge. Quincy mayors have always submitted amended budgets to the council and the QEA believes that that procedure is matter of law."

"The request was sent to the mayor in letter form, that is true," said Dr. Creedon. "That is the way it has been handled for the past 10 years."

If the mayor felt the request was improperly filed, Creedon said, "it would seem to me he had an obligation to so inform the School Committee."

The mayor never gave any indication that the letter was not an actual budget request until last week, Creedon said.

City Solicitor Robert Fleming noted that the teachers union's suit has been in the courts since last November without success.

"I've been in court three times on this," he said.

Referring to the school committee and teachers union, he said, "I think they're getting poor advice."

6th Graders Impress Classmates With Marijuana Cigarette

By TOM HENSHAW
It was startling news that filtered up to the principal of a Quincy elementary school. Two sixth grade boys, 11 years old, were showing around a marijuana cigarette and impressing their classmates with the audacity of it.

The boys were called down to the office. Their great adventure had turned sour. They were scared, eager to cooperate. The principal called John W. (Butch) Mahoney, social health coordinator for the Quincy public schools.

The kids had only the one cigarette. No, they hadn't smoked any. Not yet, anyhow. They had bought it just to show around, to brag about.

They bought it from an older boy of high school age, who offered it to them in a public facility frequented by the younger set. They pooled their resources to buy it. It didn't cost much. Only $1. Skip a lunch or two and it's yours.

Had they been approached before? No. What did they want the joint for? Just to show it around. Was there any more available? Sure. Did any of the other kids buy any? They didn't know. It's quite likely other sales were made, and not just for show and tell.

Mahoney was familiar with the place where the youngsters bought the joint. It was one of those public spots constantly under observation by drug officers. Although their description was vague, he knew who probably sold it to them, too. But nothing could be done.

The parents of the boys were called and the principal spoke to them. Their reactions were typical—surprise, anger, hurt, concern. They were more than anxious to work with the people from the school.

"Perhaps they would not have been so cooperative if we didn't have the evidence to show them," said Mahoney. "We need the evidence as a lever to reach the parents and the child. If we can't show the evidence parents are inclined to look upon their kids as little innocents."

Mahoney doesn't see them that way.

This is the fourth in a series of articles on the drug problem in Quincy.

"I see the world through the eyes of a child," he said. "I feel that kids know exactly what is going on. They see it every day, the swearing, the joints, the booze. The sophistication of kids 10 to 15 years old is incredible."

"Also we try to make the parents understand that it is not all the kid's fault. The peer pressure today is greater than ever before. It's impossible to go to a party and not be approached to smoke a joint."

The youngsters who purchased the marijuana cigarette were not punished by the school system. If they were junior high school kids, they would have been suspended for five days. But their behavior was monitored for some time. They have not been in trouble since.

"Our job is therapeutic, not punitive," said Mahoney. "If the kid is a junior high school student we have them talk to juvenile and drug officers and they write up a report. That's far more effective than arresting them. If we took them to court, the case would only be dismissed without finding or dismissed."

"Kids should have an opportunity to make a mistake and learn from it."

And there is no doubt in Mahoney's mind that smoking marijuana is a mistake, despite the fact that those who see no harm in puffing on a little grass can summon up an impressive list of authorities to support them.

Mahoney likes to cite the case of Dr. D. Harvey Powelson, the Berkeley, Calif., psychiatrist, who was once widely quoted by those who favor the legalization of the weed.

"Marijuana is harmless," Dr. Powelson was quoted as saying 13 years ago. "There is no evidence that it does anything except make people feel good. It has never made anyone into a criminal or a narcotics addict. It should be legalized."

Since then, after considerable work with students at the University of California, Dr. Powelson's thinking has done a 180 degree turn.

"There is no evidence whatsoever that marijuana is in any way good for you," he says now. "There's very strong evidence that it damages the brain, that it damages your ability to think, it damages your immunity system. I think marijuana should be illegal."

"There hasn't been enough education about the hazardous effects of marijuana," says Lt.

MARIJUANA CIGARETTE, which is known as a 'joint,' is just some dry weeds loosely wrapped in paper, but it sells for $1 on the street and means big money for dealers from Quincy to South America.

Walter Lynch, who was recently transferred at his own request out of the post of head of the Quincy Police Department's Drug Unit.

"Some judges, when they reprimand the kids that are brought before them, admit that they experimented with marijuana when they were young. They think they are doing the right thing to reach the young people. This is really bad."

"They should also add that the marijuana they smoked years ago has 10 times less strength than the marijuana smoked today. There is an obligation on the part of every judge to make it his business to know the other side of the coin, even if he doesn't believe it."

The ingredient in marijuana that gives you the high is something called THC—that is, tetrahydrocannabinol.

"A great deal of the marijuana consumed in the United States before 1970 was relatively weak and contained less than 1 per cent THC," says Dr. George K. Russell, who teaches genetics and molecular biology at Adelphi University in New York.

"Much of the currently available marijuana comes from Jamaica, Mexico and Colombia and has an estimated content of 3 to 4 per cent THC, an extremely potent dosage."

Of course, some of the grass that's sold locally does not have a very high content of THC.

"We grabbed one kid for selling grass in junior high school," said Mahoney. "And that's exactly what he was selling—grass. He was cutting the lawn and browning it in the garage."

"And, do you know what, the kids were getting high on it."

(Next week—What happened when an undercover officer was introduced into the student body of a local high school to identify the heavy dealers.)

THERMOMETER MERCURY SAFE

The mother called the doctor on the telephone to explain the symptoms of her child's illness. "What is his temperature?" asked the doctor. "I didn't take it," answered the mother. "I was afraid he might break it and swallow the mercury," then he'd really have a problem."

With all the talk of the danger of mercury in food, you might, like this mother, be worried about a child accidentally biting down on a thermometer, breaking the glass and swallowing the mercury.

Rest easy. The Journal of the American Medical Association reports that "accidental ingestion of metallic mercury from a home thermometer bulb is considered harmless."

Mercury is insoluble in digestive fluids and hence would not be expected to be absorbed in the gastrointestinal tract. The particles of glass are the chief hazard associated with broken mercury thermometers.

Goal At 80% Mark

Rotary Club's $1,000 Gift Lifts Massasoit Fund Over $23,000

A $1,000 contribution from the Quincy Rotary Club has brought the total raised so far by the Massasoit Development Committee to over $23,000.

This is almost 80 percent of the $30,000 the committee hopes to raise for renovations and improvements at Camp Massasoit, the Plymouth Boy Scout Camp used by Quincy Scouts for over 50 years.

Also received recently were donations from Local #1139 of the Public Employees Union of Quincy, the Quincy Little Loop Bowling League, as well as memorial contributions made by individuals.

The contributions from the Quincy Rotary Club will be used to renovate the Rotary All-Faith Chapel so that it may also serve as an environmental center for the camp.

The committee is still accepting donations and hopes its $30,000 goal will be reached soon. A souvenir booklet is in preparation and anyone wishing to be included should contact Joe Gelsomini at 328-4411.

Persons wishing to contribute building materials or camp equipment or willing to give a helping hand in the renovation efforts should contact Harold Crowley at 471-6881 or Dick Koch. Any individual or group wishing to make a money donation should contact Donald Gohl at the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

No Reason To Panic

By Dr. Clubb

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to you about the recent report in the Sun about the asbestos fibres in the shipyard," said Dr. Clubb.

So much for the rain of asbestos dust.

That is not to say that there is no reason for concern. Asbestos fibres, Dr. Clubb points out, can and sometimes do open the door to cancer by irritating the lungs. A checkup is recommended.

"But the important thing is not to panic," he adds.

Someone should have said that a long time ago when fear started stalking the streets of Quincy Point.

Points To Ponder

- It's somewhat ironic that good judgment often comes from experience and experience often comes from bad judgment.
- Former President Ford is considering getting into the presidential race. He may borrow his campaign slogan from a commercial—Ford has a better idea!
- The President has thus far only imposed voluntary wage and price controls. If guidelines were all that were needed, Moses would have brought us the Ten Voluntary Observances.
- Children are much more likely to follow parents' example than parents' lectures.
- When Winston Churchill was told that women would rule the world in the year 2000, he replied—Still!
- There is a real threat that major league baseball players will go on strike this spring. Of course the way some of them played at the end of last season nobody would be able to tell if they were on strike or not.

Committee To Make First Parish Church National Site Meets

A city-wide committee seeking increased federal funds for the historic United First Parish Church was scheduled to hold its first meeting last night (Wednesday).

The 14-member steering committee, headed by State Sen. Paul Harold and Richard Porter, will try to have the "Church of the Presidents" certified as a National Historic Site. This status would provide funding for badly needed repairs and maintenance at the church.

Also appointed last week was a 30-member advisory committee which includes honorary chairmen Mayor Arthur Tobin and Cong. Brian Donnelly and Charles Francis Adams, representing the Adams family, Adams' ancestors, John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives are in a crypt in the church's basement.

Wednesday's meeting was scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the church.

The telephone caller conducting a survey and wanting to know whether you preferred red or white wine. Just when you were expecting an important call.

You're patiently waiting your turn at a sales counter in a store, the clerk asks "Who's next?" and someone (usually a woman) barges up just in time to say "Me".

MBTA Legislative Authority Should Be Scrapped

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Efficient rapid transit, rail, and bus transportation in the Metropolitan Boston area and indeed throughout the state can be had by scrapping the MBTA's legislative authority, and creating a Mass. Port, Parking and Transit Authority.

The new authority would embrace the functions of the present Mass. Port Authority, the Mass. Parking Authority and the MBTA.

Low interest bonds of the Port Authority would be recalled and investors would have the opportunity to reinvest in other securities at substantially higher current interest rates.

A state wide transit authority, perhaps called the Public Transit Authority would emerge. Directors of this new PTA would have their terms of management co-terminus with the governor's and thus be responsible to the public through the elective process. The present MBTA Advisory Board would be abolished, and the real estate property tax would no longer have to bear the burden of supporting public transit.

Regional bus authorities would be set up comprising a city or groups of cities and towns that would operate independent bus routes tying into the rapid transit and rail stations. They would have sole authority to purchase, operate, maintain the buses, and establish the routes.

The authority would continue to expand the present heavy rapid transit lines and commuter rail lines in the Boston metropolitan area and establish such lines in other metropolitan areas such as Lowell, Lawrence, Springfield, Worcester, Fall River, New Bedford, Pittsfield, along with parking facilities.

Consideration would be given by the new authority to converting the Green Line, street car line, to heavy rapid transit on the Riverside Branch, in Boston, Brookline and Newton.

Financing would come from a statewide wage earners transportation tax, in addition to revenues generated by the fares, the present Port Authority and the present Parking Authority. Regional bus authorities would be subsidized in part from such revenues.

Shopper's buses would be established throughout the state and public transit bus routes might be so planned as to replace existing specialized and costly school bus routes.

The energy and transportation crisis is real, here and now, and will continue. Bold leadership is needed by the public from the Governor and the Legislature. Establishment by them of the Mass. Port, Parking, and Transit Authority, PTA, capable of meeting the challenges of the 21st century would be a display of such leadership.

Losers Rule Out Recount In Ward 2 Committee Vote

There will be no recount of votes cast for members of the Democratic Committee in populous Ward 2, where confusion reigned on election night last week.

A slate of 35 candidates headed by City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond defeated a slate of 34 topped by Kathleen O'Donnell by a margin of better than 2 to 1.

Miss O'Donnell said members of her slate caused after the election and decided that the cost to the city could not be justified for what is essentially a party function.

City Clerk John Gillis estimated that a recount would have cost the city at least $5,000.

"We are not claiming that there was any wrong-doing," said Miss O'Donnell. "It's just that there was so much confusion and ticket-splitting that the chances of mistakes were great."

Voters in the ward had the option of voting for the slate or their choice as a unit or voting for individual candidates and apparently many chose the individual route.

Raymond had 2,366 votes to top his slate while the last member, Michael J. Grant, had 1,883. O'Donnell had 1,037 while the last man on her ticket, Noel Haddad, had 767.

Nevertheless, Miss O'Donnell was easily elected Democratic State Committee woman from Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon while not a member of her ward committee.

"My colleagues are still chuckling about that," she said. "Quincy is unique."

She said her post on the state committee will make her an ex officio member of the City Democratic Committee and, she added, "I will participate in it and help when I can."

O'Donnell said she witnessed the confusion in the ward on election night.

"There was a lot of ticket splitting," she said, "and I don't believe that many of the counters were instructed in the possible variations on the ballot."

"People were recounting the tally sheets at midnight and sending out for calculators. I can understand their problems."

Gillis, who was a candidate for the Ward 2 Committee himself on the winning ticket, said he made at least five trips to ward polling places during the night to straighten out problems.

The last return to reach City Hall from the polling places was Precinct 2 of Ward 2 at 5:45 a.m.

Miss O'Donnell said the members of her slate decided not to file for a recount after examining the expense.

"We know the financial condition of the city," she said, "and to demand that the city incur such an expense is not justified. We can't do it to our neighbors."

Gillis said the election pointed out once again the need for voting machines in Quincy, which is the largest city in eastern Massachusetts still using the paper ballot.

He said he has a $200,000 item in the city clerk's budget for 1981 for the purchase of voting machines of the punch card type that are used in Weymouth.

The item is not likely to survive the mayor's austerity cuts.

Gillis said there is a bill in the State Legislature that would allow the city 50 cents per voter in state funds for the purchase of voting machines.

"The big knock against voting machines," he said, "is putting all that money into something that is used only two times a year at the most."

A rival slate of four persons seeking spots on the Democratic Ward 5 Committee also was overwhelmed by the regular slate headed by City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath.

J. Thomas Mullaney headed the four with 667 votes. Paul L. Bregoli had 612, Michael P. Linnane 533 and Virginia A. Kurtzman 421.

McGrath amassed 1,716 votes in heading his ticket with the low man on the slate, Alfred O'Connor, getting 928.

The complete tally in Ward 2 went like this:

Quincy Residents Aid Evicted Weymouth Family

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

It is not the healthy who need a physician, but they who are sick.

With Biblical quotations like that (Mark 2:17), phone calls, checks and hand-written notes, dozens of area residents have supported Rev. William McCarthy of St. John's Church in his aid to the Gruchy family of Weymouth.

Mrs. Sandra Gruchy and six of her seven children were evicted Feb. 29 after their home was condemned as "unfit for human habitation." Rev. McCarthy's part in helping the family find a new home attracted a handful of "hate calls" and at least one "critical letter."

What would prompt St. John's to pay the bill for a woman who, so obviously, has no "understanding" for "others' property, feelings or her own worth?" asked one parishoner in a letter.

Since then, Rev. McCarthy

reports about 20 letters and several dozen phone calls have been received at St. John's praising his aid to the family. Many persons included money to be used for the Gruchys and $535 had been received by Monday afternoon.

Donations have ranged from several $5 gifts to $240 collected by St. John's charismatic prayer group. All of the money will be turned over to the Gruchy's, he said.

"You have demonstrated the true meaning of Christianity in your efforts to help," wrote one woman.

"Maybe we do have to walk a mile in another's shoes," commented another. "Last summer I was sick with ulcers for two months. Housework was the last thing on my mind. And I only have three children."

Those who do not understand are truly to be pitied," said a third.

One woman left a cake at St. John's rectory for the Gruchy family; yet another offered a temporary home for the children until they were settled.

Mrs. Gruchy was referred to St. John's by the Quincy welfare office one week after she had been evicted. Welfare would pay only for the first week's bill at a local motel. After meeting with Mrs. Gruchy, Rev. McCarthy agreed to pay the family's bill out of his own pocket, until they were relocated. No St. John's funds will be given to the family, he said.

The home at 55 Samoset Ave., Weymouth is owned by Quincy policeman Corady J. Solomoni.

Newspaper reports of his aid to the family resulted in three or four critical phone calls and the single negative letter. Since then, public support has swung overwhelmingly in support of his helping the Gruchys, reflecting "the Christian charitable spirit" of those in and around the Quincy Center parish, Rev. McCarthy said.

General Dynamics Workers Donate 96 Units Of Blood

Some 107 General Dynamics Shipbuilding Division workers recently donated 96 units of blood in an "Extra Effort" bloodmobile held by the American Red Cross Blood Services and Greater Quincy Chapter.

The bloodmobile was held to meet a critical blood shortage and General Dynamics was identified as the best candidate to fill the need even though workers had just donated 276 units of blood one month before.

William Smith, General Dynamics blood chairman, helped plan the bloodmobile and Carl Wallace, General Dynamics Industrial Relations manager, mailed 5,000 employees personal invitations to give blood.

The bloodmobile was conducted by 14 American Red Cross volunteers, under the leadership of Mildred Ambrosia, blood volunteers chairman, and 12 nurses, under the direction of Cecelia Becker, head nurse.

Said Gregory F. Galvin, blood services chairman for the Greater Quincy chapter, "This is an excellent example of how an organization like the American Red Cross with the support of a civic minded industry like General Dynamics can meet a community need."

"We are most appreciative to General Dynamics for their hard work in making this bloodmobile possible and successful," said Galvin.

QHA Delays Decision On Firing Plasterer

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The Housing Authority will try again at its March 19 meeting to make a decision on the possible dismissal of plasterer Richard Ojala.

The authority had planned to consider Ojala's dismissal at its March 5 special meeting but delayed the matter at the request of his attorney, Richard F. Kerr.

Ojala indicated to the board Feb. 20 that he wished the meeting to be in closed-door executive session. He later changed his mind on advice of Kerr and requested the open session. However, newspaper reports stating the meeting would be closed may have discouraged some from attending and defeated the purpose of the open session, Kerr claimed in requesting the delay.

Ojala was hired by the authority at its Jan. 16 meeting.

After the March 5 meeting, Chairman Carmine D'Olimpio said the QHA had received complaints about Ojala's work. Members of the board then visited Germantown one Saturday to examine some of his work.

"I did not think it was of good quality. The board members indicated the same," D'Olimpio said.

Member Rev. William McCarthy said of Ojala's work, "I felt it was not up to par," but added he thought the new employee should have a chance to improve.

A master plasterer was asked to evaluate Ojala's work as an independent observer and said, "it could improve," according to Rev. McCarthy.

Ojala, a Holbrook resident, declined any comment after the March 5 meeting.

He was hired over the objections of D'Olimpio and member Alphonzo Papile who claimed candidate Robert Ceriani of Weymouth was more qualified for the job. Ceriani had filled the job on a temporary basis for a year and a half and won the unanimous recommendation of a screening committee, which included Superintendent of Maintenance James D'Olimpio and QHA Administrator Clement O'Brien.

When asked why Ceriani was passed over and Ojala hired, Chairman D'Olimpio said, "it was inconceivable to me. You'd have to ask the other board members."

Rev. McCarthy has said that the plasterer's position was advertised as also involving ceramic work and masonry. While Ceriani was an "excellent" plasterer, he said, Ojala had experience in all three fields.

An open-session discussion on the matter is planned for the authorities March 19 meeting.

I think it's going to be a long, drawn-out thing," said O'Brien.

How Valle's Got to Massachusetts By Way of Maine.

Since 1935, Valle's has been taking the taste of our customers very seriously. It's a tradition.

For years Valle's has been the famous eating spot for vacationers in Portland, Maine. There was a lady from Atlanta who loved our Prime Rib; the Fort Lauderdale couple who raved about how fresh and well prepared our seafood was; the family who half-threatened to kidnap our Chef and his recipes, because they wanted that great Valle's taste in Massachusetts.

In 1960, we decided to take our great food to all the people who loved us. Now there are Valle's restaurants from Maine to Florida. That's why we're serving Valle's choicest cuts of beef and freshest of North Atlantic seafood right here.

During the month of March, join us in a special celebration of the Valle's tradition of serving only the highest quality food at reasonable prices... a tradition we couldn't have started without you.

where to cut. They know their departments and their problems. "When department stores, offices or small businesses run into economic problems they have layoffs. That's the message I'm sending to the school department and the rest of the budgets. "There is no one who is sacrosanct. Mayor Tobin is not going to announce a $40 increase in the tax rate. No way. I don't believe the taxpayers of the city can stand any more."

Tobin said he is sure that there will be a "reasonable increase in the tax rate."

"People understand a reasonable increase," he said. "What they don't understand is the $20, $30 and $40 increases. That's why the red flag went up on Monday."

The Mayor said department heads were told "these were your figures last year. This is where your projections are now. You are to stay within 4 per cent. If we feel that even that is too high, it will be cut further."

No Reason To Panic Over Asbestos

shortness of breath.

"There is some possibility that we may go over there and screen the people around the one or two mile perimeter and do breathing tests on them

"Those who fail the breathing test should be X-rayed but I don't think it is feasible to go in and get an X-ray of everybody. But if there is a breathing loss there certainly should be more study."

"The most important thing is early diagnosis.

"But the one thing that should be emphasized is that if an individual has asbestosis or is exposed to asbestos fibres repeatedly it doesn't mean he is going to get cancer.

"What it does mean is that he is going to have some problems with shortness of breath and progressive problems if not treated. It is important to remember that this is treatable."

In the long run, Dr. Clubb said, inhaling asbestos fibres can lead to cancer.

"When an individual inhales asbestos fibre," he said, "it irritates the lining of the lungs and this irritation can go on to produce bronchiogenic carcinoma (lung cancer).

"But any prolonged irritation of any place in the body will lead to cancer. It is the irritation that does it."

"Under normal conditions in our society, one out of 90 individuals develop lung cancer."

"When an individual has been exposed to asbestos fibre over repeated periods of time this changes down to about one in 10."

"If an individual smokes, the one in 10 will become one in three."

Dr. Clubb said Dr. Selikoff "in reality is Dr. Asbestos. He is the one who really got the problem of asbestos brought to light starting back in 1962."

"Regardless of what he said at the seminar," said Dr. Clubb, "the important thing is not to panic. This thing has been around for a hell of a long time."

"There are two things we've got to get across:

"One is that the problem that makes people pulmonary cripples is a treatable thing. I have patients who were pulmonary cripples and have undergone treatment and are back working now."

"The other thing is that by treating the bronchitis (i.e., the inflammation of tubes in the lungs) and removing some of the irritation the incidence of cancer will be reduced."

Camp Fire

Posters Display At Main Library

Posters from the Wak-Ma-Suda Camp Fire Group of Quincy will be displayed in the Central Children's Room, Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center, during the week of March 17.

The posters depict what Camp Fire is and what it means to its members. A free standing display, "Camp Fire Then and Now", contrasts Camp Fire pictures of 1910 and 1912 with today's new symbol and pictures of girls in the new uniform. The display also shows badges that can be earned.

The 1980 Bride

Modern weddings reflect old and new

In Medieval times, the bride and bridegroom kissed over a pile of small cakes. When an enterprising baker decided to mass all the cakes together and spread frosting over them, the modern tiered wedding cake was born.

The practice of tossing the bouquet originated during the Colonial period in American history when the bridal party seized the newlyweds' stockings and tossed them over their shoulders at the bride and groom—the first ones to hit the target, ushers aiming for the groom and bridesmaids aiming for the bride, the next to be married.

And, with the Victorian era was born the white wedding gown, a symbol of purity.

Everlasting rituals

Marriage has survived through the ages and, along with it, tradition. Although the customs, rituals and beliefs associated with marriage and the wedding ceremony have been altered and updated, they are still a part of the modern-day wedding.

Courtships, engagement rings, flowers, gifts, the act of "giving away the bride," the exchange of vows and wedding bands, and the honeymoon all define this "rite of passage."

Beginning in Rome

From the days of the Romans, traditions have been handed down, changing along the way as they are reinterpreted by people.

The institution of the family was once thought of as a liaison formed for political, economic and emotional security. The partnership was often prearranged, with each member taking on clearly defined duties.

Modern meaning

Today, couples enter into marriage based on love. The roles of husband and wife are not as cut and dry as they were in the past—partners grow individually as well as together.

Although the original meanings of certain rituals have gone by the wayside, the rites remain.

We no longer believe, as did the citizens during the Middle Ages, that a vein runs from the ring finger to the heart. However, it is on this finger that the wedding band is still placed.

The Romans also believed that the goddess Juno blessed those married in June. Today, the month of June is still the most popular month in which to be wed.

And, everyone gathers together, dressed in special clothes, to wish good luck and happiness to the new couple.

Through the ages

There is something special, sacred, about an action or belief that has survived since the days of Caesar, passed from generation to generation by young, old, rich and poor.

Although recent years have shown a return to tradition, the future will inevitably bring further change as couples write their own vows, celebrations change in style and format, bridal showers include male guests, and the stiff formal amenities become more casual and enjoyable for all.

Signs of love

The traditions, however, will remain—symbols of the love between two people who have made a commitment to each other in the eyes of family and friends.

As their ancestors have done in the past, they will embark on a new life together, creating new memories and passing down traditions to future generations.

The beauty and elegance of a wedding, whether carried out in a simple or elaborate manner, will be forever preserved in family histories.

REMEMBER YOUR BELONGINGS

When you pack for your honeymoon, amidst all the hustle and bustle of last minute plans for your upcoming wedding, be sure not to forget things.

If you're heading for a resort area, where shopping is necessarily limited, this is particularly important.

If you're city-bound, however, you'll probably be able to find in stores almost anything you inadvertently left behind.

RELAX AND ENJOY YOUR SPECIAL DAY

Don't hurry the morning of your wedding, nervous as you're sure to be. Force yourself to take a deep breath and relax. You'll be a prettier, more radiant bride for it.

Visions of loveliness reflected in pictures

You're about to celebrate one of the most memorable days of your life—your wedding day.

Before you know it, your visions will turn into reality and then a memory—an album filled with photographs of a dream come true.

These suggestions should help you look special both on your wedding day and in those cherished portraits you'll keep for years to come.

Beauty shines through

Overall good health is important for good looks and is reflected in pictures. So, be sure to get plenty of rest and eat well-balanced meals.

Remember, most brides-to-be lose weight from nervousness, and stringent dieting isn't necessary to keep in shape.

Beautiful skin resulting from daily cleansing and moisturizing is an asset for you and will shine through in your photos.

If you notice a few blemishes from nervousness, try compresses made with a solution of chamomile tea to soothe redness.

A weekly manicure should begin well in advance of your wedding so nails and hands will look pretty. Start with a creamy cuticle remover to refine cuticles.

Since hands show up in photos, moisturize often. For the camera, try a few drops of make-up foundation to cover redness and imperfections.

Experiment ahead for the color polish you'd like to wear. For problem nails, try polishes designed for strengthening.

Keep in mind that lighter shades make hands and nails look longer.

A bride's make-up should be natural but not so light that she's left with a pale face in photos!

Highlight your bone structure with contouring and shading. Use foundation slightly lighter than your base to cover shadows under and around eyes, and at corners of your nose and mouth.

Contour with a darker shade under the cheekbones and jawline, or on the tip of the nose.

For color accents, sweep your favorite shade on cheekbones and lightly at the tip of the chin and across the bridge of the nose.

Accent eyes with a subtle liner on the inner rim of eyelids, curl lashes and use muted shadow colors.

Say it with your lips

Carefully designed lips also are an important beauty statement for a smiling bride, so outline lips before filling in with color and gloss.

Just remember, with a little time spent on beauty care, you're sure to be a vision of loveliness on your wedding day with a beautiful photograph album full of memories to prove it.

Guidelines for selecting your wedding cake

The cutting of the cake is a traditional feature of the wedding reception. Family and friends take special notice of the beauty in this symbol of union.

When everyone takes a bite of your wedding cake, they will be sharing in the joy of the occasion. You will want your cake to be attractive to look at as well as satisfying to the palate.

Start shopping the bakeries as soon as you set the date. Consider professional bakers and friends of the family as well.

A home-made cake can be just as delicious as one purchased from a store.

Consider the cake offered in your caterer's reception package. It's often cheaper and more convenient than shopping for one on your own.

Take into account the time of year of your wedding, remembering that the temperature will influence the freshness upon delivery.

Order the cake three months in advance, specifying to the baker how many people it must serve.

Get all the details on the receipt—size, colors, flavors and designs, to make sure you get the cake you ordered.

Call and confirm everything two days ahead of your wedding day.

GIVE A GIFT THAT SHOWS YOU CARE

A wedding is a special occasion—a time to give a gift that sends your best wishes to the newly married couple as they embark on their journey through life, together.

A unique present, something that will not be duplicated over and over again, will be appreciated by the newlyweds and show them that time and effort was taken to choose something extra special for them.

Need some original gift ideas?

If possible, find out the color and decorating preferences of the couple and select a wall hanging or painting that complements their taste.

Give a planter or hanging basket in an interesting macramé weave, made from various types of ropes and cords. Fill the basket with a plant or a bouquet of flowers.

Champagne buckets, wine decanters, dessert dishes, vases and cheese boards are more traditional gifts yet items that are not commonly part of a newly put-together household—they are luxuries for the two-some just starting out.

Hobbyists will appreciate any addition to their favorite pastime, such as the latest in camping gear, sailing equipment or a weekend of skiing.

And, for those who possess a creative talent, there is nothing like a gift made with the giver's own hands and ingenuity.

Rings around the couple . . .

Those lovely rings are traditional symbols of love

With a young couple, when it comes to love, it usually comes to rings—that all-important engagement ring—and, more and more, young marrieds are requesting double-ring ceremonies, the Jewelry Industry Council reports.

Choosing the rings is traditionally a shared experience, with the bride-to-be and her intended visiting their favorite jeweler for the selection.

Evaluating a diamond puts many a young couple in a quandary, particularly when it comes to what is known in the trade as the diamond's four "C's"—Cut, Color, Clarity and Carat weight.

The value of the stone

These four elements determine the diamond's worth, and it is quite possible for a smaller diamond to be worth more than one that is larger.

Cut is the way a diamond is shaped, with traditional styles being the brilliant or round, the emerald, the pear, the oval and the boat-shaped marquise cut.

Color refers to the crystal clear purity that is most coveted for engagement diamonds.

Clarity involves the fact that diamonds form naturally with "inclusions"—carbon spots, bubbles and small internal cracks. Such inclusions do not mar the stone's visible beauty if they cannot be seen by the naked eye.

Ask your jeweler

Your jeweler will be glad to show you any such inclusions under magnification, and determine if they affect the diamond's price.

A carat is the standard measure of diamond weight, and each carat is equal to 100 points. For example, a half carat diamond is 50 points.

Often, a bride-to-be will choose an engagement ring that has the center stone flanked with

THE HAPPY RING OF LOVE—Young couples often select his and her wedding rings at the same time they choose the bride-to-be's engagement ring, the Jewelry Industry Council reports. Your jeweler will help you choose a ring pattern that complements the engagement ring and, if you wish, the wedding rings can be engraved at this time.

Smaller diamonds.

Style can be a deciding factor in choosing a ring, based upon the bride-to-be's hand shape. Square hands look best with slim, tapering designs such as the marquise.

Small hands are complemented by delicate styles, and lean hands can take a large, more elaborate ring.

Whatever her preference

In addition to choosing a specific cut, the bride-to-be has her choice of contemporary, modern or antique styles.

Often, couples have the engagement ring engraved. When the engagement ring is chosen, the wedding band is often selected at the same time so that the two designs complement each other.

Choose groom's ring

Since the double ring ceremony is so popular, this is when the man's ring is selected and engraved.

On her wedding day, the Council notes, the bride removes her engagement ring from her third finger left hand, and many wear it on their wedding day on their right hand.

Later, some women use the wedding rings as "keepers" above their engagement rings, the Council reports.

Unique shower ideas bride, guests and host will enjoy

Almost anyone can host a shower (except members of the bride's and groom's immediate families, of course), and almost anything can be the theme.

A little ingenuity can result in a shower the bride and her guests will remember and smile about forever.

The editors of Eride's magazine have come up with some great new shower ideas.

To give the guest of honor the "Red Carpet" treatment, plan a party to shower the bride with lavish, indulgent gift items.

Gifts of scented bath oil, a bottle of champagne, a certificate for ice cream or a sparkling pair of earrings for the wedding day are appropriate presents for this type of gathering.

For the couple who are destined to become "Mr. and Mrs. Fix-It," a shower for women, and for men too, with a hardware theme is fun and different.

Make a table out of sawhorses and a wooden plank (the couple can use it in their new home till the furniture is delivered), and plan a hearty meal of roast beef, cheeses, hero rolls, and salad. Serve oil and vinegar in oil cans. Dish out apple pie for dessert.

Dress the couple up in hard hats before they open the presents. With gifts of tool chests, tape measures, paint brushes and screwdrivers, the pair will be ready to start putting together their new house or apartment.

A "Round-the-Clock" shower gives company the opportunity to show their creative and humorous side. Each guest is assigned an hour of the day, then brings a gift to match. The guest encloses a note telling why she made her choice.

To start the creative juices flowing, an alarm clock at 7 A.M., coffee mugs at 8 A.M., and an apron at 9 A.M. for the breakfast chef—the bride's husband!

Serve Bloody Marys. Chicken à la King in party shells, salad or vegetable and a sweet dessert.

"A thoughtful hostess will plan the shower that best suits the personality and special needs of the couple," says Helen Johnson, Managing Editor of Bride's.

"The hostess can also encourage the bride to list items from the housewares department at her favorite store's Wedding Gift Registry.

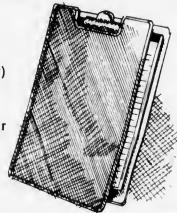

"Then the hostess can indicate on the shower invitation where the bride is registered—that way it's easiest for guests to find a gift the bride will use and love."

Spending days in the sun?

Be sure to protect your skin from those damaging rays

Planning a honeymoon of fun in the sun—tennis, swimming, sunning and sight-seeing?

You can return home with stories to tell and a deep dark tan that reflects the beautiful warm sunshine, or you can spend much of your vacation applying skin creams to return home flaking and peeling. Don't overdo it.

Take care of your skin

Skin care will probably not be uppermost on your list of honeymoon priorities but, if ignored, can put a damper on an otherwise wonderful vacation.

It is important to take precautions against over-exposure to the sun, both during and after your vacation.

tan your skin gradually, 10-20 minutes the first few days and an additional 5-10 minutes each subsequent day. Bask in the sun under the protection of sun preparations that block damaging sun rays.

For all complexions

Most department or drug stores sell numerous brands of sunscreens for every skin type. Remember that baby oil and cocoa butter are moisturizers—not protective sun blocks.

The sun's ultra-violet rays are the most intense from 10 AM to 12 noon when avid sun bathing should be avoided.

When you know you've had enough, and you will know, block out the sun. Put on a sun hat or go indoors.

Water does not block out the sun's rays—you can get a good burn in the water due to the reflection of the sun off of the water's surface.

Lanolin-enriched lotions or after sun smoothers are good moisturizers for after sun care.

They will help prevent dryness and wrinkling, which lead to the formation of unattractive lines in the years to come.

When the sun is hot!

Sometimes a terrible burn is unavoidable. If and when you find yourself feeling like a cooked lobster, cool down with a lukewarm bath, cold compresses, a soothing lotion and lots of shade.

A few preventive measures will protect you from the ultimate pain of a sunburn and allow you to enjoy a healthy and fun-filled honeymoon in the sun.

Echoes of antiquity . . .

"Roman-tic" the word for many wedding traditions

We have inherited many things from the Roman Empire. Our language is descended from Latin; many of our laws are based on those codified by the Ancient Romans.

We can thank our Roman predecessors for many architectural innovations, among them the arch.

And, not surprisingly, many of the customs, rituals and ceremonies associated with marriage as we know it today grew out of Roman traditions—their revels, their religious practices, their legal structure.

The idea of the wedding cake, wedding rings, the act of carrying the bride over the threshold of her new home—all these and a multitude of other wedding traditions had their roots in ancient Rome.

The Roman wedding, in form, was similar to the Greek and was largely derived from it.

A herald led the bride from her father's house, clothed in white, heavily veiled and crowned. Under her veil, she carried a bunch of herbs, the forerunner of the modern bouquet.

quet, which symbolized both fertility and fidelity, the two essential elements of the Roman marriage.

Preceded by someone carrying the nuptial torch, the Roman bride was brought to her husband's home, where she was carried over the threshold, crying loudly to show her unwillingness to leave her father's home.

During the wedding ceremony, prayers were said, and the bride and groom, seated side by side on an ox yoke, which represented marriage, shared cake (made with wheat, a symbol of fertility). Libations and prayers completed the ceremony.

Nuts, also symbols of fertility, were scattered after the feast, just as rice and confetti are thrown today.

Much of the religious ceremony outlined was centered around the family hearth, not performed in a temple, because it was at the hearth, the heart of the home, that the household gods, the lares and penates, were believed to dwell.

However, a Roman couple did not have to participate in a religious ceremony to be married. According to the law of usus, a form of what today is called common law marriage, if a woman dwelt with a man for a full year, without being separated from him for three nights, they were considered to be married.

The betrothal, in Roman times, was far more serious a commitment than it is today.

It foreshadowed the irreversibility of marriage and, under Roman law, the groom was required to provide security for the fulfillment of the bargain which had been struck.

The Romans were superstitious people and watched carefully for omens, making sure the auspices were good before taking any major step. Naturally, they were most concerned that weddings occur only at favorable times.

The old saying, "Marry in May, rue for aye," was perhaps an outgrowth of the Roman belief that May was an unlucky month in which to be married, as both the festival of the Bona Dea, the goddess of chastity, and the feast of the dead, the lemuralia, were celebrated at that time.

On the other hand, the most favorable time to enter into matrimony was at the waxing moon of late autumn.

At all times, someone who was able to read omens was employed, to determine the best time for the wedding to occur.

Which was only natural as, in Ancient Rome, marriage was for life, and the iron rings worn by Roman brides, the forerunners of the circlets of gold that adorn the fingers of modern brides, were the perfect symbol of this.

Basic homemaking hints for newlyweds

Here are some basic tips that can help you make light of housework:

- Set up a schedule. Probably, you both have full-time jobs, and time is precious. If you set aside an hour each evening for laundry, vacuuming or whatever—and arrange in advance who does what—you'll be able to accomplish household chores without hassles.

- Make sure you know what materials your possessions are made of—wood, glass, chrome, plastic and the like—so you don't make any mistakes when cleaning them.

Clean-up can be accomplished quickly and easily if you can use the same cleaner for several chores.

- Straighten up every day, but just once. Decide whether morning or evening is most convenient for you; that's when you should put away newspapers and magazines, hang up your clothes with the mail, and the like.

• Anytime your living room is such a mess you don't know where to begin, start with surfaces. Clear off everything that doesn't belong where it is and put it away. The instant improvement will be encouraging.

- It's usually wise to dust before vacuuming. The dust that lands on the floor will come up in the vacuum cleaner.

Children share in the fun

If there are going to be small children in your wedding procession, a flower girl, ring bearer or both, make sure they know what they are going to do. If necessary go over what will be happening several times so both you and the youngsters will be comfortable and confident.

Remember that they too will be both excited and nervous about this big event, their chance to share some of your limelight, and that they will be doing their very best on your most important day to make it just a little bit more special.

Grown to be wed!

Every bride in the States carries flowers with her on her wedding day, but how many can say that they are carrying flowers that were planted especially for their wedding day on the day that they were born?

In Germany there are many young women who can make this claim, due to one of the loveliest ethnic bridal traditions of all.

When a baby girl is born in Germany her mother plants a tiny plant called a myte. This will be grown and nurtured until her wedding day when the flowers will be used to decorate her headpiece (they are usually woven into a crown). The groom also wears a sprig of the same myte in his lapel.

Alas! Times do change and progress takes its toll. In today's busy world, many German girls now wear artificial myte, with urban spread cancelling out the possibilities of a wedding plant for every newborn Fraulein.

Yet the spirit of the myte—a symbol of continuity, unity, and love as a beautiful living and flowering entity—will continue to add its special touch of grace to German weddings.

Brides: run an efficient kitchen in your home

Most of us remember our mom's kitchen as a family meeting place, suffused with great cooking aromas and good things to eat. Now that it's your turn, and your kitchen, run it efficiently and perform your duties in an enthusiastic fashion, and it will still have pleasant associations for you.

An artistic touch

Cooking can be creative. Most chefs consider themselves rare artists, rather than slaves of the stove. Adopt the same attitude in your kitchen.

Experiment with unusual dishes from a time-honored cookbook when the time permits. For rushed moments, get down pat a set of easy-to-prepare meals; or have quantities of frozen "whatever" on hand from a previous cooking spree.

When you get right down to basics, it's not the cooking you mind. It's the cleaning-up afterwards that turns you off.

Try wiping up spatters and spills as you go. Spray a degreaser and cleaner on pots and pans and soak in water in the sink, and the after-the-meal clean-up will go swiftly.

Arrange your kitchen with safety in mind. Place paper towels, dish towels, plastic cups, electric cords and pressurized containers away from the range-top.

Disconnect small appliance cords, first from the outlet and then from the unit, when not in use. Avoid cramming foods into the refrigerator or freezer, so they don't fall on the next hungry door-opener.

Be ready

Keep your kitchen pantry and refrigerator well-stocked with a variety of foods and beverages, including a good supply of basics—bread, milk, eggs, sugar, flour and condiments—and you'll never have to worry about unexpected guests.

With plentiful food, a pleasant atmosphere and a welcoming smile on your face, you're sure to have a kitchen you can be proud of... just like mom.

Get the most from your wardrobe

Women have long been concerned with the trousseau—clothing bought to mark their entrance into married life.

Today, more than likely, the trousseau is simply a honeymoon wardrobe—a selection of slacks, skirts, shirts, dresses and swimsuits to carry the bride elegantly through the post-marital whirl.

Whether you're heading for a local resort or an exotic foreign locale, make sure to put together a wardrobe that is versatile, comfortable and good-looking... and which is capable of withstanding the traumas of being crammed and crushed inside a suitcase with a minimum of wrinkling.

If you're setting out to update your wardrobe in time for your honeymoon, it's wise to choose new clothing that blends with those pieces you already own and enjoy wearing.

You'll make more use of them after the honeymoon is over and, during the honeymoon, you'll be able to make more out of less.

If you coordinate your honeymoon wardrobe around the color blue, for instance, with touches of red, yellow and white, you'll find that three or four basic outfits will become many more as you combine and re-combine pieces to your heart's content.

How to create a unique ceremony

To turn your wedding ceremony into an occasion that says "you," "Bride's" magazine offers some memorable ideas for personalizing your special day.

As the guests arrive, set the mood with a unique musical prelude of popular songs or classics that you both have chosen.

Greet your groom at the altar with a boutonniere from your own bouquet. (Your florist can wire it in specially.) Slip the boutonniere into your groom's lapel after your father has escorted you to your place.

Also, before the saying of your vows, have the people close to you perform readings.

Brothers, sisters, or attendants might speak on aspects of marriage which they feel are important—friends and family, for instance—or offer Bible passages.

Traditional vows are beautiful. However, words you've written yourselves may hold special meaning.

Get inspiration on what to say to one another from poems or love songs, or see your minister, priest, or rabbi—he or she is often the best source of ideas.

After you have become husband and wife, spend a few minutes alone together, either in a quiet corner of the church or in the car on the way to the reception.

You'll want a peaceful moment to reflect on your new married life before all your guests surround you with their good wishes.

A special gift especially for you.

For today's newlyweds . . .

Fine tableware makes good, practical investment sense

Once regarded as a "luxury" gift to the bride, fine tableware has now become a practical and far-sighted investment for newlyweds.

With the bite of inflation and recession, brides today are more sensitive to value than ever before—particularly when it comes to furnishings for their first home.

They appreciate and look for quality above all, notes Charles Solt, design director for Lenox. Fine china and crystal, he explains, have an appeal that extends beyond their functional use on the table.

"Especially in today's economy, there is a strong investment appeal in furnishings that will have long-term value, and quality tableware is one of these things," says Mr. Solt.

"It is made to endure—in value and in appearance—even with daily use. And, for that reason, newlyweds should not save their dinnerware and crystal only for special occasions," states the designer from Lenox, whose fine china and hand-blown crystal are at the top of bridal registry selections.

He advises young women investing in fine tableware for the first time to make careful selections—avoiding fads and searching for a timeless design that also expresses their individuality.

A design created by Lenox more than sixty years ago, Mr. Solt points out, is the single most popular fine china pattern with brides today.

The pattern, "Autumn," is a hand-enameled design with colorful baskets of fruit and floral bouquets.

"A well-coordinated look in table fashions will be as 'right' in years to come as it is today," he observes.

Classic and elegant tabletop designs are being favored by brides, as the trend toward dressier, more traditional at-home entertaining continues, Mr. Solt notes.

"Traditional fine china patterns popular with brides range from delicate oriental motifs, elaborate floral sprays and wide etched gold bands to classically simple gold- or platinum-banded designs.

"Fluted or flared stemware

SUMPTUOUS SETTING—A grand buffet dessert table set by the bride is made memorable with fine china and hand-blown crystal. Lenox's Temple Blossom china, banded in gold, features a delicate oriental blossom design. Crystal barware and giftware, also by Lenox, add sparkle to the elegant setting.

shapes, graceful wine glasses of varying sizes, and elegant accessories for the table are the brides' choices in hand-blown crystal," he says.

Building an investment

Young couples usually begin to collect fine tableware in the number of place settings that will fit their lifestyle. They can start with as few as two settings and build up to a full service of ten or twelve as their needs change, states Mr. Solt.

"Lenox china and crystal patterns are available in 'open stock,' so couples can continue to add pieces to their set as long as the pattern is made," he explains.

The bridal registry

The Lenox designer advises brides to visit a local wedding gift registry for assistance in coordinating their choices in china, crystal and silver.

Stretching the budget

PROPRIETARY ARTICLES

THE BILL IS TOO LARGE, but there are some articles of substantial merit that are inexpensive. There is Ivory Soap for instance, made from the best materials, strictly pure and delightful to use for the toilet or bath: it will save one half of the outlay for toilet soaps.

HOUSEHOLD BUDGETING has always been a matter of concern for married couples. Newlyweds of today, like the husband and wife shown in this Ivory Soap ad from 1896, share the challenge of learning how to economize and how to stretch often limited budgets to accommodate all their needs.

McGrath Announces For State Rep. In 2nd Norfolk

Stephen J. McGrath, who won a second two year term on the City Council last fall, has set his sights on the State House.

McGrath, 26, who lives at 36 Bass St., Wollaston, has announced his candidacy for state representative from the Second Norfolk District.

The seat is currently held by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell, who was first elected in 1970.

Since both are Democrats, the key election would be the party primary in September.

McGrath said he is running to fill the need for better and more vigorous representation for Quincy in the Legislature as the state faces severe financial crises in the next few years.

"I believe we need a legislator with a background in municipal government who understands our local problems," he said.

"There must be an awareness of how legislation affects our local taxpayers, who usually bear the burden of its expense."

"I believe I have the experience, knowledge and understanding of our local problems to best represent our district."

McGrath cited his work on the Council as a record of accomplishment, saying:

"I have worked toward an improvement of the Wollaston business area through reviving the Wollaston Business Association and through funding of a consultant study of the business area."

"Recommendations of the study will begin to be implemented this spring, through community development funding."

"The HUD Home Improvement Program has been brought to Wollaston for the first time, to preserve and improve our neighborhoods."

"Flood control work has begun in several low-lying areas of the ward."

"Most importantly, I have tried to be responsive to the needs and concerns of our neighborhood's citizens. I've initiated various neighborhood meetings for discussion of public safety and neighborhood improvement issues."

A graduate of Boston College and Suffolk University Law School, McGrath, is an attorney associated with Andrew H. Card of Holbrook.

He is a member of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus, the Quincy Citizen's Association, the Wollaston Park Association and is vice-president of Quincy Community Action.

McGrath served as chairman of the City Council Ordinance Committee and is currently chairman of the Public Safety, Tourism, and Environmental Control Committees.

A campaign cocktail reception is planned for McGrath Wednesday, March 19, at the Neighborhood Club. Tickets may be obtained at 773-3877.

The Wollaston Junior Girl Scout Troop was recently presented an American Flag by Mary Willey of 27 Marsh St., South Quincy, auxiliary president of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

Special Adult Evening Programs At Atlantic Center

Two special evenings for adults have been planned at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 245 Atlantic St., North Quincy.

On Wednesday, March 19 from 7:30 until 9 p.m. a workshop "Deciding to Return to School: the Pros and Cons" will be presented. The workshop will be conducted by Donnal Rothenberg, Quincy Junior College Outreach Counselor, and will be geared towards adults who have been away from school for several years.

The workshop will deal with the pros and cons of returning to school and there will be a short information session towards the end which will deal with financial aid opportunities and any other questions or concerns you might have.

On Thursday, March 20 at 7:30 p.m. there will be a discussion group for Parents of Adolescents. Under the direction of Pam Slater from South Shore Mental Health and Phil Hamric from the Neighborhood Center, the program is designed for parents to learn about and share their views on living with adolescents.

Both programs are free and open to the public. For further information call the Atlantic Neighborhood Center (773-1380, ext. 328).

North Swim Team Completes Best Season In History

Bill Walker's North Quincy swim team, which had its best season with a 9-2 record and placed 19th among 60 schools in the South Sectional championships, qualified 10th for the recent state championships, in which it placed 17th among more than 100 schools.

North had one entry in last Saturday's New England championships at Brown University. Steve Pike, who placed 12th in diving in the states, but he failed to score last weekend.

Capt. Ed Melanson qualified, placing fourth in the 500-free-style, but gave up the N.E. meet to compete with the New England Barracudas, to Walker's disappointment.

North would undoubtedly have done better in the sectionals if it had its captain and top swimmer, Ed Melanson, who was swimming in an international meet in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. The Raiders also were without John Buckley, out with the flu.

"I was pleased with our showing and I think our boys will make a good showing in the states," Walker said. "I was particularly pleased with Dave Riley, who swam in three events and took two seconds off his best time in each."

Although Melanson missed the sectionals, he had already qualified for several events in the states with his times during the regular season.

Qualifying for individual events in the states were Melanson and Bill Feeney in swimming and Steve Pike and sophomore Scott Andrews in diving.

Qualifying for the relays were Bill Boudreau, Buckley, Riley, Tom Burke, Bob and Rich Farmer and Steinar Forshei.

"Things look promising for next season, as I had only eight seniors this year," Walker said. "Our squad included nine juniors, 10 sophomores and nine ninth graders. Interest has really picked up in swimming at North, both boys and girls. The Olympic-size pool at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool has been a big reason for this increase in swimming."

Any Chessia's Quincy team, which had a 3-9 record, had six swimmers in the sectionals but none qualified for the state championships.

TOM SULLIVAN

MAYOR ARTHUR TOBIN is interviewed by former Quincy resident Ken Coleman, voice of the Red Sox on recent WITS Radiothon for the Jimmy Fund. Scene took place at the South Shore Plaza on the WITA remote. Over $5,000 was raised from South Shore residents in the one-day radiothon. Tobin later manned the phones and collected over $200 for the Jimmy Fund.

Tradition Broken

ENC Slips To Second Place By One Point

An Eastern Nazarene College tradition was broken by one point recently.

The Crusaders secured second, one point behind Messiah College (Pa.), in the annual Christian College Sports Tournament held at King's College in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. The second place finish ended a five-year reign for ENC as tournament champions.

The tournament involves ten events including competition in men's basketball, women's volleyball, bowling, chess, running, alumni free throw, barbershop quartet, and men's, women's and doubles ping pong. Points are awarded in different amounts for each event. Eight Christian Colleges participate in the tournament including ENC, Messiah, Gordon College, King's College, Nyack College, Eastern College, Houghton College, and Barrington College.

Eastern Nazarene won five of the 10 events, but only finished third in basketball, which is worth the most points. The basketball team defeated a stubborn Nyack team in the preliminary round, but lost to Eastern College in the semi-finals by a score of 73 to 65. The Crusaders came back to beat King's College, 55 to 47, in the consolation game of the basketball tournament. Sophomore Mark Carr was named to the all-tourney team for his performances which included 73 points, 19 rebounds, 14 assists, and 7 steals in three games.

The ENC women's volleyball team proved to be superior to the rest of the competition as it took the volleyball championship with wins over Nyack, Houghton and King's. The lady Crusaders were led by the excellent play of junior Lois Malvesti of Quincy and senior Janet Ransstrom of Weymouth. The win marked the second straight year ENC has won the volleyball competition.

Other winners for Eastern Nazarene included the bowling team of Jim Cox, Art Oakes, Linda Beauregard and Cathye Akeley, the barbershop quartet of Dan Whitney, Tim Shetter, Jay Larkin and Paul Musie, the men's singles ping pong player Dan Haskins, and the alumni free throw team of Jerry Perera and Donna Wilfong.

Other place winners for the Crusaders included Kevin Cogliano who took second in chess, Connie Underwood and Dan Ferro who finished third in the five-mile run, and Phil Clements and Sharon Ressler, who took fourth in the doubles ping pong competition.

Recreation Senior Tourney

BM, Atherton, Montclair, Snug Harbor Advance

Broad Meadows, Atherton Hough, Montclair "A" and Snug Harbor all won their first round games Saturday in the Recreation Department's senior high basketball tournament.

The days' first game saw Broad Meadows jump out to a nine-point first quarter lead and never look back for a 49 to 36 win over Central. ## Quincy's 1955 Tech Tourney Finals 'Sudden Death' Thriller

By TOM ELLMAN
Quincy Sun Staff Writer

Quincy's 1955 Tech Tourney Finals was a thriller, with Quincy defeating Somerville 15-14 in a sudden death game.

Quincy's victory was a hard-fought one, with the team overcoming a nine-point deficit in the third period and appearing to have won the game twice. The Presidents led by five points with 3 1/2 minutes to go in regulation time and again led by three with one minute left in the first overtime period.

Somerville's Wayne Miles sank a push shot at the buzzer to tie the score at 51 in regulation time and Paul Howard hit on a hook shot with 15 seconds left in the first overtime to tie it at 57.

In sudden death a team had to win it by two points. Somerville had sunk a foul shot, but Quincy's Paul Howard hit a shot to win the game.

and his youngsters and I mean that sincerely," he said. "I come so close and yet so far, well, I've never seen anything like it."

The Somerville players were the same and took their win modestly and spent their post-game time trying to cheer up their Quincy opponents.

Bob Kilty, who the night before had loaned Quincy's Clem Nelson his basketball shoes, shook hands with every Quincy player and his mates followed his example.

Two players in the game later played with the Patriots. Quincy's Jim Coleclough (14 points in the game) and Somerville's Allard Colclough is now football coach at Boston State and Allard is a probation officer in Cambridge.

Quincy's Bob MacDonald works at University Hospital in Boston and his son, Kurt, plays on this year's tournament-bound team and wears the same number, 34.

Ruggles coaches freshman basketball, football, and baseball, in a high school in Illinois, where he formerly was varsity coach. Tom Morrell has a successful lobster business in Quincy. George Forsythe lives in Connecticut and Ron Dearden lives in Florida. Also playing in the game were Clem Nelson and Steve Collins. Members of the team who didn't get into the game were Jerry Dempsey, Jack Brown whose son, Jack, sparked North Quincy's jayvees this year and will be a key man on next year's varsity; Hobie Robinson, Bob Johnson and George Shanley.

Joe Hrubic, director of community relations for the Somerville schools, informed me that Bob Pickett has been successful in Hollywood, recording songs and appearing in movies. On the novelty record of a few years back, "Monster Mash," his was the Boris Karloff voice.

Howard owns a variety store on Washington. Rose is a letter carrier in Melrose. Miles is a teacher in Yarmouth. Fred McGovern is a Lynn police lieutenant and Kilty is an insurance salesman.

Incidentally, Quincy did win a championship that year. After the Tech, Finnegan, an outstanding semi-pro player, joined the varsity team which, as the Quincy Presidents, won the South Shore semi-pro championship at Scituate. Among Quincy's victims was a team which included former Quincy great John Killilea, later assistant coach of the Celtics and now assistant coach of the Milwaukee Bucks.

The 1951 team was the only one to win a Tech title and play in the New England but local sports historian Dave Lubarsky recalls that in 1925, when there was no Tech, only a N.E. tournament, Quincy played and a member of that team was Munroe McLean.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You
By ROBERT COLMAN

Here's a tough one... In the history of sports, only one man has ever been both a major league baseball manager AND the head coach of a National Football League team... Can you guess who he was?... Answer is Hugo Bezdek, who managed the Pittsburgh Pirates in baseball in 1917, 1918 and 1919, and was head football coach of Cleveland of the National Football League in 1937 and 1938.

Here's an intriguing baseball question... Although Ty Cobb was one of the best players of all time, his uniform number was never retired... Why not?... The reason: Cobb never had a number... When he was in the majors, many players did not yet wear numbers on their uniforms.

Did you know that one of the most fantastic rounds of golf ever played was by an obscure golfer, Dr. Joseph Boydston of Bakersfield, Calif., who in 1962 scored the amazing total of THREE holes-in-one during ONE 9-hole round!... That seems hard to believe, but it's true.

I bet you didn't know... That Colman's has the new roller skates for popular, healthful fun... See Colman's big selection... Spring is almost here... Shop Colman's for the widest choice of sports footwear in styles and types for all sports for men, women and children.

Looking Glass Theatre 'Metricks' Productions At Mass. Fields School

The Looking Glass Theatre will present "Metricks" and "Looking Glass Looks At The Law" Thursday, March 13 at Massachusetts Fields School.

"Metricks" will be presented at 9 a.m. as a look at the metric system. Before the performance, actors work with the children in the classroom discussing basic metric concepts and the style of the performance.

The students then sit around the performing area where they "shoot the meter," weigh objects in the "gram canyon" and "follow-the-leader."

The production, selected for presentation at the National Showcase of Performing Arts for Young People, was written and is directed by Peter R. Miller, artistic director of Looking Glass Theatre. "Looking Glass Looks at the Law," at 12:45 p.m., gives children the opportunity to take part in law making by becoming senators, representatives, cabinet makers and committee members.

A typical day on Capitol Hill is reenacted. During the performance one of the children will become "the bill" and will be led through Congress. The "bill" will be challenged by the persuasive lobbyists, questioned by the president and his staff, and will attempt to avoid the blistering of the talkative "Phil-F-Buster". The roles will be played by the children and the actors, and the children will decide whether or not the bill becomes law.

"Metricks" and "Looking Glass Looks at the Law" are among three new productions touring New England during Looking Glass Theatre's 14th anniversary season.

Those unable to attend the event can purchase the ticket as a donation or may make any additional contribution to the Quincy Heart Fund, c/o John McGue, Treasurer, North Quincy branch of the Hancock Bank, 415 Hancock St., North Quincy.

On 4-1 Vote

Boston Harbor Marina Granted Pinball Machines License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Marina Industries, 542 East

Squantum St., Squantum, was granted a license Tuesday by the City License Board for six pinball machines to be located in Building 64 of the Boston Harbor

Marina.

The vote was 4 to 1 with City Clerk John M. Gillis, Police Chief Francis X. Finn, Fire Chief Edward Barry and Building Inspector Allan MacDonald in favor, and Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeogh opposed. Former Mayor Walter J. Hannon, representing the Marina, said the machines will be located outside of the lounge and will consist of pinball and video games.

When asked by Dr. McKeogh if the games could be located inside the lounge to afford better control of youngsters, Hannon replied that the Marina would establish a policy from the beginning that juveniles not be allowed to use the games.

The games are for lounge patrons that frequent the establishment mainly evenings and weekends Hannon said. He said the machines would be monitored by the bartender who has a good view of the area from the lounge. John O. Wong, whose company Fun-O-Matic will supply the games, said the machines could be turned off by a circuit breaker to further restrict their use.

Dr. McKeogh told Hannon that "the Marina's batting average with the board is not that great" referring to a problem with the weekly flea markets in regard to selling used clothes. Dr. McKeogh also mentioned a bill that the Marina had yet to pay the Health Department.

Hannon said the bill would be paid, and youngsters restricted from using the pinball machines. Hannon also mentioned that the lounge would move from Building 64 to the Port of Call Restaurant in May, and the marina would consult the board on moving any of the machines.

In another matter, the License Board continued for one week a request from the Quincy Lodge of Moose for a one-day all alcoholic license to be used in conjunction with a Las Vegas Night Friday, April 18, 8 p.m. to midnight, at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Gillis explained to George A. Paris, representing the Lodge, that the board does not issue permits for Las Vegas Nights referring to a prevalent misunderstanding. It issues all alcoholic licenses to be used in conjunction with them, said Gillis.

However, said Chief Finn, "We like to know who is running the games at the Las Vegas Nights. We won't have professionals coming into the city and fleeing the public."

Paris could not say for certain who would run the games and the matter was continued until next week when the lodge will specify who will operate the Las Vegas Night game.

In other action the License Board:

- Granted a permit to Quincy Legion Post Auxiliary to conduct Poppy Days May 1, 2 and 3 (rain dates May 8, 9 and 10).

As Many As Possible

Tobin To Fill Some Police Vacancies

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Tobin, struggling with an austerity budget, promised Tuesday that he will fill as many vacancies on the Police Department as can be fully funded for fiscal 1981 under the 4 per cent tax cap.

But, he added, he will not fill all 17 openings immediately lest the city face a situation similar to Boston in which new officers are hired and then laid off when the city runs out of money to pay them.

"I think that would be very cruel," the Mayor said.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn told the City Council Monday night that he has been filling the gap with overtime and he is reluctant to do that with the troublesome summer months coming up.

"We must have policemen on the streets this summer," he said. "There is no way out of it."

Finn laid his department's personnel problems out in front of the Council when he said that a long-awaited Civil Service list is now available but that Tobin has refused to request it.

"The list was offered us," said Finn, "but if we took it then we must abstain from it within 30 days."

"The Mayor asked me, 'If we appoint within 30 days, can you guarantee me that you're going to be able to live within your budget next year?'"

"I said I don't think I can do that."

Jason Feldman, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, said his group of businessmen were disappointed that there would be no new patrolmen immediately.

"We do need a full complement of police in the Quincy Center area," he said. "The entire city needs ample coverage."

Feldman said members of the QCBA will be lobbying the Mayor on behalf of adding patrolmen.

Tobin said he too is concerned about the vacancies on the police force, which is required by ordinance to be 188 patrolmen strong, and he has asked Finn to reorganize the department in the interests of economy.

"Whatever money we have to work with," said the Mayor, "we are going to fill as many of those vacancies as possible. Then, as we turn the corner and things get better, we'll fill the rest of them."

Finn said if the Mayor gave the green light now the appointments could be made by May 1 and even funded under the current rates of pay in the 1981 budget.

"But I told the Mayor my budget could not withstand the 4 per cent cap with new collective bargaining agreements," he said. "I probably would have some layoffs and that would be unfair to the people we hire."

Tobin said the budget is not just a problem with the police department. The fire department, also has eight vacancies, he said, "and we are not filling any

School System Of Future:

NQHS 6-Year School, Atlantic Large Elementary?

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The school system of the 1990's could be radically different from today's if the School Committee adopts one of several reorganization plans being studied.

Among the plan's options are the conversion of North Quincy High School to a six-year school, becoming the new home of students now attending Atlantic and Central Junior Highs. Central could close, while Atlantic could become a giant elementary school, accommodating 500-600 students from the Massachusetts Fields, Quincy and Parker schools.

Those three are among 11 that might close under the plans' most drastic version.

The proposal isn't new; it's been before the school committee for almost two years now. But it got a new life recently when School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon presented it to the citizen's panel on school closings as one of several options for that group to consider.

Creedon told that group that a total reorganization, if it went into effect for 1980-81, could result in the closing of up to 11 schools, layoffs of 50 to 60 teachers beyond the 25 already planned for next year and slash about $2 million from next year's $39 million budget.

The school department now has three high schools, five junior highs and 21 elementary schools, employing around 600 classroom teachers. Dr. Creedon has estimated that the system could use 11 fewer schools and about 100 fewer teachers by the mid-80's, when enrollment is expected to dip to about 8,000 students. Enrollment is now around 12,900.

The ten-member task force could merely suggest which, if any, schools should be closed this year. It could, however, choose to make recommendations on some of the more sweeping proposals before the school committee.

Committee member Patricia Toland thinks a major reorganization of the school system is coming, but not necessarily this year.

"We should be looking very seriously at the type of school system we want for the next 20 or so years and the sort of structure we want. We should be making a decision on it soon."

Any action taken by the school committee this year would probably be based on the recommendation made by the citizen's task force, Mrs. Toland

Student DeMolay Day

'Mayor' DeCristofaro's Priority: More Business

Don DeCristofaro was mayor for the day Monday, and says he wouldn't mind taking the job fulltime someday.

He was one of 13 members of Quincy's DeMolay Chapter who took part in Student DeMolay Day by becoming city officials for the day.

"I had a great time, and I learned quite a bit," said DeCristofaro the next day. "Quite a few of the other guys who took part said the same thing," he added.

DeCristofaro, 19, lives on Murdock Ave., Quincy Point. He is a graduate of Quincy High and a freshman at Quincy Junior College majoring in political science. He says he's thought about going into politics someday and considered Monday's experience good preparation.

If he were mayor, he said, "My first priority would be to help businesses in the city. We have to do everything possible to keep any more businesses from leaving the city and to invite other ones here."

DeMolay members met with their counterparts in city government Monday morning, heard executive secretary Thomas Burke's description of how city government works and took part in the ceremony and reception welcoming three Irish visitors to the city for St. Patrick's Day.

"It was quite an honor to meet her," said DeCristofaro of Irish Senator Gemma Hussey. "It was really a thrill."

DeMolay is a fraternal organization for young men 14 to 21. It offers a wide range of sports, social and charitable activities. Also taking part in Student DeMolay Day were the following members:

Karl Olson, 50 Brook St., Wollaston, executive secretary; Robert Peterson, 23 Pratt St., Squantum, police chief; John Swanson, 23 Pratt St., Squantum, fire chief; Kurt Olson, 50 Brook St., Wollaston, building inspector; Kurt Johnson, 36 Garfield St., West Quincy, solicitor; Bobby Hiltunen, planning director; John Sandahl, public works commissioner; John Dunlea, city clerk; Chris Hall, auditor; Paul Berliquet, wire inspector; Eric Olsen, cemetery department; and Paul Mullaney, park and recreation.

MAYOR FOR A DAY Don DeCristofaro of 17 Murdock Ave., Quincy Point, tries out the seat of honor usually occupied by Mayor Arthur Tobin. Don's one-day appointment came as part of Student DeMolay Day, in which 11 DeMolay members from local high schools became city officials.

In Case You Don't Know: Oil Now $1 Gallon

The average price of a gallon of home heating oil is now $1 statewide. The highest price recorded in the biweekly survey of 125 heating oil dealers conducted by the Executive Office of Energy Resources (EOER) is now $1.07 on the Cape.

The price of a gallon has jumped 1.6 cents in the last two weeks to its present average of $1.04. The average in the Boston Metropolitan area is now an even $1 per gallon with a range from 96.8 to $1.03.

The range in the state runs from 92.9 in the Southeastern part of the state to $1.07. The highest regional average is in the Berkshires at $1.03.

"As the end of the heating season comes closer, we are working on providing some relief from these high prices for the state's residents next winter," said EOER Secretary Joseph S. Fitzpatrick. "The conservation package we have submitted to the Legislature will go a long way toward helping residents weatherize their homes and save money."

According to the dealers surveyed, consumption for the month of February was down between 20 and 30 percent as compared with February, 1979. Dealers report that their local inventories are now much higher at this point in the heating season than last year.

$4.5 Million Office Building Gets Welcome From Gov. King

Gov. Edward J. King was in town Tuesday—but he wasn't passing through to Braintree where folks are up in arms over the opening of the new MBTA station.

King had a happier chore in Quincy, welcoming to the city the SCI Investment Co. of Genoa, Italy, which is building a four-story, $4.5 million office building at 100 Newport Ave. in North Quincy.

"This is one more step in the right direction," said the governor.

"We have been trying to encourage foreign investment in the United States and in Massachusetts."

"I am told that this building will provide 500 new jobs and that is what we are interested in. It will be a tremendous boost in the economy and that is what my administration is all about."

Antony Herrey, the New York real estate consultant who is in charge of the project, said construction is already underway and steel for the second floor is expected to be raised at the end of the month.

"We expect that the first tenants will move in by the end of 1980," he said. He said there were several prospective tenants but none had reached the point in negotiations to be identified.

Transportation Secretary Barry M. Locke said the new office building is a clear indication that Quincy is a city on the move.

"It is a fine example of how an integrated transportation system can complement private business," he said, noting that the new building is adjacent to both the MBTA and the Southeast Expressway.

The four-story building, located across Newport Ave. Extension from State Street South, is being built at a cost of $4.5 million.

Herrey said the developer is offering 100 monthly MBTA passes with the first 10,000 square feet of office space to be rented in an effort to get tenants to use rapid transit.

10-Story Quinoil Office Building 'Premature'

By TOM HENSHAW

For a few moments around noon on Tuesday, downtown Quincy had a brand new 10-story office building.

The Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development coordinator, let it slip at a news conference that the city was in serious discussions with Quinoil Industries, Inc., about such a building.

"It looks promising," he said. "We are about three months away from finalization."

But William Prang, board chairman of Quinoil, said that while such discussions were indeed going on, "it is not in the wind for us, let's put it that way, in the next couple years, anyway."

"We were approached by the city," Prang told the Quincy Sun, "and we were interested to the point where we had a feasibility study made but it doesn't look good on the present money market."

"The money market would have to get a lot better, especially since the government is pulling in all these things that they have out there. I think it would be premature."

Prang said that the fact that industrial revenue bonds would be available for the building under the Commercial Area Revitalization District (CARD) designation was considered in the feasibility study.

"But the way the economics of the feasibility study work out the cost of the square footage would still be too high around here," he said. "The $60 a square foot is a little on the high side."

That would place the cost of a 10-story office building at $6 million.

Prang said Quinoil might consider building in the next two years but "that's projecting out further than I would like to contemplate at this time."

"I would say we're not going to be interested in anything for the next two years anyway. Who knows what's going to happen after that? Your guess is as good as mine."

Baharian conceded that he was a little overenthusiastic in disclosing his talks with Quinoil, which came in the midst of a news conference announcing construction of an office building in North Quincy.

"I was premature in mentioning anything today," he said. "The whole thing is too premature to say anything about it."

Dr. Irons, Cheney Plead

End Political Influence At Hospital

A politically independent Board of Managers could do a competent job of running Quincy City Hospital on their own, Chairman John Cheney said Monday night.

But he and Dr. Russell Irons, president of QCH medical staff, told the city council's hospital commission that political influence hurts the hospital in many areas.

"It would be easy to run the city hospital as a municipal facility with one change," Cheney said. "Don't change the mayor, just change the city solicitor."

City solicitor Robert Fleming has ruled that the mayor, and not the board of managers, is the final authority at QCH. That ruling is a longtime bone of contention between City Hall and hospital administrators.

Irons agreed with Cheney, saying "if you can't change the political control over it, it's not worth remaining a municipal facility."

Irons said elected city officials are reluctant to give QCH the sort of money it needs, for fear of adding to the tax rate.

"Everything goes back to the city council, everything goes out to bids, everything goes into a budgetary system the hospital has no control over," Irons said.

"Our budget is extremely low compared to nearby hospitals of the same size," Irons added. "There's no question about it."

Norfolk County Commissioners Approve $10,000 For DOVE

DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) has been included in the 1981 Norfolk County Human Services Budget by the Norfolk County Commissioners announces Chairman James J. Collins.

"The Commissioners recognize the importance of providing the essential protective services that DOVE provides to the Norfolk County resident as an alternative to the tragic violence which goes on every day and only occasionally surfaces to headline news," Collins said.

DOVE offers protective services to battered women and their children who seek shelter, hot line counselling, and court advocacy to cope with domestic violence.

In approving DOVE's request, Commissioner George B. McDonald of Quincy said: "DOVE is the only shelter in Norfolk County and consequently, its 24 available beds are operated close to peak capacity. In one year's time, DOVE has served and housed 273 women and children.

Upon notification of the Commissioners' approval of DOVE's request, Alexa Bresnan, Executive Director, stated, "I am gratified to see that the Norfolk County Commissioners are committed to helping families and children whose lives have been disrupted and torn by domestic violence. This grant helps insure that DOVE can continue its work providing refuge, counselling, and support to families suffering from spouse abuse."

DOVE's present funding is a combination of public and private support and it has just been awarded a $35,000 contract with the Department of Public Welfare, effective in February.

Kiwanis Club Donates $1,000 For Camp Massasoit

The Quincy Kiwanis Club recently presented the Massasoit Development Committee $1,000 for establishment of a Scoutcraft Center at Camp Massasoit, the Boy Scout camp in Plymouth which has served area scouts for over 50 years.

The contribution brings to $25,000 the total raised by the committee for camp renovations and improvements. The committee's goal is to raise $30,000 or secure donations in-kind to make the camp suitable for year-round camping, according to committee chairman Richard J. Koch.

Plans are to renovate a former sleeping cabin, erected in the early 1940's through the generosity of the Quincy Kiwanis Club, into a center for scoutcraft activity. A number of outdoor specialty areas will also be constructed. Overseeing the renovation effort and lending their assistance to the developing and staffing of the area will be Boy Scout Troop 151, a troop for handicapped Boy Scouts led by John and Buell Fuller. The troop is sponsored by the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

The committee is still accepting donations as well as volunteer help to do the construction work at the camp. To make a donation, contact Donald Gohl at the Quincy Cooperative Bank. To volunteer some time and labor, contact Harold Crowley at 471-6881.

$1,000 DONATION from the Quincy Kiwanis Club is presented to Richard Koch, chairman of the Massasoit Development Committee, by Kiwanis president Dr. Donald Magee (right). Looking on are committee members Buell and John Fuller, longtime Scout leaders in North Quincy.

Many dentists employ hygienists who often assist and are trained in specific jobs done independently. If the dentist is working on a patient, the hygienist frequently serves in similar fashion to a nurse handling instruments to the dentist and assisting when necessary. A hygienist can also conduct preliminary examinations, do x-rays and clean teeth. Hygienists are highly trained professionals and can be a valuable source of information and care for the patient. When hygienists tell you to floss everyday, they know what they are talking about and it would be a good idea to follow that advice. It is more than a good idea to floss everyday. ## 17 Youths Arrested

By Undercover Agent's Drug Work

By TOM HENSHAW

A major turning point in the war on drugs in Quincy schools came on May 5, 1977, when 17 young people, most of them students, were arrested on 40 charges involving the distribution of marijuana, barbiturates, LSD and PCP, or angel dust.

It was the result of four months investigation by an undercover officer who was introduced into the student body when it became apparent that the future groups of youngsters who gathered on school grounds before classes were not discussing homework.

The undercover person was a young man from a community other than Quincy who was old enough to do the job yet looked young enough to pass for a high school student.

"We provided him with a different name, a new residence, false school records and a transfer from another school," said John W. (Butch) Mahoney, social health coordinator for the Quincy public schools. "We even dummed records in the other community just in case any school officials got curious."

"There was one problem, though. He looked, acted and spoke too good. We had to muss him up a bit so he could fit the part."

The young man melted into the student body in January. It was slow going at first. He was known to no one. Soon he established himself as a student on the make for a high. He got in with the subgroup of students who dealt in drugs.

He kept a daily log of his involvement with his classmates.

At first they were skimpy, filled with observations, rumor, hearsay. The information grew more precise as his involvement deepened. By March, his reports included names, places and dates and he was able to start recording his buys.

The drugs he bought were analyzed. Mostly they were PCP and marijuana. Discreetly, he inquired about cocaine and heavier drugs and once he thought he was close to making a bigger buy but it proved to be too costly for the operation's budget.

"When you talk heavy drugs you're talking big money," said Mahoney, "and we don't have the money."

Periodically, during the last month of the undercover investigation, officers from the Quincy Police Department's Drug Unit filmed the activity around the school.

"This film and the young man's daily reports can only be described by one word—unbelievable," said Lt. Walter Lynch, then the head of the Drug Unit, who recently was transferred out of that post at his own request.

By late April, early May, authorities had enough evidence to act on warrants. Besides, the undercover officer was getting a little nervous. Some of the kids were openly voicing suspicions that he was a narc.

The arrests were made in the morning, just before the start of classes. Seventeen were arraigned in Quincy District Court for possession with intent to distribute various types of drugs. Sixteen received suspended sentences.

One 17-year-old boy was indicted in Norfolk Superior Court. He was sentenced to 12 weekends in the county jail, a relatively stern sentence for that type of crime in this day and age.

"The boy who was indicted was a key figure in the selling," said Mahoney. "The amount and the quality of the drugs he dealt with was the determining factor in the indictment. In this case, we weren't able to go beyond the kids who were selling in the school."

Although some people questioned the approach, the use of an undercover officer in a school, Mahoney feels that the impact of the investigation on the school was positive.

"The atmosphere at the school turned around," he said. "Most of the student body, the teachers and the staff were happy about it. Conditions improved at the school immensely."

"All of the kids stayed in school, even the one who did the weekends in Dedham. It may have turned the kids around. Certainly it left us more open to communicate with them. We had to have the clout the investigation gave us."

"You have to reach the kids before they are 17. After that they are adults and, as adults, they are charged with a crime. Juveniles are charged with delinquency. The whole judicial process, the facilities are different."

"The investigation had other positive results, too, due to the cooperation between the schools and the police and the support that we got from the School Committee."

Quincy has had an effective program for dealing with the alcohol and drug problems of its young people since 1969, but the big bust of May 5, 1977, pointed up one flaw—security.

New rules were drawn up by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon and quickly approved by the School Committee under which school personnel were assigned to monitor problem areas of the schools and school grounds immediately before and after classes.

"The rules are still in effect," said Mahoney. "We have gotten the message clear that we are not going to allow the use or the sale of drugs in the schools. The situation has been controlled significantly."

"But we can't let up. People have to be reminded every now and then. Quincy may have avoided some of the pitfalls that many other communities have experienced in drug education but we are not guaranteed success."

It was nearly 11 years ago that the Quincy school system decided against taking the traditional route in drug education, the use of resident experts with their special programs and stern lectures from visiting former addicts.

"We feel that a separate class dealing in drug education alone does nothing more than broaden a student's knowledge about drugs," said Mahoney. "It is easy to see how troubled youngsters could be utilized into experimenting with drugs by such information."

"We chose the long and difficult road of teacher involvement. It promised to deal with the cause and not merely the effect."

To sharpen the teachers' involvement, seminars are held periodically with the emphasis on attitudes, values and communication skills in which teachers can earn up to eight inservice credits in social health.

"You could say," said Mahoney, "that we view the phenomenon of alcohol and drug abuse as a people problem. If we look to people and deal with their many needs and feelings, the alcohol and drugs will take care of themselves."

'Let Them Pay For It'

Tobin May Stop Payment For School Lawyers

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Mayor Arthur Tobin thinks he has found a way to scuttle a School Committee legal action against him for his refusal to fund raises for school employees.

He says he will cut off money to pay for School Committee lawyers.

In a letter to committee members last week, Tobin quoted a little-known law giving him veto power over the board's legal expenses. The mayor said he'll use that law to prevent the city from paying for any School Committee suit against him.

"I'll be damned if I'm going to sit here as the chairman of the School Committee and have them sue me," Tobin said the next day. "If they want to sit over there and take these stupid votes to take me to court, let them pay for it themselves."

According to Tobin, section 37E of chapter 71 of the state laws states that any School Committee appropriation over $10,000 for legal counsel for collective bargaining must have the prior approval of the mayor. Section 37F says that any appropriation over $5,000 for general legal expenses must also be approved by the mayor.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon told the committee at a recent budget meeting that the committee's counsels, the Brain-tree firm of Murphy, Lamere and Murphy, has submitted bills for $29,300 in services between July 1 and Dec. 31, 1979. Most of those bills were for lengthy negotiations with several school employee unions.

In his letter, Tobin told the committee to submit all legal bills to his office for approval.

"They have no choice," he said. "Otherwise, the auditor is not paying them."

"I'm going to ask for a detailed breakdown," Tobin said. "And if there's anything in there about suing the mayor, I'm not going to approve it."

"I've been on the School Committee four and a half years, and that's the first time I've ever heard of that law," said School Committee Vice-chairman Christopher Kennedy.

"We're not really suing him," Kennedy added. "Those are his words."

The School Committee has joined a teachers union suit seeking to force Tobin to submit funding for raises for school employees to the City Council. A March 20 court date has been set.

Kennedy said the entire committee would have to discuss how to deal with Tobin's action at their next meeting. Creedon and members Mary Collins and John Sullivan were not present at the March 12 meeting.

MBTA's Attitude Getting Annoying

The big push is on.

The considerable power of the MBTA, the governor's office and, subtly, the federal government is being mobilized against the town of Braintree in the interest of an early opening of the South Braintree MBTA station.

D-Day is Saturday, March 22.

That is the day that MBTA Chairman Robert Foster and Gov. King intend to open the station and to hell with the fact that a critical access road that will divert traffic around the bottleneck in South Braintree Square will not be built for another year.

The access road, which is known as the Ivory St. Extension from Pearl St. to Peach St., is designed to handle the expected traffic flow off Route 37 from Randolph, Holbrook, Brockton and points south.

It is expected that upwards of 5,000 commuters will use the South Braintree station when it is completed.

It is also predicted that 70 per cent of those commuters will come off Route 3A, the Southeast Expressway, and 30 per cent will come by way of Route 37.

That's 1,500 people—and if you generously estimate two people to a car—that could mean 750 cars funnelled through the narrow streets of South Braintree Square each rush hour.

It is easy to see why the people of Braintree are up in arms, urging the MBTA Advisory Board not to fund the South Braintree opening and threatening to seek injunctive relief in court if they do.

Chairman Foster has poo-pooed Braintree's fears of a major traffic problem. Gov. King has promised that the station will open Saturday, come hell or high water. It is hinted that the federal government may cut the MBTA off without a cent in the future if the federally funded station does not open by April 1.

We support the town of Braintree in its unequal fight against the governmental giants and we urge that Quincy do so too. The real issue goes far beyond the Braintree town line.

The MBTA long has had a habit of appearing to heed local protests, all the while closing its eyes to them, putting its head down and ramming through its desires.

We can't help but feel that the MBTA is even now marshalling its forces to hit Quincy with pedestrian access—perhaps even a motor vehicle access—to the planned Quincy Adams station from Independence Ave.

The access is there, ostensibly for the use of emergency vehicles only, and the MBTA has given its solemn promise that it will not be open for anything else—unless the people of South Quincy want it.

But only two months ago, when Chairman Foster was at The Quincy Sun on a whirlwind public relations tour of the local media, he said that his construction people on the site have reported a change in sentiment among the people.

"Community concerns about making sure that there are no access points from that street (Independence Ave.) have lessened but not to the point where the majority has swung," he said.

"If 55 per cent say no pedestrian access, no vehicle access, that's the way it's going to be. If 55 per cent say let's go with a pedestrian access and no vehicle access, that's the way it's going to be done."

If a pedestrian access produced a traffic problem in Independence Ave., he said, "that's not a transportation company, it's a local police problem"—which, he hinted, could be solved by permitting vehicular access.

Perhaps it's time to show the MBTA and the governor that Braintree means business on Ivory St. so that they will know that Quincy means business in the future on Independence Ave.

The MBTA, it seems, will promise you anything—and even give you Arpege—when it is trying to get a station in your community. But after it's there, T officials really don't seem to care much about problems that are created by it.

The MBTA's don't-give-a-damn attitude frankly, is getting pretty damn annoying.

Neither Gov. King nor Mr. Foster will be personally affected by the traffic jams that will result if the South Braintree MBTA station opens Saturday.

But maybe some day they might get stuck trying to fender-fence through Braintree Five Corners at rush hour and get a little education—and humility—stewing in a traffic snafu.

Those Darn Taxes

Howard Gunnison thinks the tax situation is really getting out of hand.

Mayor Arthur Tobin's warning last week that Quincy's current tax rate ($224) could skyrocket a possible $40 (to $264) and his order to department heads to slash their budgets?

Well, that's bad enough. But what's really bothering Gunnison is what's going on up in Maine.

Gunnison, co-owner of the Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home here in Quincy, owns two and a half acres of open woodlands in Sidney, Me., 10 miles north of Augusta.

The tax rate up there is $13.20 per $1,000 valuation. His land is assessed at $100 (as long as he doesn't build anything on it.) His tax bill: $1.32.

And, the fact they were nice to break it all down for him, penny by penny, isn't making him any happier.

Ninety-two cents of the $1.32 is for school costs. (He doesn't have anyone in school up there.) The remaining 40 cents goes for the following:

County, nine cents. Town administration, nine cents. Highways, nine cents. General government, five cents. New equipment, four cents. Overlay four cents.

"This has gone far enough," says Gunnison with tongue in cheek. "I think I might sell."

He notes that when he bought the land eight years ago, his tax bill was only 62 cents.

"Don't laugh," he says. "That $1.32 means my taxes have gone up over 100 per cent."

WELL, you've got to admit that School

Committeeman Frank Anselmo has a mind of his own. At last week's School Committee meeting, John Browne, director of plant facilities, reported how the school system has cut its oil use from 1.9 million to 1.3 million gallons in seven years.

Anselmo was impressed. But he had a suggestion to improve on that.

Why not, said he, have some of the mechanically gifted minds among the school system's staff and students design and construct a windmill to supply power for one school on a trial basis. The energy it produced would add even more to the school system's oil savings, he said.

"And maybe," he added, gesturing around the School Committee room, "we could use some of the windpower we have here."

WELL, two women weren't very happy with last week's column on Pet Peeves. Florence Biller of the Wollaston Credit Union and Barbara Connors of Davis St., Wollaston, both sent me back copies of the column and both circled two peevess referring to women.

The first: You're patiently waiting your turn at a sales counter in a store, the clerk asks "Who's next?" and someone (usually a woman) barges up just in time to say, "Me".

GUNNISON

The second: The woman who pops out in front of you from a side street and then crawls all the way down the main street for the next mile or two.

Florence added her own pet peeve: "The man who believes only women are irritating."

Barbara sent along a letter saying the peevess were a slur against women. (See letter below this column).

(Gee, ladies, there were five other peevess in the column directed at men.)

P.S. I haven't received a beef from any of the men yet.

A NOSTALGIC FEATURE on the Quincy High School basketball team that went to the Tech Tournay finals in 1955 appeared in last week's Sun sports section. And, with it, a photo of that team. We were able to identify everyone except a young fellow in the bottom left of the photo. Well, Jack Powers of Houghs Neck has now identified him. He's Jim Green who was the team manager and a member of Powers' class of 1957. Green went on to become a Golden Gloves boxing champ.

WJDA's Herb Fontaine is back at the mike after a two-week vacation with his wife, Barbara, in Palm Springs, Fla. While there, they visited with Jack and Inez Silverstein (Naborhood Pharmacy) who own a condo there.

Fontaine came back with a deep tan. Says the temperature averaged near 85 all the time they were there. (He's lucky that way. He's always in the right place at the right time. Like, near the shrimp bowl.)

YOU MIGHT LIKE to know that Dennis Day, who always projected a nice guy image on the Jack Benny show, is in real life, a nice guy. A Quincy group took in "The Big Broadcast of 1944" show at the Shubert a few nights ago and got chatting with Day in the parking lot after. The group included Norma and Peter Gacacia. Also and Sally Saluti, John and Claire Hanratty. He chatted and kidded with them and signed autographs. Claire wound up giving him a big kiss for St. Patrick's Day.

THERE WAS A St. Patrick's Day touch to the City Council meeting Monday night. City Clerk John Gillis had the front and back cover of the council calendar printed on green stock.

HERE'S ONE that should warm the hearts of everyone whose cars have ever been tagged at an expired parking meter.

A woman parked her car on the SIDEWALK on Maple St. in downtown Quincy the other day and left a note of explanation on the windshield. Meter maid Laura DeCristofaro came along, spotted the car, read the note, and tagged the car anyway.

The car owner's note had said: "Please don't tag my car. It's my birthday."

In addition to the tag, Laura left her own note: "So, tomorrow's mine. The Meter Maid." (The tag was for $5).

Readers Forum

She Didn't Like Sunbeams 'Slurs' Against Women

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I have been a reader and admirer of The Quincy Sun for a number of years.

"No women's libber," I applauded your article regarding the use of their term "Ms." It reinforced my view that women have an important role to play in society in their own right and, therefore, should not be apologetic about that role nor in competition with men for their's.

I was appalled, however, at your recent "Sunbeams" editorial "Pet Peeves, Anyone?" I refer to the two slurs against women:

"...waiting your turn at a sales counter...the clerk asks 'Who's next?' and someone (usually a woman) barges up..."

"The woman who pops out in front of you on a side street then crawls..."

Rudeness and discourtesy know no gender. Women are no more (or less) guilty of this behavior than men. A newspaper shapes public thinking. Its editor and publisher, therefore, has a moral obligation to present fair and unbiased views.

It is hoped that in the future the Quincy Sun will continue to reinforce women and their role rather than denigrate them.

Still Time To Join

11 Schools Entered In Jerry Lewis Spelling Bee

Eleven schools have now signed up for the 1980 Quincy Jerry Lewis Spelling Bee, and there's still time for others to join the Muscular Dystrophy Association fundraising event.

Already, 82 principals and teachers and around 1600 elementary students at those 12 schools are preparing to take part in the second annual spelling bee, conducted by the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee in cooperation with the Quincy Public Schools. Last year's spelling bee was the largest event of its kind in the nation, raising $8,464 for muscular dystrophy research and medical services.

Participants are now seeking sponsors. Wearing "I joined the Jerry Lewis Spelling Bee" buttons, students will ask friends, relatives and neighbors to pledge 10 cents or more for each word they spell correctly on the April 7 written spelling test. The top three spellers will compete in the Jerry Lewis Spelling Bee finals April 14.

Each child who collects pledge money receives a Jerry Lewis Iron-on transfer, sew-on patch and Spelling Bee certificate. The top two fundraisers at each school will be awarded Jerry Lewis wristwatches. Trophies will be awarded to the top three fundraisers in the city. To be eligible for these special awards, all pledge money must be mailed by Friday, May 9.

Each finalist in the April 14 contest will receive spelling bee trophies and the top three spellers will be awarded special trophies.

Schools now participating are the Adams, Atherton Hough, Furnace Brook, Lincoln Hancock, Massachusetts Fields, Squantum Pollard, St. Joseph's, St. Mary's, and Willard.

Other teachers or principals interested in taking part should contact Janet DiTullio of Quincy Public Schools, coordinator of the 1980 spelling bee, at 786-7835, or the Muscular Dystrophy Association office, 843-2797.

Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth and Richard Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board are co-coordinators of the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee.

City Hall In National Register Of Historic Places

The Old City Hall has been placed on the National Register of Historic Places, announces Mayor Arthur Tobin.

The register is the official list of historical and cultural resources considered worthy of preservation. Inclusion on the list recognizes the building as a significant cultural resource, protects it from adverse effects by federally financed, licensed or assisted undertakings and makes it eligible for 50-percent matching federal grants for preservation.

Built as Quincy Town Hall in 1844, City Hall is considered an outstanding example of Greek Revival architecture and a monument to the city's granite industry.

Constructed entirely of Quincy granite, the building cost the then-town of Quincy $19,115. Architect Solomon Willard, who also designed and built the Bunker Hill Monument, received $280 for five months work, drawing up plans and supervising construction.

The Quincy Community Action Organization Energy Crisis Intervention Program will be

"The new town house, when completed, will be one of the most elegant edifices in New England," reported the Quincy Patriot in 1844.

"It is hoped that, aided by the National Register, Quincy can preserve fine examples of our rich heritage in combination with future growth," Tobin said in announcing the honor.

- Ron Ely, former TV Tarzan, has been selected to replace Bert Parks as the Miss America Pageant host. Mr. Ely evidently will not sing when the winner is chosen, but rather will say, "Me Tarzan, you Miss America."
- A Holyoke postmaster has done his part to get the Susan B. Anthony dollar into circulation. He posted a sign saying—Limit two per customer. He then exchanged hundreds of the new dollars in a few days.

Hospital Addition Loan Order Passes

The City Council passed a $1,525,000 loan order for a new building, including $850,000 for a hospital addition to house the X-ray department, the nursery and the special care unit.

In all, the hospital addition would cost $1.2 million but it was expected that the city would get a federal grant of $400,000 under the Hill Burton Act to make up the difference.

Also included in the bond issue were $225,000 for a North Quincy branch library, $150,000 for a new Atlantic Fire Station, $150,000 for streets and $150,000 for sewers.

The only vote against the hospital addition was cast by Councillor George G. Burke, who explained that he thought other projects, like a new City hall, were more pressing.

SHIP CONTRACTS SOUGHT

Cong. James A. Burke (D-Milton) scheduled two meetings in Washington with Navy officials in an effort to lure a $60 million nuclear frigate contract to the Fire River shipyard.

CITY WORKERS LURED AWAY

William Villone, director of veterans services, told the City Council an acute personnel situation was building in his office with trained people being lured away by better paying jobs.

For instance, he told the Council's Committee on Veterans Affairs, an investigator could make $73.59 to $93.50 a week with the city and $89.75 to $113.75 for the same job with the state.

Kick-off Reception At Lantana

Sheriff Marshall To Open Re-election Campaign March 30

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall will officially open his 1980 re-election campaign Sunday, March 30, at the Lantana, Randolph.

Marshall will formally announce his candidacy to supporters and friends at a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. The kick-off reception will be in the main ballroom. Entertainment will be by the Paul Smith Quartet. Hors d'oeuvres will be served. For ticket information, call ward coordinators: Ward 1, Barbara McConville (773-0023); Ward 2, Frank Brillo (471-0057); Ward 3, Helen Kelly (472-8619); Ward 4, Mike Haynes (471-2937); Ward 5, Kenneth Runge (472-8325); Ward 6, George Klier Jr. (328-5156).

Sheriff Marshall currently is the President of the Massachusetts Sheriffs Association. He was elected president in 1976. He is also the State Director and The Massachusetts Representative to the National Sheriffs Association.

Marshall's re-election committee noted that during his first term as sheriff he revamped the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department by increasing its capabilities with the expansion of the department's normal operation and by using innovative techniques in corrections management. In fulfilling campaign promises, Marshall introduced new vocational training methods for the incarcerated; an effective Human Services program that concentrates on classification, education, and covers all aspects of the incarcerated from admission to release preparation; a Work Release Program that effectively reintegrates the offender with the community; psychological testing and counseling; and a drug rehabilitation program that deals with the increasing number of drug abusers among the incarcerated.

Highlighting the Sheriff's first term was the formation of the Norfolk County Rape Unit; the implementation of the National Crime Information Center, NCIC; and the department's membership to the Greater Boston Police Communication Council which enables the department to readily communicate with over 33 surrounding law enforcement agencies.

Marshall has expressed that a need for a new correctional facility in Norfolk County will continue to be a primary issue of his administration. He has said he will continue to involve his administration in evaluating the correctional needs of the County in further pursuing a new facility for Norfolk County.

said. The committee is not bound by that group's conclusions, however.

The committee would probably not make the kind of major reorganization involving mass school closings and realignment of grade structures, without studying such a plan for a year or so, she added.

The reorganization plan mentioned most often would establish elementary schools for kindergarten through grade five, "middle schools" for grades six through eight and four-year high schools.

That was the alignment recommended in a study by the Arthur D. Little Co. during the early 70's.

According to Wilfred Nolan, director of elementary education for Quincy schools, that system would eliminate the need for seven or eight elementary schools and one or two junior highs.

Credon, Nolan and Mrs. Toland all admit there's no "hard and fast" plan for reorganization, but an almost infinite number of options.

According to Mrs. Toland, school systems across the country have been experimenting with a variety of reorganization plans. Some, for example, have split all grades into schools at two levels - kindergarten through grade eight and grades nine through 12. Others have gone in the opposite direction and segregated grades at four levels - kindergarten through five, six through eighth, with ninth and tenth graders and eleventh and twelfth graders in separate buildings.

Urge End To Political Influence At Hospital

The hospital needs an awful lot of capital outlay that it hasn't had in years.

"I think a private hospital would do that. It would float bonds, it would do what has to be done."

"Tobin's regime is the first one that has really paid fine attention to the hospital, in all fairness to the politicians, whom I would like to see out of the hospital business," Irons said.

But that's only because "the staff has gotten off their butts and come down to City Hall to squawk," he said. "It's started to pay off."

Cheney said the only way to finally decide whether the mayor or Board of Managers runs the hospital would be a lawsuit. He's been reluctant to do that, but may be leaning in that direction, he said.

Cheney said that if the hospital is to remain a municipal facility, both the budget and hospital managers should be free of City Hall interference.

"If education is important enough to be autonomous, why not the hospital?" he asked.

Irons said the hospital needs far more money than it gets now - in capital outlay, medical equipment and maintenance, among other areas.

"The fact is, they don't get it. The fact is, that if you wake up and see plaster falling down, it can be just as demoralizing as seeing an IV (intravenous feed) stop running," he said.

Marina's Health Dept. Bill Was Paid, Says Hannon

A bill reportedly owed by the Boston Harbor Marina Flea Market to the Quincy Health Department was paid Feb. 19, contrary to information presented at the March 11, City License Board meeting.

According to former Mayor Walter J. Hannon of the Marina, the $24.98 bill for inspectional services was paid last month and a receipt issued.

The matter came up at the License Board meeting during discussion of a pinball license for a lounge at the Marina. The license was granted on a 4 to 1 vote with Dr. Robert P. McKeogh, city health commissioners opposed.

Dr. McKeogh cited problems in the past with the Marina in regard to selling used clothes at the flea market and the reportedly unpaid bill.

Hannon said that he has informed the License Board that the bill had been paid.

In commenting on the matter at this week's meeting, Dr. McKeogh said his statement on the bill was the result of a communications gap. He said the bill had "indeed been paid" and forwarded a copy of the signed receipt to The Quincy Sun to verify it.

Tax Cap Key To Filling 17 Police Vacancies

vacancies until we know where the monies are."

The only departments in which large savings can be accomplished, he said, are school, police, fire, hospital and public works, whose budgets run into the multi-millions.

"One of the things that could happen," said the Mayor, "if there is a concern to fill vacancies, maybe we'll have to eliminate some of the smaller departments altogether and transfer the money to public safety."

The City Council, which can cut but not add to the Mayor's budget when it comes before it, was not sure how to handle the hot potato that was handed them by Finn.

"What he (Tobin) is really weighing is priorities," analyzed Councillor James A. Sheets.

"Should he ask the Police Department to reduce some of its programs or even eliminate them or should he be looking at all departments and comparing their priorities with those of the Police?"

Sheets said he prefers the latter priority.

"That message has got to go to the Mayor tonight," he said. "We can't wait for a budget to come out here after he has made the decision."

"The ball is in the Mayor's court," said Councillor Francis X. McCauley. "There is nothing that we can do."

"I don't want this Council to be passing resolves telling him what to do. Let him make the decision in the Mayor's office. That's what he's getting paid for. When he brings his recommendation out here then we can hear it."

Tobin suggested that the Council "could send a letter to me requesting that I add so much money for so many positions. But if they're going to do that, they're going to have to tell me where to get it."

"You can't bring in a budget under 4 per cent cap and still demand services. The message I get from the taxpayers is that we in public office have to cut back."

"After conversations with Chief Finn, I know certain things that can be done to reorganize and put additional men on the streets but it's not in the best interests of the city for me to comment on them at this time."

"There are areas in the Quincy Police Department where officers doing clerical or in-house work could be put out on the street."

Chief Finn said that in the past he has been able to cover for the vacancies in the ranks of patrolmen by working other officers overtime.

"It is my feeling very strongly that we cannot function on overtime," he said, "that we must have the 188 patrolmen or reorganize the police department."

"That would mean a radical dismantling of the services that we offer and I am hesitant to do that. There is going to have to be a change in priorities."

"I know we've got difficulties coming up this summer because whenever you get into financial difficulty you start to have problems because young people aren't working and they're getting into trouble."

"You cannot have it as you once could, put a policeman on the corner and service the city. The city requires more than that now. We have more problems to address now than we had when I became chief in 1967."

"In 1967 we had 13 drug arrests and they were only people who were using drugs. Today we have a couple of hundred arrests of hard core pushers every year."

"In 1967, the organized crime people weren't driving themselves crazy to get into the city. They are today."

"We don't have many of the terrible things that go on in the communities around us that make our streets unsafe."

"I don't know what I'm going to do if I have to live within the tax cap. I don't know how I'm going to reorganize the police department."

HONORARY CITIZENS Mary White, Senator Gemma Hussey and Padraic White are greeted by Mayor Arthur Tobin and School Committee members Mary Collins and Patricia Toland at City Hall Monday. ## Irish Visitors Honored

The Subject Was Green—But Not Money

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

As usual, green was the subject of discussion at City Hall Monday.

This time, it wasn't money for budgets, contracts or development being discussed; it was the green clothing, carnations and decorations worn by almost everybody to mark St. Patrick's Day and welcome some distinguished Irish visitors to the city.

Padraic White, executive director of Ireland's Industrial Development Authority, his wife Mary and Senator Gemma

Hussey were greeted with fanfare and ceremony Monday in the middle of a whirlwind day in the City of Presidents.

The Whites met with Quincy High students Monday morning while Senator Hussey spoke at North Quincy High. All three appeared on WJDA's "Community Spotlight" program and were later made honorary citizens of Quincy by Mayor Arthur Tobin.

That night, they were guests at a reception at the Quincy Historical Society's Adams Academy building, hosted by Senator Paul Harold.

Senator Hussey, one of six women in the Irish Senate, was center of attention for much of the evening.

The Irish Senate, she explained, is elected not from geographic areas, but rather from various interest groups; for example finance, trade unions and others. Sen. Hussey is one of three members elected to represent the 40,000 students at the National University.

She is also one of the few Independent senators, not affiliated with either of Ireland's two major parties. As an Independent, she does have committee assignments and she serves on the committee which approves legislation coming from the Brussels commission, which is the legislative arm of the European Common Market.

As an active member of the Irish women's political organization, she points with pride to the fact that equal pay for equal work for women in Ireland came as a result not of an act of the Irish government, but by a mandate from the Common Market.

She was particularly pleased to see the advances made by Irish-American women in politics and said it was a note of encouragement she would point to when she returned home.

On a political note, she said that when she first came to the United States she was pro-Jimmy Carter, but was leaving pro-Kennedy, saying she was impressed by his commitment to social welfare issues.

Steering Committee Named For United First Parish Campaign

A 14-member steering committee has been named to lead the effort to make United First Parish Church a National Historic site.

Chairing the committee are State Senator Paul Harold and Braintree businessman and church member Richard Porter.

Other members include Dr. Carol Lee Griffin of Quincy Public Schools; Quincy Savings Bank president Charles Pearce; former mayor and state senator James McIntyre; retired Quincy businessman Frank Remick and church members Peter Anderson, Mrs. Roland Cosimini, William T. Flavin, Mrs. C. Henry Johnson, Forrest Neal Jr., Frank Vallier and Dr. Walter Wrigley and United First Parish minister Rev. Keith Munson.

The committee was scheduled to meet Tuesday night to begin plans, Porter said. "The aim is to get every single element of the city behind this effort," he said.

National Historic Site status would give the "Church of the Presidents" funds for much needed repairs and maintenance, but still allow the congregation to use it, Porter said.

The steering committee will soon announce the names of the advisory committee members, he added. Mayor Arthur Tobin and Congressman Brian Donnelly will be honorary co-chairmen of the committee.

The 1980 Bride

The perfect wedding is yours with some advance planning

You're in love and you've promised to marry him. You're feeling as sentimental as old lace and in a bit of a tizzy wondering what to do first. You want your wedding to be a beautiful start to your life together.

The key is organization.

A beautiful, formal wedding involves plenty of behind-the-scenes planning. She recommends a headstart of six months to a year.

Once the date is set, the bride usually sits down with her parents to discuss the size, style and budget allocated, taking their personal wishes into consideration.

Wedding expenses are traditionally divided between families of the bride and groom, but the bride's family is entirely responsible for the ceremony and reception expenses.

Six months before the wedding is not too early for the groom to choose his ushers and finalize honeymoon plans. The bride will be busy making the appropriate reservations and shopping for wedding attire for herself and her attendants.

Three months before, the bride and groom should have completed their guest list, taking care to include important members of both families.

This detailed record will be useful later for writing thank-you notes and inviting friends to visit them in their first home.

At this point, the bride should register with the local stores and select her china, silver and crystal.

MAKING MEMORIES is what a wedding is all about.

This is also the time to order the wedding cake if it's not included in the caterer's package. (You can determine if it's more economical to take the cake offered in the caterer's reception package rather than purchasing it elsewhere.)

Next, the unlikely chore of choosing the bridal bouquet and going-away corsage belongs to the groom. Two months before the wedding, he should visit the florist and arrange for corsages for the mothers and grandmothers, and boutonnières for the attendants, as well.

There are so many things to remember planning a wedding many couples find it useful to buy a wedding memory album.

"It not only serves to record the actual day, but the myriad details leading up to it. Memorabilia such as snapshots, newspaper clippings, even a matchbook from the restaurant they visited, will revive all the joys leading up to the wedding.

The last few weeks should be a time when the bride and groom can enjoy the festivities being planned for them and the excitement of the wedding to come.

Two weeks before the ceremony, the groom makes a date with his fiancée to get the marriage license. Both bride and groom keep a daily record of the arriving gifts and arrange for transportation for their attendants to the church.

The final week is a time of rehearsal and attendants' parties. The bride gives the caterer a final guest count. And, both she and the groom arrange to move their belongings to their new home.

A handy guide to enjoying the world of fine wines

Nothing perks up a dinner like a bit of wine, according to Rod Strong, Sonoma Vineyards' talented winemaker and an authority on food.

Wine can make an average dinner seem a little more glamorous, and a fine dinner a gourmet delight.

The most important thing to remember about wine, according to Strong, is that it's just like a fine food.

One can read about food and wine, but you will never appreciate wine until you start buying bottles, pulling corks, enjoying wine and finding out what wines you really like.

Start off by having some friends over for a wine tasting. That way, you will be able to sample several wines and take some notes about the kinds of wine you like. Ask your friends to bring their favorite bottle.

Guide to good taste

Here are some handy guidelines from Strong: red and white wines at the less-sweet end of the taste spectrum seem to go better with food. White wine is fast replacing the cocktail as a beverage to drink alone.

In California, the best wines are usually named after the grape they are made from.

In whites, this would include wines such as Sonoma Vineyards' French Colombard, a very dry, crisp wine, and Chenin Blanc, a very fruity wine, often with a touch of sweetness.

Others include Chardonnay, a usually drier white wine, often aged in oak to bring out the wine's complexity, and Johannisberg Riesling, a wine with, again, some fruitiness and sweetness.

Generally speaking, the Johannisberg Riesling and the Chenin Blanc might be more appropriate as "sipping" wines, while the Chardonnay and French Colombard might be better with light foods such as chicken, fish and light veal dishes.

But again, remember, this is just a guide; only your taste will confirm your pleasure.

Red wines are generally drier, more robust and more complex than whites and so seem to go best with richer dishes like meats and cheese.

These wines also cleanse the palate and help indigestion as well as taste rich in the mouth.

The classic California reds are Cabernet Sauvignon and Zinfandel. These two reds seem to do the best in California's generous climate.

Gamay Beaujolais is the lightest of the red wines; Petite Sirah produces some of the heartiest red wines. Pinot Noir often turns out to be a fairly light wine in California but, at its best, is rich and complex.

When it comes to serving wines, a few simple basics will stand you in good stead.

The proper temperature

White wines generally should be served chilled; not iced, mind you. Chilling makes a white wine more refreshing, but icing will take all the taste out of a delicate white wine.

Red wine should be served at "cool" room temperature, about 60°-65°F is best.

No need to get fancy with

A TOAST TO ROMANCE, happiness and good living.

glassware. The best wine glass is a simple, clear glass with a generous bowl. Don't hide the beautiful color of wine with colored or tinted glassware.

A four-ounce serving in an eight-ounce glass seems to be an ideal balance. This gives a chance for the wine to develop a little breathing room in the glass, adding to your sensory pleasure.

Talk to one who knows

Two things that will help you enjoy the fine wine game—first, find a wine store with a salesperson who really knows his wine. Just like any other purchase, it helps when your salesperson knows something about his product.

Second, find a nice place to store wines. Light is wine's worst enemy; excessive heat is next.

If you don't have a cool cellar, a nice part of a dark closet will do. Keep wines stored on their side so that the cork doesn't dry out.

Red wines generally benefit from aging; white wines often taste best when served within the year purchased.

Take a deep breath and smile!

The ceremony is rapidly approaching and you, the groom, are naturally getting gradually more nervous.

Mr. Robert C. Rudolfer, President of After Six Formal, makes these suggestions for getting through the day calmly.

- Take everything one moment at a time.
- Make sure boutonniere is on.
- Remove hands from pockets.
- Take a few deep breaths to relax.
- Smile and take that first great step to the altar.
- When it's all over, remember to kiss the bride.

Merriment is at the heart of colonial nuptials

The Colonial period in American history was characterized by hard work, determination, the Puritan ethic and, all too often, sickness and disease.

However, when it came time for a wedding, all was forgotten and the upcoming marriage became the center of gaiety and merriment, marked by a grand nuptial celebration.

For both rich and poor, weddings were the best excuse for a big house party, usually held in the home of the bride.

Early accounts of marriages between men and women of very well-to-do families, from the late 1600's to early 1800's, reveal the grandeur of Virginia wedding celebrations.

Over 100 guests, well-dressed and of social standing, were typically invited. Tables laden with meats of all kinds, beer, cider and punch, often enough for a regiment of soldiers, were provided for the guests to feast on.

Outlet for mirth

Such gala celebrations, which often lasted more than one day, provided an outlet for a little innocent mirth and the gaiety continued way into the night as the guests sang, drank and danced cotillions, minuets and country jigs.

Colonial New Hampshire wedding parties featured "running for the bottle," a race by friends of the groom accompanying him to the bride's house on the morning of the wedding day.

The champion for each of several groups rode daredevil to the bride's house where a bottle of rum awaited.

The winner seized the bottle, turned to meet the wedding party, quickly passed the bottle around for all to drink from and finally, the bridegroom flung the last drops of rum to the ground. This gesture may have been executed as a libation to unknown gods.

Skillful homemaking keeps house beautiful

After the honeymoon, every new bride is anxious to turn her new abode into a home she and her husband can be proud of.

The multiple tasks involved in keeping house may seem overwhelming, even for the most ambitious bride, but there are ways to simplify the job. These hints can help:

- Develop a schedule and stick to it. The secret to getting chores done quickly and efficiently is organization. If you can't fit everything into a weekly schedule, rotate the jobs, so that everything gets cared for in due time.

- Pay particular attention to the kitchen and bathroom. These rooms reflect the cleanliness of your entire household so, when they look good, people aren't as likely to notice if other rooms are not in perfect order.

Routinely load the dishwasher. Quickly and effectively clean up spatters and smudges, touch up tub and sinks daily

- Remember, cleaning alone does not a homemaker make. Cook some simple but delicious meal such as lasagne from scratch.

Make it in quantities large enough to freeze for additional meals. Then, when company drops in unexpectedly, you can offer invitations to dinner on the spur of the moment.

- Show-off your ingenuity. Little touches count and leave big impressions. Moisten a cotton swab with spray cleaner to clean out difficult-to-remove soil that builds under telephone dials.

- Fill a glass jar with dry rose petals to use as a constant air-freshener in bathrooms; stir occasionally to revive scent.

For the honeymoon month, the bride was a "Coming-out Bride," making grand entrances into Sunday church services dressed in wedding finery.

Unlike the wedding ceremony, the pre-nuptial period was much less festive, with prudent and reserved behavior expected of both bride and groom-to-be.

The groom was selected by the bride's parents and a chaperone accompanied the couple on their excursions together.

New England tradition

In rural New England, the groom stayed at the bride's home for a few days before the wedding. At night, the future bride and groom slept fully "bundled" in their clothing, safely separated by a wooden board in the bride's bed.

White, as the color of the wedding gown, was not popular until the Victorian era. Favorite colors in Colonial days included yellow, blue and lilac.

During the American Revolution, American brides favored red, the color of defiance. The bride usually chose her favorite best dress in which to be married and the groom often wore a suit of the same color.

Many superstitions centered around the joyous occasion of marriage during this time period. In New England, a couple never married on ill-omened Friday, hangman's day.

It was a fortunate bride that met up with a white cat. And, in pioneer America, a bread peel, resident of a good harvest, was considered a lucky wedding present.

The Marriage Cup

IN NAPOLEONIC FRANCE, every bride was given a fine silver marriage cup by her family or a close friend. At her wedding reception, the newlyweds sealed their troth by drinking a favorite wine from the marriage cup as the guests looked on. # Memorable brides are the result of early planning

Our Roman ancestors had several bridal customs that have lingered through centuries of celebration and ritual. For one, they tossed a torch at the end of the ceremony.

The French revised this in the 1300s to a safer banquet of flowers, with the person catching them destined to marry next. The Romans gave us the wedding veil, believing it was a protection from evil spirits. Their wedding cakes were water, barley, flour and salt, then the necessities of life.

As to June brides, these ancients believed that the sixth month, named for Juno, Goddess of marriage, was the most propitious time to wed.

June is still the most popular month for weddings. Seasonally it is the perfect beginning. Life blossoms and the earth is at its peak of warmth and vitality.

Planners for June weddings are thinking NOW about that big event. If they aren't, they soon should be.

There are countless aspects to the perfect wedding that takes months of planning: the color scheme, the clothes, the flowers, the guest list—details such as the reception and the music. All exciting and all needing considerable planning.

The focal point at that June, or indeed, that January wedding is the bride herself. All eyes are on her on this, her most special day.

As lovely as she will ever be, she takes the right preparation and follows a few useful beauty tips. The experts at Revlon have some well chosen tips to help make all beautiful dreams come true.

Two immediate steps every bride should take as early as possible are plan common sense. The first is to establish the one fragrance that will be her special signature.

When she walks down that aisle and into her groom's life forever, it wouldn't do to suddenly surprise him with some exotic perfume—the fragrance he will always associate with life's finest moments should be subtly expressive of his bride.

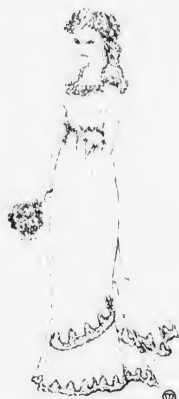

The second step recommended is to take into account along with the bridal gown and flowers, exactly how the bride's hair and make-up will complete the picture of perfection.

Hair may need to grow during the coming months, and the color may need subtle changing or brightening. Walking down the aisle with a dramatically long auburn hair-do is fine unless the bride had short brown hair only the day before.

All the experts agree that the classic bride has a subtle make-up—the merest hint of hardness, or too much brightness, is not desired.

The time to begin learning proper make-up application is during these planning stages, not at the last minute.

Last, but hardly least, skin care is an ongoing concern for all, for the bride it is especially necessary to evolve a daily routine of skin maintenance that makes the face glow and shine with health and beauty.

In prehistoric times, cave dwellers simply kidnapped the most desirable bride from a neighboring tribe and the "best man" helped fight off angry relatives. What little planning the bride accomplished she did while being dragged to her new cave!

Celebrating wedding rites began long ago. Today's weddings are a once in a lifetime opportunity for brides to shine radiantly but, from the Romans on, planning makes that special difference.

Champagne Tip

Champagne can be kept at home four to six years, lying on its side in a dark cool place away from drafts, as you would any fine wine. Stored longer, Champagne might deteriorate and lose its effervescence.

"To Serve You Better"

On your honeymoon . . .

Look as beautiful as you did when you walked down the aisle

Every bride seems to have an extra measure of beauty as she steps, center stage, throughout her special day.

When the festivities are over and you depart for that long-dreamed-of honeymoon, you'll want to maintain that optimum feeling with minimum time.

Your honeymoon can be a more perfect pleasure if you're well organized so, even before you start packing, make a list of all essentials.

That way, no beauty products, toiletries, or medications will be left out.

Convenient travelling

An ideal way to pack is to use three plastic-lined traveling kits. You'll have a special place for everything, and you won't have to unpack it all at one time.

Kit one is for your carry-along case and should include essentials you use every day: toothbrush and toothpaste, makeup, perfume, vitamins, and skin care and bath products.

When packing makeup, one set is all you need. Just intensify colors for a glamorous evening look.

Count out vitamins and pills to match the length of your trip. If you transfer containers, preferably to lightweight plastic bottles, be sure to label each one.

Items such as shampoos and conditioners also can be transferred to plastic containers.

Carry separately

These are likely items for kit two. It should include products you might not use daily and can be carried in your suitcase. It might also hold curlers, your razor and a first aid kit.

Kit three is your specialty kit and can go in your suitcase as well. It should hold what you need for the particular place you're going, for example, sun lotions and eye drops for sun, sea and sailing.

Personal take-alongs

To make traveling even more pleasurable, you might want to add your favorite tea and some sticks of incense to scent your

KEEPING UP YOUR DAILY BEAUTY REGIMEN during honeymoon travel will be easier if you're well organized.

WHAT THE REVLOX EXPERTS SAY ABOUT BRIDAL MAKE-UP:

- Be as natural as possible. Do not over-do make-up.
- As the gown is selected, think in terms of hair and face as well.
- A harmony of colors is essential to a beautiful wedding. Flowers, maids' dresses, even the colors of the church or hall, should influence your selection of nail color and make-up color highlights.
- Colors should be muted, soft or veiled. Flat tones are best. Frosted shades or whites create glare and should be avoided.
- Sharp contrasts are to be avoided and shine should be only on lips with a hint at the cheeks. (Cheek color is best applied under foundation.)
- The foundation should be matte or semi-matte, easiest with a sheer, water-based foundation (match skin tone of neck for color). Several shades darker can be a beautiful emphasis above eyes.
- Eyes should be emphasized with natural tones. No harsh colors, but a touch of blue shadow out of the corner of the eye.
- Curl eyelashes for larger eyes and mascara applied afterwards—tips first, then the entire lash.
- Lip pencils in soft, natural shades fill in lips. Slightly brighter is only appropriate for evening weddings.
- Finishing touch is the lightest brush with powder, very fine, translucent.
- Apply perfume to ankles as well as the pulse points—the swirl of skirt will carry the scent down the aisle.

honeymoon suite.

Once you arrive, reserve time for pampering. Draw a bath of warm water. It can make you feel luxurious and relaxed with the addition of a silky skin-softer such as Pond's Tropical Bath that's soothingly fragrant.

Use a loofah to stimulate circulation, shape eyebrows, condition hair, pamper your face with a beauty masque. Then, just relax while sipping a brisk cup of tea.

During your trip, the bath is a great way to rejuvenate after long days of sightseeing or at the beach. Continue your normal beauty routine.

Uplift your skin

Apply a refreshing skin lotion with a cream and cocoa butter base liberally to further feel uplifted as well as to soften skin.

With a well-planned beauty routine, you can stay looking as radiant and healthy as when you first stepped down the aisle.

Life-Saving Laundry Tips For New Brides

You're home from your honeymoon, the suitcases are unpacked, and . . . the washload seems foreign and immense. You know how to care for your own laundry, but the bundle before you is doubled—full of unfamiliar male undergarments, shirts and slacks.

Don't let romance dissolve into tears and a hysterical phone call to your mother.

Although doing more wash is not thrilling, you can handle it. Unisex clothing reinforces the fact that what you and your husband wear—although different in size—is virtually the same and, therefore, requires similar treatment.

Follow the basic laundry procedures:

- Sort the clothes not by gender, but according to the amount and kind of soil, light and dark colors, and type of fabric.

- Check pockets—especially his—and remove any contents. (Remember, men tend to use pockets more than women do.)

- Be careful not to set any new stains on garments. Pretreat spots and stains with an application of soil and stain laundry remover.

Healthful cooking with natural ingredients

Now that you're in your new home, and cooking for two, you may be concerned about the extensive use of synthetic chemicals found in today's processed foods.

However, there are many natural ingredients you can add while cooking to enhance flavor, color and taste.

Water, nature's sparkling gift, can be used to make foods moist, and reduce calories and greasiness.

It can be used when making a cheese spread to reduce the oil-ness, and to make the spread less fattening.

Water can also be used with instant dry nonfat milk as a milk substitute in many cooked dishes.

Instant nonfat dry milk is, by itself, a valuable addition to your pantry. It is less costly than whole milk and contains much less fat.

Powdered milk is rich in lactose, or milk sugar, and can be used as a natural sweetener.

The flavor of the foods you create yourself can be made more interesting and exotic with the use of herbs and spices.

Fresh herbs and spices have more flavor and vitamins than dried. Garlic, onion powder, thyme, basil and oregano are absolute essentials for any cook.

If there's a chocolate lover in your house, nature has provided a substitute.

Carob comes from the fruit of the carob tree, which grows in the Middle East. It contains fructose, a low calorie sugar that is easier to digest, and no natural oil.

With this beginning knowledge on healthful cooking additions, you can produce chemical-free foods in your new home, at little cost.

Financial guide for the bride and groom

Who's responsible for what in a wedding? The bride and groom each have a number of financial obligations—which, incidentally, balance out very well if they follow this simple guideline.

Obligations of the Bride

- The bride pays for:
  - Her wedding gown, headpiece and veil.
  - Her personal trousseau.
  - The gifts for her attendants (the attendants purchase their own gowns).
  - The bridal portrait.
  - All decorations (including the floral decorations) and music for the wedding and reception.

- The attendants' bouquets.
- The wedding photographs.

- The wedding reception, including the fee for the place in which the reception is held.

- The fee for the place of the ceremony.

- The wedding cake.
- The wedding ring for the groom.

- The bride's personal wedding gift to the groom.

Obligations of the Groom

The groom purchases:

- The engagement and wedding rings for the bride.
- The marriage license.
- The bachelor dinner, if any is given.

- Gifts to the best man and ushers.

- Contribution to the clergyman or officiating authority.

- The bride's bouquet and going-away corsage, as well as corsages for both mothers and all boutonnières.

- The groom's personal gift to the bride.

- Attendants' ties and gloves, if the wedding is formal.

- The wedding trip.

Giving a wedding shower? Make it a fun time for all!

Planning a wedding shower? There are plenty of ways to make this event easy and fun—for the bride, the guests and for you!

One way is to give the shower a theme. This will guide guests in a nice way toward gifts the bride and groom will really appreciate.

According to Bride's magazine, it's perfectly acceptable to mention on the shower invitation stores where the bride is registered.

Bride's also reports many department store bridal registries now list the housewares department so this allows an even wider choice in gift buying.

If the bride is not registered, she'll thank you for listing her favorite bath or decorating colors on the invitation.

For a kitchen gadget shower you might headline your invitation, "Cook's Delight," or for a bath theme, "Decorate the Bath!" Carry the theme through...

...gift bars of soap could be game prizes at a bath shower. And, for wedding gift ideas, a new line called Rubbermaid II offers pretty bath items in gift boxes.

Consider the couple's taste

You could also plan the shower around the decorating tastes of the bride and groom. The invitation could read... "A Country Shower... Janet and Dave are lovers of old-fashioned treasures and homespun natural goods, so think 'country' for this shower!" Cards with a calico print or artwork of pottery and baskets would help convey the idea.

Don't forget important details... enough seating (arranged for sociable conversation), fresh flowers or other decorations and soft music in the background.

You may need someone to help you welcome guests and introduce people to each other, plus help in serving refreshments and someone to note gifts and give as packages are opened (have pen and paper on hand).

Prior to the shower, cover the basics with those helping you so minimum direction will be required while guests are present.

Games? More than one person has groaned at the thought, but they can help break the ice for guests just meeting one another.

Well-groomed

Hands

One of the most important days in a young woman's life is her wedding. And, of course, she wants everything to look perfect—right down to the tips of her nails.

Beautifully-cared-for hands and nails are always an asset but they're never more important than when the bride-to-be proudly shows off her diamond engagement ring.

Since they'll be constantly in the limelight, her hands and nails deserve special attention. Nail lacquer can greatly improve the appearance of hands and even condition the nails.

● Remove nail enamel the night before you give yourself a manicure.

● Always shape when nails are dry, but cut or clip after soaking in warm water. Using an emery board, always file in one direction using a light but deft stroke.

● Massage moisture lotion into cuticles and around sides of fingernails—soak hands in warm soapy water, rinse and dry. Using the blunt end of a cuticle stick, gently push back the cuticle.

● Apply one coat of Base Coat prior to applying nail enamel. (Never put nail enamel directly to the nails)

● Apply two coats of nail enamel; let dry in between application. Brush from the base of the nail to the tip in one movement—avoid retouching.

● While nails are getting all the attention, don't forget hands. Moisturize hands and all the way up to the elbows.

WEDDING SHOWER TIPS: Design a table to display gifts as they are unwrapped. Bridal shower paper and sheer curtains make a backdrop for gifts at this shower themed "The Deluxe Bath." Silk flowers and ribbons on gifts can become lovely keepsakes for the bride and a pretty bouquet for the wedding rehearsal.

Here's a suggestion. Have two sets of matching numbers prepared. Each arriving guest receives a number while the duplicate is attached to their gift. As the bride opens each gift she calls out the number and the guest with that number must relate some funny incident, perhaps from marriage, a first date or a situation of their choice.

You can tie this idea into a kitchen or bath shower theme by having guests relate their craziest experiences in a kitchen or a bathroom.

Guests can vote on the winning story, and to collect the prize the winner must sing a stanza from a favorite "in-the-shower" tune for a bath shower, or perhaps make up an "ode to a vegetable" for a kitchen shower. (If the winner was voted the funniest story teller, there will probably be little trouble with this assignment!)

Have a good time

Above all, plan the shower to provide a happy event for your guest of honor, and do simplify gift buying for your guests with a little direction.

Finally, allow yourself time to join in the festivities. Planning ahead with a fun shower theme will help assure you and your guests of the best time possible.

At Annual Chamber Dinner Friday

Grossman, Blake Brothers, Mrs. Logan To Be Honored

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce will honor Joseph Grossman, John and Gary Blake and Mrs. Polly Logan with its 1980 awards at the annual dinner meeting Friday night at Lantana, Randolph.

Grossman was selected "Citizen of the Year", the Blakes, "Business Family of the Year" and Mrs. Logan, "Stateswoman of the Year". The award winners are voted by the chamber's board of directors from nominees from the business community.

Grossman, a Quincy resident, was honored for his part in developing Grossman's from a small family lumber business, based in Quincy, to a national company and for his longtime involvement in civic affairs. Grossman has served the city in many official capacities, including the House of Representatives and the Governor's Council. A graduate of the John Hancock School and Plymouth Business School, Grossman is now a Fellow of Brandeis University, a member of the President's Council of Boston College and an Honorary

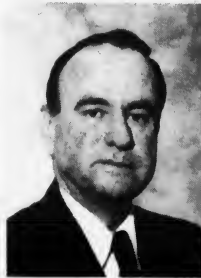

GARY BLAKE

Doctor of Laws at Nasson College. He has also established scholarships at Brandeis and Harvard University.

Grossman is the only living charter member of the Quincy Rotary Club and a past president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, the American Red Cross chapter and the United Way.

He also organized the Quincy

JOHN BLAKE

Lodge of B'nai B'rith and is a longtime member of Temple Beth El.

The Blakes are owners of Colony, Inc. of Hingham, distributors of industrial, medical and cryogenic gases. The business was founded in Quincy in 1961 and is now one of the largest companies of its type in the country.

The firm, which has approximately $7 million in sales annually and employs over 60 persons, was named "Distributor of the Year" for the Eastern United States by Union Carbide in 1979.

The Blakes also hold numerous memberships in civic, social and charitable organizations. John Blake is past president of the Chamber of Commerce and is now president of the Clover Club of Boston.

POLLY LOGAN

Mrs. Logan, a Hingham resident, formerly of Cohasset, is Republican State Committee-woman for the Norfolk and Plymouth district and Republican National Committee-woman for Massachusetts. She was honored for her work in getting people involved in the political process, and bringing state and national leaders a greater awareness of South Shore problems and opportunities.

Quincy Red Cross Seeks $8,800 For Disaster Relief

The Greater Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross is trying to raise $8,800 for its emergency disaster campaign - its share of $15 million being raised nationwide for disaster relief.

Historically, the American Red Cross is known as an emergency orientated organization, providing relief to those who need help from fire, wind or high water.

Now, says Peter F. Macdonald of Quincy, chapter chairman of the Greater Quincy Chapter, the Red Cross has an emergency of its own - and it's a financial one.

It is not hard for residents of Quincy and the South Shore communities to remember the devastation of the Blizzard of '78. The Red Cross spent $2 million up and down the New England coast providing emergency food, clothing, shelter, furniture, and medical needs, Macdonald said.

Since 1978, we have been spared. The victims in 1979 were far to the South, where two hurricanes, David and Frederick killed and destroyed. Robert Vessey, national director for Disaster Services for the American Red Cross said those hurricanes accounted for nearly $13.4 million of the over $23 million spent on preparedness and relief between July 1, 1979 and October 1, 1979.

"The American Red Cross is simply doing a job the American People asked us to do in 1905 when the American Red Cross was chartered by Congress to provide immediate relief to victims of natural disasters, no matter how big," Macdonald said.

With less than $2 million dollars to last until June 30, the Red Cross has been conducting an emergency disaster campaign for a couple of months now to raise $15 million since its average expenses for disasters in the October 1 - June 30 period average $16.5 million.

Kelly's Pub & Grub Granted 7-Day License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Kelly's Pub & Grub, 27 Billings Rd., North Quincy, was granted a seven day all alcoholic-common victualer license at Tuesday's City License Board meeting.

The pub had held a six day all alcoholic-common victualer license and according to Atty. John J. Doyle, the request for the additional day of operation was for economic reasons.

Doyle and Peter Kelly, president, director and manager of the establishment, showed the board picture's of the pub's interior, and said they had heard of no real objections to their request.

City Clerk John M. Gillis said the board received a letter from the North Quincy Local Development Corporation favoring the granting of the request because the pub "has done much to improve the business area."

Gillis also said the Sacred Heart Parish Council said in a letter that it had no opposition to the licensing.

Ward Councillor Joanne Condon said that although her constituents at one time opposed the request, they had "no objection now to the licensing because the man (Kelly) has established credibility and we would like to support someone who is working for the neighborhood."

Board members pointed out to Kelly that the pub can open no earlier than 1 p.m. on Sundays, and that a separate request must be made for consideration of an earlier opening hour.

In another matter, the board continued for one week a request from George P. Marangos, of 85 Van Winkle St., Dorchester, to be licensed as manager of School St. Sunoco, Quincy Center, formerly Port Oil Corp.

Marangos told the board he would be leasing the station, diagonally across from St. John's Church, from John Swimmer of East Falmouth.

"As soon as the first days of good weather arrive, we'll begin work on improving the station to make it look good," Marangos said.

Marangos said that the station would be open on Sundays. In response to a query from Chief Finn, he said he would not be charging customers for putting air in tires as some local gas stations were reportedly doing. The matter was continued pending presentation to the board of a contract specifying the improvements that would be made at the station.

In other action, the License Board:

- Granted a request from the Quincy Lodge of Moose for a one-day all alcoholic license to be used in conjunction with a Las Vegas Night Friday, April 18, 8 p.m. to midnight, at the Fore River Clubhouse. The matter was continued from last week's meeting when board members requested explicit details on who would be running the games.

- Lodge representative George A. Paris told the board this week that the games would be run by lodge members, not professional dealers who, Chief Finn said, have been known to "fleece" the public.

Chief Finn said that he would not vote for any liquor license to be used in conjunction with a Las Vegas Night run by professionals.

- Granted a liquor license to the Committee to Re-Elect Thomas F. Brownell for a fund-raising event Sunday, April 13, 5 to 7 p.m., at the Faxon Commons Club House, 1001 Southern Artery.

as part of the monthly speaker series at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 245 Atlantic St., North Quincy.

Sunblad is clinical director of the alcoholism unit at South Shore Mental Health. A group discussion will follow the presentation, and all are invited to attend.

Owl Patrol Wins Scouts Klondike Derby

The Owl Patrol of Wollaston nosed out the Apaches in a photo finish to win the Boy Scout's Blue Granite District Klondike Derby recently at Camp Sayre in the Blue Hills.

One hundred scouts from Quincy and Milton, organized into 14 patrols, participated in the derby with home-made dog sleds which traveled along trails in a race for "gold" and the first prize.

The Owl Patrol won first place by collecting the most "golden nuggets" at stations along the way which tested their skills in first aid, fire building, knot tying, rescue techniques and pioneering. The patrol was comprised of members of the boy scout troop sponsored by St. Chrysostom's Church, Wollaston.

The Apaches from Quincy finished second, and the Hawks, also from Quincy, were third.

The winners were awarded trophies by "Klondike Pete" also known as Houghs Neck scoutmaster Marty Gordon, who directed the event.

The Owl Patrol was led by Robert Gormley and included John DeForge, Bobbe DeForge, Richard Carr, Rick Stanton and Danny O'Sullivan.

Nick Gelsomini led Apaches members David Blaton, Scott Dyer and Phillip Iacobacci. The Hawks were led by Jim Ward and members were Chipper Langille, Bryan Lambert and Bill Heffernan.

Judges for the competition were Nick Cortese, Harold Crowley, Jim Donovan, Joe Giggey, Adele Gormley, Rod MacDonald, Paul McLaughlin, Charles Morgan and Jack Nigro.

National Suicide by Smothering Under Mountains Of Paper

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings

and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham

8-6 Weekdays

8-7:30 Thursdays

"If destruction be our lot, we ourselves must be its author and finisher. As a nation of free men, we must live through all time or die by suicide."

This was the judgment of Abraham Lincoln during a speech delivered in Springfield, Illinois, in 1837. He could not have foreseen how the suicide would take place. It would be incredible in his time to anticipate that it could come from binding ourselves in bureaucratic red tape and smothering under mountains of paper.

The irony is that we ourselves, as Lincoln said, will be "author and finisher." In the memorable words of Pogo, "We have met the enemy - and they are us."

In recent decades, we committed our government to the laudable if quixotic quest for a perfect society. We wanted every citizen to enjoy the benefits of education, housing, health care, financial security, equal opportunity. We insisted on a cleaner environment. We sought safer transportation by air, rail, and auto. We insisted on the suppression of crime and more enlightened treatment of criminals. As consumers, we demanded protection against fraud and dishonesty in government and business.

If these goals require new laws and regulations, so be it. We left it to our legislators to enact them.

But we did not reckon the consequences -- "the horrible Federal bureaucracy," as President Carter has described it.

Each new law requires an army of experts to develop regulations covering conceivable applications and a complex agency of workers to supervise and enforce. In 1977, Congress passed 223 laws, which generated 7,568 new regulations. There are 4,000 laws that deal with Federal contracting. And 80,000 sets of specifications for everything from aircraft carriers to mousetraps. The specs on mousetraps contain 20,000 words spread over 700 illustrated pages.

Behind our 100 senators and 439 representatives are staff people who have tripled in number in the past decade. They include 5,000 professionals, mostly young lawyers, who serve the Congressmen and their 55 committees and 292 subcommittees. It is these unelected and faceless bureaucrats who actually write the laws of the land and influence the legislative processes at every step.

We still don't have the perfect society, and meanwhile the horrendous cost of the effort -- in monstrous bureaucracy, Government overspending, disenfranchised electorate, mounting indebtedness -- threatens the nation's economic fiber.

It's time to let our political leaders know how we feel about this prospect of national suicide.

Brownie Troop 110 Visit Quincy Sun

Members of Brownie Girl Scout troop 110 of Quincy and Milton visited The Quincy Sun recently to see first hand how a newspaper is produced.

Making the tour were Tara Mellett, Maura McGlane, Jennifer Turner, Lisa Starratt, Michelle McNulty, Eileen Cormican, Joanne Doyle and Patrice DiZinno.

The girls were accompanied by their troop leaders, Carol Mellett and Dolly McGlane.

The scouts were shown how news stories are written, set in type and placed on a page, including the story of their visit. They saw an IBM computer typesetter, two Compugraphic photo typesetters, and a new Vartypier phototypesetter that sets news stories, headlines, advertisements, and has a video screen for editing. It is one of the latest typesetters in newspaper production today.

They also saw how a stat camera reduces, enlarges and screens original photographs so they can be used in The Sun.

They were also shown how pages of The Sun are put together for printing.

The scouts were presented with copies of the current issue of The Sun at the end of their tour.

Parent-Teacher Council Seeks Voice On School Committee

The School Committee is scheduled to consider at its March 26 meeting the request of the City-Wide Parent Teacher Council for associate membership on the committee.

Barbara Wigmore, president of the council, said this week that associate member status was necessary to keep the parent-teacher group informed on issues affecting the schools and give the council a voice on those issues.

Mrs. Wigmore, a resident of 110 Elm St., Quincy Center, represented the Daniel Webster school. The council consists of one representative and one alternate from each of the city's public schools.

According to School Committee Vice-chairman Christopher Kennedy, associate membership allows a representative to address the committee or ask questions at any point in the meeting. Other persons must request permission in advance to address the committee.

Associate members may not vote or take part in the committee's closed door executive sessions.

The committee now recognizes students from each of the city's high schools and Quincy Junior College as associate members.

The council's request first came before the committee at its March 12 meeting, but was tabled, as Mrs. Wigmore and two committee members were unable to attend.

City Wrestling Champs Again

Broad Meadows Undeclared 5th Year

Broad Meadows Junior High School had a new wrestling coach this year but it made no difference as the team rolled to its fifth successive perfect (8-0) season.

Jim McGuire took over the reins this year after John Bogan had led BM to four straight perfect seasons.

The city champions were led by Captains Mike Miller, Bill Rollins, Ted Walsh and Mike Chenette, all ninth graders, and Mike Notarangelo, an eighth grader.

Broad Meadows' top wrestlers this season were Paul Miller and Joe Monahan, 80 pounds; Paul Silcox and Brian Chase, 90 pounds; Al Costigliola, 100; Notarangelo, 108; Steve Johnston, 116; Mike Miller and Shaun Wynn, 125; Walsh and Darrin DeCoste, 135; Rollins, 145; Chenette, 155, and Al Carpenter, heavyweight.

"There is a great wrestling tradition here and interest is very high," McGuire said. "The junior high wrestling league has really come along and helped the two high schools."

Quincy High coach Carmen Mariano and North Quincy coach Steve Joyce are among the top boosters of the junior high program, which Mariano started.

This year Quincy won its second straight Suburban League and South Sectional championships and North had its finest season ever.

City Club To Meet Mass. Chariots

A delegation of members of the Quincy City Club will travel to Canton Monday, March 31, to visit the Massachusetts Hospital School for Crippled Children on Randolph Ave. and participate in a wheel chair basketball game.

City Club members will meet the Massachusetts School Chariots, a team of school patients who have a 25 win and 0 loss record.

The game will start at 6 p.m. Members of the Quincy City Club participating in the game are requested to be at the school gym by 5:45 p.m. Richard Meade is coaching the Quincy City Club squad. Members wishing to participate may contact him at 31 Greene St., Wollaston.

Richard J. Koch, president of the City Club, has invited those members who do not wish to participate in the game to visit the facility, one of the outstanding hospitals in the state.

The City Club purchased and donated a portable basketball unit to the school last year. It has been installed in the newly constructed gym and allows wheelchair patients to shoot baskets with the ball returned to them by a net assembly. The equipment allows patients to visit the gym anytime and shoot without the need of a person to retrieve the basketball following each shot.

The gift has not only provided hours of enjoyable recreation but also results in physical therapy to those participants who constantly utilize the unit.

It is the first in a series of visits to various hospitals and institutions that the City Club services as part of its Christmas Activities Program. Koch is scheduling a visit of members to Long Island Hospital in early spring to visit with patients at the Island Facility.

The City Club recently welcomed 13 new members. They are: Gerard A. Coletta Jr., Brian Donnelly, Frank J. Kearns, Roger J. Kineavy, John J. Livingstone, Stephen J. McGrath, Shaun M. Mulvaney, William S. Phelan, Richard Quinlan, William Raymer, Edmund Sablock, Charles L. Shea III and Ralph Verrochi.

Officers in addition to Koch are

Atherton Hough, Lincoln-Hancock In Girls Basketball Finals

Atherton Hough and Lincoln Hancock will meet March 26 in the finals of the Recreation Department's All-City Basketball tournament.

The game will be at 6:30 p.m. at Atlantic Jr. High School.

The two teams advanced to the finals by beating Quincy Point and Squantum, respectively.

Quincy point received strong performance from Patty McBride (9 points), Carol Green (8), and Janice Glavin (7), but could not off set Maryann Agres (14), and Katie Dunn (7) for Atherton Hough. Bernie D'Pietro (4 points), Jill congdon (4), Mary Kussman (3) and Karen Dami rounded out Atherton Hough's point total as they won 34-28. Susan Dacey and Heather slicis each chipped in points for Point as well as playing outstanding defense. John Maiano coached Atherton Hough, while Susan DiSalvio coached Point Center.

In the second game Lisa Boyne scored 14 second half points as she broke a 16-16 tie and lead Lincoln Hancock Center to a 42-21 win over Squantum. Squantum's Sandra Whitehouse led her team with 9 points, followed by Sheila Graham and Cheryl Murphy with four and Michelle Curvels and Kathy Ford with 2. Lisa Ventala played well on defense. Lincoln Hancock's win could only be termed a team victory as 7 players scored including Christine Balducci who had all her 8 points in the first half, and Christine Gallery who had 6 of her 9 in the first half. Barbie Cahill, Kelly Burke, Tracia Davenport and Janice Walsh rounded out the scoring. Patty McDudin and Laura D'Andrea played well on defense.

Squantum is coached by Cheryl Walsh, while Lincoln Hancock is coached by Maureen McBride.

MDA Lucky Total At Olindy's

The final drawing in Olindy's Lucky Total Contest for the benefit of the Muscular Dystrophy Association will be held, Tuesday, March 25.

Co-owner John Mezzetti will secretly bowl three strings on that date. The person who bowls -- or guesses -- closest to his total will win a Paramount bowling balls and carrying bag set. There is a 50 cent fee for each entry. Proceeds support MDA's vital research and medical services programs.

Winner of the March 11 contest was Mary Ann Carlos of Quincy, with a guess of 310.

The two sets of balls and carrying bag are donated by John, James and Stephen Mezzetti, co-owners of Olindy's.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Do you know when the first NCAA championship basketball tournament was held, and by whom? ... First one was staged 41 years ago, in 1939, and the first school to win it was the University of Oregon.

Oddly enough, a "substitute" team once won the NCAA championship basketball tournament! ... In 1944, just before the tourney was to start, Arkansas withdrew because two of its stars were in an accident ... NCAA officials frantically looked for a team to replace Arkansas ... finally Utah consented to substitute even though Utah had finished only third in their conference and had already lost in the National Invitation Tournament and were eliminated there ... But Utah surprised everybody by then winning the NCAA tournament!

Here's one of the most amazing basketball records of all time ... Wilt Chamberlain, who played in over 1,000 pro basketball games in his career, NEVER fouled out of a game! ... That seems hard to believe—but it's a fact that Wilt never fouled out in any game in any of his 14 seasons in pro basketball!

I bet you didn't know ... that Colman's has everything for baseball and softball. Colman's specializes in team outfitting. Lowest prices ... complete selection.

Leone 3rd In Class C High Jump

Although the undefeated North Quincy girls' track team stole the headlines this winter, several members of Lou Tozzi's boys' team had excellent seasons.

Jack Leone, a junior, had an outstanding year and in the recent state meet he placed third in the Class C high jump with his best jump, 6-4, which would have tied him for first in any other class. The 6-4 leap is especially impressive as Jack is only 5-8.

Steve Mastroilli went to the finals in the 300 but failed to place.

Quincy had no boys' team and Roy Higgins, who worked out with North, placed third in the Class A 300.

In the Suburban League championship meet Leone was fifth in the high jump. Lou DiPietro fifth in the shot put with his best toss, 44-1, Mastroilli third in the 300 and Bob Biagini third in the hurdles with a 6.7 timing, breaking his own school record.

The mile relay team of Paul Earle, Mastroilli, Biagini and Mike Ellis placed fourth.

The Raiders finished their regular season with a 5-4 record.

OVERWEIGHT AND OVER FORTY

Overweight and over forty is an American Dilemma. The fact is that people tend to add weight as they grow older because their physical activity declines. We plug into a car rather than walk - even if shopping is only a couple of blocks away. We take an elevator rather than walk up over two flights. We watch sports rather than participate.

You don't need to be a doctor to know that the best way to trim fat is to eat fewer calories and burn up those you consume. A good way is through exercise - which, despite notions to the contrary, will not increase your appetite. Exercise need not be strenuous to help you lose weight. How many calories will various activities burn up? One half hour of tennis equals 420 calories; and one half hour of running equals 900 calories. Take your choice.

For Downtown Office Building Campanelli Bonds Seen Sold By April

The problems that Campanelli Enterprises has been having with financial arrangements to build an office building on the Della Chiesa Parking Area should be settled in about a month, Planning Director James E. Lydon said Tuesday.

"They are talking to a couple of financial institutions now," said Lydon, after a meeting with Campanelli Vice President Robert DeMarco. "I'm not at liberty to say who they are, but Campanelli expects to have letters of commitment from them by the end of April."

Campanelli was reported having difficulties selling its industrial revenue bonds to build the 10-story, $10 million building due to the high cost of borrowing and the tight money market.

"The financial situation as related to us by DeMarco this morning looks very good, very strong," said Lydon.

"The thing we found most encouraging was that, in spite of the difficulties they have had in the money market, Campanelli continues to invest in the project."

Lydon said the company has invested $125,000 so far in architectural drawings alone and probably will spend another $10,000 with the architects before the end of April.

"They will have invested an additional $25,000 to $50,000 in their legal fees, which now stand at about $125,000," said Lydon.

"They are continuing to pursue the project, not in a low keyed manner but in a very aggressive fashion that I think is encouraging."

Both Lydon and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development director, denied rumors that the project was on the verge of collapsing from financial problems.

Baharian explained that (Cont'd on Page 12)

Property Owners To Get Tax Equalization Data

"Data Mailers" containing information being compiled in the City of Quincy Tax Equalization Program, will be sent to residential property owners throughout the city during the next few months.

The mailers contain information from the number of rooms to the kind of heating system in a residence.

Daniel Harris, project manager for PRC Jacobs, a planning research company, said errors in the mailers should be corrected by placing the proper information on the data mailer. The mailers should then be returned to PRC Jacobs at the address given.

Harris stressed the importance of correcting all errors, since information within the data mailers reflects the basis for calculating values, which represent the market value of the residences.

The mailers are an important step in assuring fairness and accuracy in the tax equalization program, Harris said.

Unless Financial Miracle

Layoffs Coming In Several City Depts.

By TOM HENSHAW

Unless a minor financial miracle is performed on the city budget for fiscal 1981, there will be an undetermined number of layoffs of workers in several departments, The Quincy Sun has learned.

Although Mayor Tobin and Auditor Charles L. Shea, who are currently wrestling with final drafts of the budget, refused to confirm or deny it, Tobin did say:

"It would be very difficult to avoid what I already know from the budgets I have received back from the department heads that the personal services accounts are directly affected."

I'm hoping that it will be a temporary thing in those departments that are affected and whenever things turn around in this city it will be different."

Personal services is one of three categories in the municipal budget, the one covering the payment of salaries and wages to city employees. The others are capital outlay and expenses.

"There is virtually no capital outlay," said Tobin. "Expenses have been cut to the bone. The third category is personal services, sad to say. It bothers me. It's something you hope will go away but you know it won't."

Shea said that he and Tobin and William Grindlay, who is functioning as budget coordinator, are still working on the budget.

"I'm not going to say anything until we get the budget tied together," he said. "There are some areas that are non-personnel items that we might be able to save on. That's what we're working on."

Tobin has served notice that he will not submit a budget to the City Council that is over the state-mandated 4 per cent tax cap.

The School Committee has passed a budget that is 18.5 per cent over that of last year. How much of it is protected by fiscal autonomy has not yet been fully established.

But Tobin said he will submit the school budget to the Council with the comment that the Mayor objects to it and is asking the Council to uphold his objection.

"I'm going to make it very clear what the ramifications are," he said.

"Any city councillor who votes to allow the school or any budget to exceed the 4 per cent tax cap is going to be responsible for that amount of money on the tax rate."

"I'm going to ask the taxpayers to watch that vote very closely."

It requires a two-thirds vote of the Council to go over the tax cap, but the Mayor first has to submit such a budget. By law, the

For Next Year

62 Teacher Layoffs Asked

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The school committee was scheduled to vote last night (Wednesday) on the recommended layoffs of 62 untenured teachers for next year.

According to Assistant School Supt. John Osterman, only 25 to 30 of those layoffs can be attributed to reductions in force due to declining enrollments.

Most of the other layoffs are caused by routine temporary reductions in some departments, for example English or industrial arts, or because teachers were hired to fill temporary vacancies that no longer exist, he said.

According to Osterman, any teacher who completes three years in the system and is not terminated before the fourth automatically receives tenure. Besides the list of 62 proposed layoffs, Osterman will also present the committee with a list of 71 teachers recommended for second- or third-year appointments, or for tenure.

Untenured teachers must be notified by April 15 if they are not to be reappointed for the following year, or they are considered automatically rehired.

If the school committee approves the 62 layoffs, Osterman said, as many of those teachers as possible will still be hired for next year. Those teachers may be rehired to fill whatever vacancies may occur due to resignations, retirements, leaves of absence or other reasons, he said.

Target Date June 2

Presidential Cooperative, Dorchester Bank Plan Merger

The Presidential Cooperative Bank of Quincy and the Massachusetts Cooperative Bank of Dorchester are planning to merge into one $35.2 million thrift institution in June.

The announcement was made jointly by Francis X. McCauley, president of the Presidential Cooperative Bank and Patrick E. O'Hearn, president of the Massachusetts Cooperative Bank.

The merger has been approved by the board of directors of both banks and will be heard by State Banking Commissioner Gerald Mulligan on April 14.

If it receives state approval, the merger will be voted on by the banks' shareholders, with a two-thirds vote needed for final approval. Tentative merger date is Monday, June 2.

The plan calls for O'Hearn to serve as chairman and chief executive officer with McCauley as president.

McCauley said the newly merged bank will maintain offices at 1442 Dorchester Ave., Fields Corner, and 1 Granite St., Quincy.

It will be called the Massachusetts Cooperative Bank.

"The merger will enable us to provide additional services to our customers, such as Keough and Ira (Cont'd on Page 12)

City Gets Grant To Get More Grants

Quincy has received a $22,000 federal grant to help the city get more federal grants to upgrade its park and recreation facilities.

Mayor Tobin said the money from the Department of Interior will be used to add a staff member to the Planning Department whose duties will be to write proposals for more grants.

"The purpose of the $22,000 grant," he said, "is to assess the needs of the park and recreational physical plant."

"The new staffer will concentrate on writing grant proposals so that we can go after federal funds to bring our facilities up to snuff."

"You have to do this first to get the federal money."

Brownell Off-Street Parking Bill Get Favorable Report

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) announces his bill H.2538, providing financial assistance to cities and towns for construction of off-street parking facilities in commercial revitalization districts, has been given a favorable report by the Joint Committee on Transportation.

Brownell said, "The bill is important to communities like Quincy which have severe off-street parking problems in commercial area. It will make available a mechanism through which the state will fund up to 80% of the cost of off-street parking facilities.

"The bill, which will be reported favorably into the Senate in the near future, also provides for the designation of a city agency to implement any proposed project. In addition, the bill contains a bonding authorization of 25 million dollars for the state portion of the program."

If the legislation becomes law, it can be of major help in solving Quincy's persistent downtown parking problems, Brownell said.

Rent-A-Kid Applications Available

Obtaining Bond Difficult

Rental Equipment At QCH May Cost $400,000 Over Purchase

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

A Quincy City Hospital plan to rent equipment may cost the city about $400,000 more than a bond to purchase the equipment outright would have, according to hospital director Anthony DeFalco.

But, the city's borrowing situation would have made it difficult to obtain such a bond, so the hospital went ahead with the more expensive alternative, DeFalco said.

The hospital is now studying a plan to rent about 30 pieces of equipment on a five-year basis, at $250,000 a year. The $1.25 million cost is about 50 percent, or about $400,000, more than if the hospital were able to bond the equipment's purchase over the same five-year period, DeFalco said.

Hospital budget director John Morris was unable to give specific figures on the rental cost as opposed to the cost of bonding the equipment's purchase.

The bonding would be "obviously cheaper," DeFalco said, "but we were unable to get a commitment from the city on a bond issue."

City officials told DeFalco last year the city was "pushing its bond limit," and could not guarantee the purchase of the badly needed equipment, he said.

Four leasing companies have bid for a five-year contract on the equipment, DeFalco said. The hospital's legal counsel is now studying some possible legal tieups with the agreement, which would then require the approval of Mayor Arthur Tobin.

"The appropriation has been made, the money is available," said Dr. Russell Irons, president of the QCH medical staff, last week. "This process has all of the approval it needs, except for the signature of the mayor."

DeFalco and Dr. Irons gave this account of the leasing procedure:

The QCH board of managers asked heads of each of the hospital's medical departments for a list of needed equipment. DeFalco and the board of managers' priorities committee cut this list down somewhat and advertised for bids for the 30-odd pieces of equipment. After receiving a list of purchase prices for the new equipment, the managers then sought bids from leasing companies on five-year rental plan.

"We are pleased with what has been approved by the board of managers, and by what's gone out to bid," Dr. Irons said. "That doesn't mean there won't be equipment that's needed in the future. This is not an endpoint."

The equipment includes "everything from surgical equipment to special X-ray equipment," Dr. Irons added. Purchase prices for the individual pieces of equipment would range from $5,000 to about $50,000, according to DeFalco.

The new equipment would replace some equipment which has become obsolete and some of which is constantly breaking down, DeFalco said. Other equipment will allow the hospital to perform tests which are now sent to outside consultants at added cost, he said.

"There are driving reasons why we need this equipment now," he said. The $250,000 annual rental cost would be paid from QCH's appropriation for capital outlay—a total DeFalco says is inadequate.

"We've had little or no money to work with in capital outlay for the last 10 years," he said. "We're now considerably behind a number of other hospitals." QCH's annual appropriation for capital outlay has been at $250,000 for about 10 years, DeFalco said.

Through The Eyes Of A Foot Patrolman

Drugs--The Dark Side Of Quincy Sq.

By TOM HENSHAW

At 8 o'clock on the morning of March 7, Patrolman Donald Pearson was driving to his beat in Quincy Square when he spotted three youths standing on the corner near the Adams Academy building.

"I recognized one of them as a guy I arrested going into a drug store," he said. "Caught him in the building. Only 15 years old but my information is that he is one of the biggest PCP (angel dust) dealers in one of the junior high schools."

The youngsters saw Pearson almost as soon as he saw them. There were furtive movement among them. Pearson made a U-turn in his van and came back. The trio started to walk away.

"I observed one of them and he was sliding something under his coat," said Pearson. "I walked up to him and grabbed this pipe."

He displayed a pipe, about seven inches long with a quarter ounce bowl, fashioned out of brass tubing.

"He made this in class, probably the day before," he said. "It was still warm. They'd just been smoking it, all three of them."

Pearson called the juvenile car for the youngster with the pipe. He too was only 15 years old. Juvenile took him home. The others went their way. He confiscated the pipe.

"With what I had, just on that spot, it would have been a bum pinch," said Pearson. "I don't waste the court's time. Either I get them good or I don't send them in."

It was the start of a typical day on the job for Pearson, who has been on the Quincy Square beat for a dozen years. He's a rather imposing figure, 6-foot-6 and weighing about 300 pounds.

This is the sixth in a series of articles on the drug problem in Quincy.

"I get a lot of that," he said. "A lot of my arrests have been made the first thing in the morning. That's when I have most of the activity because the kids are going to school."

Pearson views Quincy Square—particularly the MBTA station, the Hancock Cemetery, McIntyre Mall, and even the Thomas Crane Public Library grounds—through different eyes than most.

"I spend most of my time up around the T station because that's where the bulk of the activity is," he said. "From the top of the T station I can watch them dealing or smoking all over the Square."

"I get a good view of the cemetery. I've made scores of arrests in the cemetery. When they had the back fence torn down it was unreal. They were coming in from all ends."

Pearson's "they" are dealers and users of drugs—PCP, marijuana, cocaine and other exotic weeds and chemicals. He calls those who hang out at the T station "my T bums". They call him "Big Pig".

"I get a great deal of activity on the walkway between Upland Rd. and Presidents Lane," he said, conducting a narc's tour of Quincy Square.

"I'll watch them leave the T station when it gets too hot and deal behind the Elks building or the Masonic Temple. I've locked them up in the Patriot Ledger alleyway and the alleys off Maple St. They're all over, like rodents."

"From the roof of the T I can see them over in the doorway of the library . . ."

Just the other day, he got a call from the library. No big deal. Some young people were playing football on the lawn. They scattered when he approached. More interesting was a group of seven hanging on the corner of Coddington and Washington Sts.

"All seven I have locked up personally or I have been there when they were arrested," he said. "All of them have been arrested several times over, and not just for possession of marijuana, which is what I grab most of them for."

CLASSWORK for some students includes the likes of this seven-inch pipe used for smoking marijuana, created in an industrial arts class of one junior high school, according to Patrolman Donald Pearson.

He ticked off the names of the seven, interspersed with brief comments on them.

"This guy's got a case on appeal out in Dedham," he said. "Our undercover girl made several buys from him, all angel

Point Students Told Motorists Should Expect Periodic Gasoline Lines

A spokesman for the Massachusetts Petroleum Council told the science class at Quincy Point Junior High School that motorists should be prepared for gasoline lines that appear and disappear over the next few years as the country swings from shortage to surplus in supplies.

"The fundamental fact that people have to understand about supply and demand is that the difference between shortage and surplus can be very small, and in fact the gasoline lines last May and June were caused by a gasoline shortage of only three to five percent," said Frederick J. Luby, a territory manager for Shell Oil Company.

"The pendulum easily can swing in either direction—then swing back again. Thus we had long gas lines last spring, none last summer but conceivably could have them again in the near future. The basic reason is that we can no longer produce more than we need and build up comfortable storage surpluses," Luby said.

"We are somewhat at the mercy of small nations that are not household names—not just Iran and Saudi Arabia, but Iraq, Libya, Kuwait, Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates. And the only sensible solution is to reduce our consumption while at the same time producing more oil and gas here at home."

Luby said oil companies are heavily audited at every step of their operations by teams of Department of Energy auditors all year long, and all industry statistics are monitored by energy experts at MIT, Harvard, Stanford University, the University of California, and by many independent research groups. President Carter has noted, Luby said, that the energy problem is more difficult to solve as long as people refuse to believe the problem is real.

Drilling in Georges Bank and other frontier areas is essential to solving the nation's energy problem. In 1979 the United States consumed 18.7 million barrels of oil a day, but produced only 10.3 million barrels domestically, Luby said. Thus each day the nation imported about eight million barrels or 43 percent of total consumption, at a total cost to American consumers of $55 billion for the year.

Oil now supplies 50 percent of this nation's energy, gas 25 percent, while New England is dependent on oil and gas for 80 percent of total energy needs. "And many experts believe that half the oil this country will need in 1990 has yet to be found," he continued.

Board Approves Expansion At Pilgrim Luncheonette

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The Quincy License Board approved plans Tuesday for the Pilgrim Luncheonette, 1472 Hancock St., Quincy Center, to renovate and extend its premises to 1474 Hancock St., formerly Archer Kent's.

Contractor Rudy V. Pompeo told the board that Pilgrim owner David B. K. Elson was prepared to spend a "tremendous" amount of money to renovate and expand the establishment which will increase its seating capacity from 46 to 76.

Pompeo, who has also contracted work for Jason's Luggage & Music Shop and Lynn's Card & Gift Shoppe, in downtown Quincy, said that Elson was showing confidence in Quincy by undertaking the expansion.

According to Pompeo, Building Inspector Allan MacDonald, not present at this week's meeting, had been shown the building plans.

The plans were shown to board members City Clerk John M. Gillis, Police Chief Francis X. Finn, Health Inspector Dr. Robert P. McKeogh and Fire Chief Edward Barry at Tuesday's meeting.

The board approved the extension subject to approval by the Building Inspector, the engineers stamp on a beam, and fulfillment of Fire Department requirements.

The board also approved the establishment's change of name to Car-She Corporation doing business as Pilgrim Restaurant.

In another matter, the board took under advisement until April 8, a continued hearing on a request from George P. Marangos of Dorchester to be licensed as manager of School St. Sunoco, 59 School St., Quincy Center. The request had been continued from last week's meeting, when the board had asked Marangos to return with plans for improving the station.

Marangos explained to the board he is leasing the property from Arnold R. Swinimer of East Falmouth, and that his supplier is Sun Oil.

Sun Oil is contracting painting of the station's interior and exterior because they have an interest in Quincy and don't want to let the station go down, said Marangos.

Chief Barry said that the way the station is right now it is no asset to Quincy. He said the board has been subjected to the "razzle dazzle of oil companies before, who want to get a buck out of the area". The board took the request under advisement for two weeks at which time Swinimer and a representative of the oil company will be asked to appear.

In other action, the License Board:

• Continued for two weeks a request from Quik-Rite Inc., formerly Open Pantry at New England, Inc., 318 Furnace Brook Parkway, for a retail package goods store - wine and malt beverage license.

Gillis said that City Councillor Leo Kelly opposed granting of the request because of opposition from abutters. Kelly will be able to specify his complaints April 8.

• Granted a request from the Women's Fellowship of Atlantic United Methodist Church for a flea market Saturday, June 7, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the church.

• Continued for two weeks a request from Manet Shell, Inc., 895 Sea St., for a Motor II license. Chief Barry said that he was not in favor of granting the license because "we want to upgrade the area, not let it go down, and every time we license two or three cars, a whole slew of cars end up there." The board will send the joint inspection team to view the station, and ask City Councillor Leo Kelly for his opinion on the matter.

Chief Barry reported that Dep. Carl Valente inspected Dairy Freeze, 681 Adams St., after complaints were received regarding odors from the establishment.

Barry said Valente termed the Dairy Freeze "immaculate" and said that the establishment has done everything it can to remedy the situation.

Elks' $500 Gift Raises Massasoit Fund Over $26,000

A $5000 contribution from the Quincy Lodge of Elks has brought the total raised by the Massasoit Development Committee to over $26,000.

The committee hopes to raise $30,000 to renovate and improve Camp Massasoit, the Plymouth camp which has served Quincy Boy Scouts for over 50 years. The money will purchase equipment and materials to convert Massasoit into a year-round camping facility.

According to committee chairman Richard Koch, labor is being provided on a voluntary basis, so that the actual value of work at the camp will about triple the $30,000 cost.

During one recent work party at the camp, volunteers installed a new electric system in one of the cabins and began renovation of the former mess hall for a program activities center.

The committee hopes those who may have enjoyed camping at Massasoit as young Scouts will help insure the camp continues to serve present-day Scouts as well as those in the future. Those wishing to make a contribution may contact Donald Gohl at the Quincy Cooperative Bank. To volunteer time and labor contact Harold Crowley at 471-6881.

Delahunt Says His Program Reducing Street Crime in County

Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt says his federally-funded anti-crime project is reducing street crime in Norfolk County.

"Our Career Criminal Unit has made a significant impact on repeat offenders" Delahunt stated.

A $250,000 grant from the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) funds the Unit, which focuses on the most serious problem in law enforcement—street crimes committed by the professional criminal.

"The Unit has been in action since July, 1979," said Delahunt, "and has achieved a 98 percent conviction rate."

The special unit accelerates the prosecution of repeat offenders charged with burglary, robbery or aggravated assault through close cooperation with local police and the courts.

Assistant Dist. Atty. John Kivian, Director of the Unit, explained "In the past, delay undermined the effective prosecution of career criminals. But this Unit gives special attention to the professional criminal in Norfolk County."

Since the Career Criminal Unit began operation, it has consistently achieved its goal of prosecuting repeat offenders. Some cases have been handled within 30 days where normal criminal prosecution can take months or years.

"A vast majority of street crime in Norfolk County is committed by a relatively small number of individuals" said Delahunt. "We are prosecuting these people swiftly and effectively and ending their criminal activity in the community."

OLD COLONY BANK PRESENTS THE $10,000 SAVINGS CERTIFICATE FOR PEOPLE WHO DON'T HAVE $10,000.

Now you can buy a $10,000 six-month savings certificate with as little as $3,000. That means your savings can earn a lot more interest. It's one way banking on a first name basis at Old Colony makes your money work harder.

Here's how. Let's say you have $3,000. We'll lend you the $7,000 you need to buy a $10,000 Six Month Certificate. You earn $10,793.72 on your certificate, pay us back $7,582.90 (total of payments) on your loan due 26 weeks from the date of loan, at an annual percentage rate of 16.700% (the minimum rate we're required by law to charge). Thus, you will receive $210.82 or a 13.900% annual rate on your $3,000 investment. Compare this to the $84.58 you would earn on a 5.5% savings account during the same period. The chart shows how the account works for other amounts.

Don't lose one more day of high interest—start earning it today. Stop in and let us show you how banking on a first name basis means new ways to make more with your money.

dust, the real mind benders. "This guy's a handbag snatcher. He's been convicted of assault and battery on a police officer. He leaped out of the van, kicked the officer in the head and took off. He was high on quaaludes and didn't know what he did."

The list went on. Pearson finally ended up dispersing the group. They were up to no good. He knew that. But there was nothing he could do.

"What can I do?" he asked. "I know there's action going on and they're sitting at the bus stop or on the library lawn and they're all known and convicted drug offenders. Do I go out there each and every day and pat them down?"

"I know the action that's going on and it's right in broad daylight. A lot of it is done in the very center of the library lawn because to get to them I have to walk completely across the lawn."

"In that time, you can stuff anything down in your crotch and I've got to have pretty good probable cause before I get somebody up in the middle of the library lawn and whip his pants off. If you're smoking grass you can eat it or field strip it and blow it away."

The other day, at 8:15 in the morning, Pearson had just gotten on his beat when he saw two girls, 16 and 17, smoking in McIntyre Mall. They were cupping the cigarette in a manner peculiar to marijuana smokers.

"I walked right up behind them," he said. "They didn't even see me coming. All they had was the one marijuana cigarette but I arrested them and sent them in. They were searched by a policeman."

"She came up with 25 rolled marijuana cigarettes in a plastic bag, some packages of rolling paper, a bottle of roaches (marijuana butts)."

"The other girl had roach clips (pinchers to hold roaches), a plastic bag of green and brown herbs in her pocket and three more roaches inside her school notebook."

"It's 8:15 in the morning and these girls are on their way to school..."

Layoffs Coming In Several City Depts.

Council can only cut, not add to, the budget.

Tobin said he warned of possible layoffs of city workers during collective bargaining for new contracts last year.

"I tried to explain to the union leaders that the money just wasn't there," he said. "I tried to tell them that something has got to give. But no one was listening."

One department that will not see layoffs is the police force, which is already undermanned by some 17 officers.

Tobin said Chief Francis X. Finn is currently conducting an internal reorganization aimed at putting more patrolmen on the streets.

"We are still working on the plan," said Tobin. "The intent is to help alleviate fears by rearranging priorities and consolidating programs so as to put more men on the streets."

"I don't know if the plan will enable the city to hire 17 new policemen."

"If I had my druthers, I would hope that there would be no layoffs because it is always the little guy getting hurt and I would hope that I could fill every existing vacancy and still hold down the tax rate."

"But that is not possible."

accounts," said McCauley, who has been president of the Presidential Cooperative since 1968.

"One of our priorities is to find a new location for our Quincy office since the current building is coming down to make way for the Campanelli-Stop and Shop office building."

"We are definitely staying in Quincy."

Joseph A. Curley will be vice president, Marjorie M. Wardrop, treasurer; and Frances B. MacFawn, assistant treasurer. The entire membership of both boards will remain as directors.

Presidential Cooperative, a $14.5 million bank, was founded in 1920 as the Shipbuilders Cooperative Bank. Massachusetts Cooperative is 72 years old.

McCauley, a Quincy City

councillor, is a graduate of Boston College High School, Bentley College and Indiana University School of Accounting. He started with the bank in 1960."

He is also a member of the Quincy City Council, the Lions Club, the Quincy Lodge of Elks, the Quincy Citizens Association and the Quincy Historical Society.

He lives in Houghs Neck with his wife, Sandra, and their three children.

O'Hearn, who attended Cranwell Prep in Lenox, and is a graduate of Boston Institute, is also president of the Edward W. O'Hearn Realty Corp. and O'Hearn's Storage Warehouse Co., both of Dorchester.

He is director of the Massachusetts Cooperative Bank League, the Daniel Marr Boys Club, the Dorchester Board of Trade, a trustee of Cedar Grove Cemetery and a member of the Clover Club of Boston.

He has been president of the Massachusetts Cooperative Bank since 1970.

O'Hearn lives in Hingham with his wife, Justine, and their three children.

Campanelli Bonds Should Be Sold By End Of April

Campanelli "did what I would have done in the same circumstances."

"Last summer," he said, "everyone was saying there's a recession coming. The cost of money is going down. The prime rate will be 8 1/2 per cent in December."

"Campanelli waited. It didn't go down. It kept going up and they kept saying the recession's around the corner. All of a sudden the rate got away from everybody. Instead of moving down it went up."

"Campanelli got caught in a bind. You don't sell $10 million worth of bonds overnight. There's a lot of work and procedure involved in it. I think he's all right."

"I'm hopeful we're going to get construction started on both the building and the garage before the end of May."

Lydon said the contract to build a parking garage over the MBTA tracks, which is to be constructed with $3.79 million in federal funds, has already been signed.

"We're waiting for the drawdown of funds now," he said. "The first drawdown is expected to be in May or June, depending on when Campanelli finalizes his arrangements. We're just waiting on that."

Special Services At Synagogues

Passover Celebrates Emancipation Of Jews In Egypt

By LESTER GLASSER

The Festival of Passover (or Pesach) will be ushered in by Quincy Jewry next week with services at the three synagogues, Temple Beth El, 1001 Hancock St.; Congregation Adas Shalom, 435 Adams St.; and Beth Israel, 33 Grafton St.

Rabbi David J. Jacobs and Cantor Morris Semigran will officiate at the following services at Beth El:

Monday and Tuesday, March 31 and April 1, at 6 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, April 1 and 2, at 9:15 a.m. Sabbath services, April 5, at 9 a.m. Closing day services, Sunday, April 6, at 9:15 a.m. and 6 p.m., and Monday, April 7, at 9:15 a.m., with memorial (Yizkor) prayers at 11 a.m.

Simmy Jacobs is president of the congregation.

Rabbi Samuel S. Kenner and Cantor David Goldstein will conduct services at Congregation Adas Shalom at the following times:

Monday and Tuesday, March 31 and April 1, at 6 p.m. A congregational Seder for the family and friends will follow the Tuesday service. Maurice Schaffer, president, announces that services will also be held on the last two days of the festival with memorial (Yizkor) prayers on the last morning.

Rabbi Jacob Mann will hold the following services at Beth Israel Synagogue:

Services for the first born will be Monday, March 31, at 6 a.m. Regular services will be Monday and Tuesday, March 31 and April 1, at 5:50 p.m. and Tuesday and Wednesday, April 1 and 2, at 8:45 a.m.

Jack Klaver, president, announces that services on the last two days, Sunday and Monday, April 6 and 7, at 6 p.m., and Monday and Tuesday, April 7 and 8 at 8:45 a.m. with a special memorial program during 6 a.m. services.

The age-old Passover celebrates the emancipation of the Hebrew people from bondage in Egypt and serves as a constant assurance that the love of freedom will ever be kept alive in the heart of man, for just as God liberated Israel from Pharaoh by a strong hand and an outstretched arm so will He redeem all men from tyranny.

The Seder, a very important part of the holiday, is a joyful family dinner and worship services held in many Jewish homes. Seder means "order".

At the beginning of the Seder, everyone sits down to a table bedecked with flowers and candles. At the head of the table is a special platter.

On the platter in specified order are:

- Three matzos, in memory of the unleavened bread which the Jews ate when they were freed from Egypt.
- Bitter herbs, for the bitterness of slavery.
- The shank of a lamb, a reminder of the Paschal lamb.
- A roasted egg, symbolic of the free will festival offering that accompanied the sacrifice of the Paschal lamb in the Temple.
- Haroseth, made of apples, nuts, cinnamon and wine, mixed together to look like the mortar which the Hebrew slaves used in servitude.
- Parsley or watercress, suggestive of the ancient customary hors d'oeuvres and now used as a token of gratitude to God for the products of the earth.

A cup of wine is set before each person attending the Seder. As in all Jewish ceremonies of rejoicing, wine is used as a token of festivity.

Each participant in the service is expected to partake in four cups of wine, a number selected to symbolize of the four divine promises of redemption made to Israel in Exodus 6:6-7.

An empty wine cup in the center of the table is filled as part of the Seder ceremony. It is known as Elijah's cup. It symbolizes the hope of man for the quick coming of God's kingdom upon earth.

The three matzos on the ceremonial platter are divided in half.

One half is put away to be eaten at the close of the meal. It is called the Aphikom, derived from the Greek meaning after-meal or dessert.

Half is hidden so that children may be kept alert during the entire service. A gift is given to the finder of the Aphikom.

In many Jewish homes, the Haggadah is recited in both English and Hebrew. It tells the story of Passover, including the order of ancient ceremonials and a running commentary of prayer and legend.

The leader starts the Seder with the chanting of the Kiddush (Sanctification) by taking a cup of wine in his hand. All celebrants drink the first cup of wine followed by a washing of the hands.

Then all participants eat some parsley, lettuce and watercress, marking the green that comes to life in the springtime.

After the breaking of the Matzoh, leaving half on the Seder-dish and the other half hidden, the youngest of all attending the Seder, who can read, asks the four questions:

Why is this night different from all other nights?

On all other nights we eat leavened or unleavened. Why, on this night, do we eat only unleavened bread?

On all other nights we eat all kinds of herbs. Why, on this night, do we eat especially bitter herbs?

On all other nights we do not dip herbs in any condiment. Why, on this night, do we dip them in salt water and haroseth?

On all other nights we may sit at the table either erect or leaning. Why, on this night do we recline?

The narrative begins and the leader replies to the child.

After the story is completed, the meal is served by the hostess and, at the conclusion of the meal, the children look for the Aphikom and the leader redeems it and distributes pieces to all present.

After partaking of the Aphikom, it is customary to eat nothing else.

The leader then leads all at the table in the saying of grace, and the cups of wine are filled for the third time and all read in unison:

"Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the Universe, Creator of the fruit of the Vine."

Then everyone drinks the third cup of wine.

The door is opened and the fourth cup, the Cup of Elijah the Prophet, is set on the table. All rise as if to greet him.

Elijah, in Jewish tradition, is the long expected messenger of the final redemption of mankind from all oppression.

Taking the cup of wine in his hand, the leader recites the following benediction:

"The festive service is completed. With songs of praise, we have lifted up the cup symbolizing the divine promises of salvation and have called upon the name of God. As we offer the benediction over the fourth cup, let us again lift our souls to God in faith and in hope. Soon may He cause the glad tidings of redemption to be heard in all lands, so that mankind freed from violence and from wrong and united in an eternal covenant of brotherhood - may celebrate the universal Passover in the name of our God of Freedom"

The fourth and last cup of wine is drunk and the service is ended by singing of a hymn.

QHS Band Raising Funds For May Bermuda Trip

A fund-raising drive is underway for the Quincy High School Band's planned trip in May to Bermuda.

The "Marching Presidents", 133 members, the color guard, majorettes, instructors and chaperones will leave May 15 to take part in the Bermuda Music Festival. While competing in the festival, the students will also take part in rehearsals, sight-seeing and cultural activities.

The fund-raising committee headed by Peter Ricciardi, president of the band boost association, plans a raffle, decal and bumpersticker sales, newspaper drive and other activities.

The deteriorating economic conditions in the city and nation will probably cut down on the Marching Presidents' trips in the future, according to director Michael Cahill, who said the band will begin a policy of touring only every other year.

During Cahill's eight years as director, the band has visited Dallas, New York City, Washington, D.C. and made two trips to Canada.

"The people of Quincy have been most supportive of our band's activities over the last seven years," said Cahill. "The musical organization does not wish to place an undue economic strain on its supporters. We are extremely grateful to them and hope that the economy doesn't further deteriorate."

'Marching Presidents'

Win First Place

The Quincy High School "Marching Presidents" band won in the open class marching band category during the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Lawrence recently.

The parade, sponsored by the Greater Lawrence Ancient Order of Hibernians, was a competition that included bands from Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. The bands were judged by the Mass. Judges Association.

The "Marching Presidents" were awarded a trophy and $800., which will go into their travel fund for an upcoming Bermuda Music Festival.

Eric Anderson, Jr. Central Honor Roll

Eric Anderson, a seventh grade student at Central Junior High School, is on the school's honor roll for the second quarter.

His name was inadvertently omitted from the honors list published in last week's Quincy Sun.

6 Residents On Wentworth Honor Roll

Six Quincy residents have been named to the honor roll at Wentworth Institute for outstanding scholastic achievement.

They are: Paul W. Beaton, 223 Common St., Edward A. Eloma, 89 Town Hill St., Kenneth F. Johnson Jr., 5 Sycamore Rd.,

Alexander Styles, 46 Lawn Ave., Emery A. Swanson, 61 Independence Ave. and Michael B. Sheehan, 193 Billings St.

City To Move Slow On Hospital Group Purchases

Quincy is not going to move rashly in entering into any collective agreement for the purchase of supplies for City Hospital at less cost.

"We have statistics showing that, on some items, we are getting better prices by going out to bid than by group purchase," said Mayor Tobin.

"Our policy is going to be that those items we can bid on and get a good deal, we're going to continue. If there's anything we can get a better deal on from group purchasing, we'll do that."

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) chided the city last week for not taking advantage of the new group purchase law which, he said, "has saved millions of dollars throughout the country."

Brownell, who sponsored the law and shepherded it through the State Legislature, estimated that its provisions could save Quincy up to 20 per cent on the purchase of hospital supplies.

City Purchasing Agent William

J. Kelly said the city compared bids against group purchase prices on 20 hospital items and group purchase was lower by 10 per cent on some five to eight of them.

"I've been making a comparison now in the midst of the bidding season," he said. "I'm holding off a decision regarding group purchase until we get the new bid figures."

Kelly added that there also would be a membership fee for joining a central purchasing group, although he had not yet learned how much it would be.

"I suspect it would be between $400 and $800, depending on the items we buy," he said.

"Until I know how much we are going to have to put down up front, we're going to move slow."

Brownell, who described himself as "disheartened" by Quincy's failure to adopt group purchasing, told Tobin in a letter that it had resulted in first quarter savings of $8,000 at a hospital in Peabody.

Patients 'Nite Out' Committee Meets March 28

Plans for the annual Nursing Home Patients "Nite Out" sponsored by the Quincy Federation of Senior Citizens Clubs, will be made at a committee meeting March 28 at 2 p.m. in the Kennedy Health Center Auditorium.

Mrs. Marion Andrews, executive director, Quincy Council on Aging, will coordinate the event co-sponsored by the Quincy Federation of Senior Citizens Clubs and several Quincy nursing homes. Held annually for the past 10 years, some 250 patients are guests at an evening of entertainment, refreshments and prizes. Members of Quincy Senior Citizens Clubs, under the direction of Mrs. Mary MacLean, serve as hostess. Prizes are donated by senior citizen club members as well as the nursing homes.

Quincy has the distinction of the only known city in the state to have such an activity involving close to 300 persons, Mrs. Andrews noted.

St. John's Support Group To Meet April 1

St. John's Support Group for Separated and Divorced Catholics will sponsor a talk on "The Healing Process of Annulment" Tuesday, April 1, at 8 p.m. in St. John's Rectory Hall, Quincy Center.

No Immediate Action Expected On QHA Plasterer Hiring

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The Housing Authority is scheduled to meet tonight (Thursday) to discuss hiring a replacement for recently fired plasterer Richard Ojala.

Chairman Carmine D'Olimpio said he would not ask an immediate decision, but would suggest that members review last fall's selection process and study the notes they made during the screening interviews.

Those interviews resulted in unanimous recommendation by the screening committee for Robert Ceriani of Braintree, who was later rejected by a majority of the authority. Ceriani held the plasterer's position on a temporary basis for a year and a half before Ojala's stormy 52-day term.

However, at least one authority member said he would suggest that the position be readvertised and the selection process started over. Ojala, a Holbrook resident, was fired by the authority last Wednesday after an often-furious 90-minute discussion that saw attacks on the plasterer's competence, confusion about the selection process and hints of political influence.

Ojala was fired by a 3-2 vote, with Carmine D'Olimpio, Papile and Lolita Harris voting against Ojala and Rev. William McCarthy and Edward Graham supporting him.

Chairman D'Olimpio later said he would have resigned if his fellow board members didn't vote to dismiss Ojala.

"If the board and the chairman are that incompatible on such an important issue as maintenance, then I wasn't going to be responsible," he said the next day.

Mrs. Harris, who had supported Ojala's hiring at the authority's Jan. 16 meeting, was reluctant to discuss her vote switch.

"I listened to both sides and made my vote, that's all," she said the next day. "I just wasn't satisfied with his work; it's as simple as that."

The D'Olimpio's, who are brothers, claimed Ojala's skills and knowledge of plastering were insufficient for the job.

"These are all basic fundamentals as far as a plasterer is concerned and he should know these things," said James D'Olimpio.

Carmine D'Olimpio, a construction union president and a veteran laborer said that, on the many jobs he had worked on, "If I was not qualified, I'd be down the road in one day." Ojala was hired as journeyman plasterer, who should have at least a basic knowledge of the trade, he added.

James D'Olimpio said, on the assignment, Ojala spent six days on work that should have been completed in eight to ten hours.

Ojala and his attorney, Richard Kerr of Braintree, said he was working with unfamiliar materials, received no orientation to his new duties and, in some cases, was being blamed for errors in judgement made by James D'Olimpio.

Kerr, noting that James D'Olimpio's brother and his cousin, Papile, were passing judgement on the controversy, asked those two members to disqualify themselves from the vote.

"You can question my judgement, but not my integrity," replied Carmine D'Olimpio in refusing Kerr's request. The authority's counsel, Paul Hunt, also ruled there was no need for the two to disqualify themselves.

Carmine D'Olimpio replied that his relationship with his brother was irrelevant to the matter, just as the fact that Ojala was a high school classmate of Mayor Arthur Tobin was irrelevant. D'Olimpio later refused to comment on speculation that Ojala's appointment was a result of political influence.

Towards the end of the discussion, Mrs. Harris said she hadn't viewed any of Ojala's work in several weeks and wished an opportunity to do so before making a vote.

However, on Graham's motion to dismiss the charges against Ojala, she voted in favor of dismissing the plasterers. Graham appeared surprised by the vote and motioned for reconsideration, but was ruled out of order by Chairman D'Olimpio.

After gaveling the meeting to a close, the chairman and Papile both exchanged angry words with spectators leaving the meeting.

QHA administrator Clement O'Brien said it was as hectic an evening as he had seen in his 11 years with the board.

According to O'Brien, Ojala, because he was an untenured employee, has no right to appeal the QHA's decision.

Kerr had no comment after the meeting as to whether he felt his client was treated fairly by the authority.

The Quincy YMCA will offer the "Y's Way to a Healthy Back Program" beginning March 31 at 6:15 p.m.

The six-week program is specially designed exercise program for people who suffer back pain and discomfort. It is estimated that seven million Americans suffer from back pain. According to studies conducted at the Columbian Presbyterian Hospital in New York, approximately 83 per cent of all back pain is attributed to a combination of muscular-skeletal deficiencies and stress and, only a small percentage of back pain is caused by pathologies.

Classes meet Monday and Thursday evenings for six weeks. The program is instructed by trained "Y" personnel, using the Kraus-Weber test to assess minimum flexibility and muscular strength of key postural muscles. The program stresses relaxation and the 18 exercises are introduced on a progressive basis. There are three distinct patterns of exercises involving relaxation, gentle muscle toning and muscle stretching. Enrollment is limited and a fee is required. For further information contact the YMCA at 479-8500.

Help Quincy's Grand Old Lady

There is a move afoot to secure financial aid to preserve historic First Parish Church, the 152-year-old Grand Old Lady of Quincy Square who is beginning to show her age.

A group aptly named the Church of the Presidents Building Preservation Committee has been formed to rally all elements of the Quincy community behind the effort.

We would like to add our voice to a worthy cause.

The slate roof of the church and the gutters leak water down into the crypt where lie buried Presidents John and John Quincy Adams and their wives, Abigail and Louisa.

The 80-year-old heating plant wheezes and groans even as tourists from all parts of the country pause to view the ancient pew where John Quincy Adams worshipped.

The dome needs golf ball and the old iron nails are rusting loose the exterior trim on the granite edifice that, along with City Hall across the street, symbolizes Quincy around the world.

Its historic standing is unquestioned.

The church has enjoyed the status of a National Historic Landmark since 1972. Unfortunately, Landmarks do not enjoy the luxury of regular funding and maintenance by a grateful nation.

The 219 members of the parish, who managed to raise $100,000 for renovation 13 years ago, simply do not have the money to pay for the major repairs to the building that is in their care.

The next step up the status ladder is that of National Historic Site, which does carry with it the funding necessary for repairs and perpetual upkeep it needs.

We urge everyone in Quincy to get behind the Building Preservation Committee and elevate historic First Parish Church to its rightful place beside the Birthplaces and the Adams Mansion among the nation's treasures.

Points To Ponder

- It appears that there will be no shortage of gasoline this summer; however, there may be a shortage of money to pay for it.
- Consider the following:
Bill Lee, former Red Sox pitcher, was not allowed to pitch in the heat of a pennant race.
Patriots coach Chuck Fairbanks was suspended a week before the playoffs.
Leon Gray was traded a week or so before the season started.
Fred Creighton, Bruins coach, was fired with about seven games left to play.
It appears the Boston sports teams have a poor sense of timing.
- When a friend continues to give you poor advice, don't despair. Remember that even a broken clock is right twice a day.
- There are reports that both Hamilton Jordan and Henry Kissinger are working behind the scenes to get the Shah further American medical attention. It would seem that rubbing the Iranians nose in it, is not the best way to get the hostages back.
- Do you know what this is 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1? That's Bo Derek getting old.

Lincoln Theater: Farewell To A Friend

The old Lincoln Theater is gone and if you grew up or lived in Quincy Point during the 1930's and 1940's, you've got to feel a bit sad.

A landmark since the days of Charlie Chaplin and silent movies, the theater has fallen to the thump-thump of a wrecking ball to make room for a John Hancock Insurance Co. office building.

But it was more than a theater and landmark. It was also, during its 1930's-1940's heyday, a social center and—friend.

After World War II, it was never quite the same. Like other neighborhood theaters, it gradually succumbed to television, changing times and affluence. It had been closed for some time before its final "The End" last week.

But during the 30's and 40's, the Lincoln was where you went on a night out if you lived in the Point, especially in the area served by St. Joseph's and Quincy Point Congregational churches—when the latter was at Washington and South Sts. And, if you were a kid, it was where you went every Saturday afternoon.

For a long time admission was 15 cents for adults and a dime for children. Then, the price for adults went up to 20 cents and a few people growled at that.

It was at the Lincoln where you first saw:

Boris Karloff roaming the countryside as Frankenstein's monster . . . Clark Gable searching for Jeanette MacDonald in the rubble of the San Francisco earthquake . . . Tyrone Power and Don Ameche battling flames to find Alice Faye in the great Chicago fire. (They found one another and then joined Alexander's Ragtime Band) . . . Don Ameche again, this time inventing the telephone with Henry Fonda's help . . . Jimmy Cagney, George Raft and Humphrey Bogart busting out of the Big House . . . Clark Gable and Charles Laughton having it out on the Bounty . . . Errol Flynn as a swashbuckling Robin Hood and Captain Blood . . . Shirley Temple dancing up and down the stairs with Bill Robinson . . . Mickey Rooney as Andy Hardy and Judy Garland as Polly Benedict . . . the Marx Brothers, the Ritz Brothers . . . Betty Grable in college with Jack Oakie . . . Charlie Chan and No. 1 son tracking down the murderer in Chinatown . . . Carmen Miranda with a fruit bowl on her head, etc. etc.

They were movies families could see together and, at the Lincoln, often did. If the guy and girl were going to do something kids shouldn't see, they didn't see. But adults got the message at the fadeout.

The theater was usually filled—and usually with the same people—people you knew. Out of habit, they sat in the same seats. If you were looking for a friend in the dark of the theater, you knew the exact seat he would be in.

It was movie togetherness.

It took awhile for the films to get to the Lincoln after they played Boston. But it was worth it. The sound was the best in Quincy and the seats the most comfortable.

Besides that, there were dish nights and money nights to make it even more worthwhile.

Dish Night was Tuesday and Wednesday. With the price of admission, each lady attending would each week receive a dish, cup and saucer, platter, etc. until the entire set was complete. And after that was over, a woman could get a blue crystal set the same way, too.

There must have been Sundays when a good many families in the Point sat down to dinner with the same dishes on their table.

Some still have remnants of those china and

LINCOLN THEATER, now only a fond memory.

glass sets, now cherished mementos of simple, but happy, days gone forever.

Money nights—Thursdays and Saturdays—were a lot of fun. Top prize was a $10 bill. Second, a $5 bill. Then there was a $2 bill and maybe five $1 bills. If you were lucky to win, it was great. Money didn't come too easy in those days and was worth full value.

The bills were in unmarked envelopes down at the stage where each winner got to pick the envelope in the order that their ticket stub number was drawn. The drawing was during the intermission with lights turned up.

The fun came when somebody you knew got the first chance to pick and got one of $1 bills. Everybody would then give him the razz. Sometimes the person with last lucky ticket would walk down and get the $10 prize.

The owner of the theater then was Al Beaumier who was later killed in an auto accident in Canada. He was a friendly, generous man, but ran his theater in a firm manner. No rowdiness, no loud talking—no feet on the back of seats in front of you—or out you went. And, it was awhile before you could get back in.

If you came to see a movie at the Lincoln, you saw it and heard it without disturbance.

On Saturdays, prizes for children were awarded to lucky ticket holders in the same manner as on Money Night. Prizes included such things as a baseball bat and ball, a glove, dolls, etc.

One young man won the bat and ball one Saturday and then while watching the rest of the show, dropped the ball. It rolled down to the stage area where someone scooped it.

Timidly, he told Beaumier about it after the show and was given another ball. That ball and that bat were used all summer long by the kids that played ball in a field off Des Moines Rd. Ball and bat were taped, and retaped after the cover was knocked off the ball, and the bat was cracked.

During the Christmas school vacation, Beaumier, who was active in St. Joseph's parish, had a Christmas party at the theater for youngsters of that church.

They were treated to a box of hard candy and an afternoon of The Three Stooges, Popeye, Buster Keaton, Charlie Chase, Edgar Kennedy, Porky Pig, Bugs Bunny, etc., etc.

There wasn't much money around the Point in those days, but thanks to the Lincoln, you really didn't mind. You had top entertainment at the right price—and didn't need a car to get there.

The Lincoln is gone, but like the movies that played there, the fond memories will live on.

As long, at least, as there are late-late movies on TV—and you remember them as the ones you first saw at the old Lincoln.

The most successful inventor of all time, Thomas A. Edison, was credited with 1,300 patents.

KC-135 tanker jet was piloted recently by four Quincy ROTC cadets in a fueling mission similar to this one.

4 Quincy ROTC Cadets Fly Tanker Jet During Refueling

Four Quincy high school ROTC students recently flew an Air Force tanker plane during an aerial refueling mission.

The four, David Stohberg, Michael Linehan and William McCarthy of North Quincy High School and Joseph Serrilla of Quincy Vo-Tech boarded the jet at Pease Air Force Base New Hampshire.

The jet is a KC-135, a military tanker version of the Boeing 707. It met a flight of Strategic Air Command B-52 bombers and refueled them in mid-flight. This operation is a common Air Force happening, used to extend the range of combat planes.

After several hours of patrol, covering much of the Northeast, the KC-135 landed back at Pease AFB.

Such flights are common for Air Force ROTC cadets as part of a curriculum-in-action program supplementing classroom learning.

In a letter to House Ways and Means Chairman John J. Finnegan, McGrath noted that the $1,200,000 funding for tourism promotion and $750,000 for matching grants, would be a great benefit to the tourism industry and help make Massachusetts comparable to other states in tourism promotion.

McGrath said that the Quincy tourism industry potential is just being realized and promoted, and assistance from the state is vital to insure a competitive position in the tourism industry for Quincy.

$20,000 Damage

Smoke Detector Saves 8 In Norfolk Downs Blaze

The value of a smoke detector in the home was demonstrated once again over the weekend during a fire in a house at 67 Rawson Rd., Norfolk Downs.

It not only saved the life of Anthony Napolitano, and possibly the lives of seven others, but it was still sounding the alarm when firefighters arrived despite the fact that the flames had melted it to rubble.

Napolitano was asleep in a third floor bedroom when he was awakened by the smoke detector alarm to find his room filled with smoke. He fled and alerted the other seven people who were sleeping on the first and second floors.

"Unquestionably, the detector saved his life," said Deputy Carl Valenti of the Fire Protection Bureau. "He would have been overcome by smoke and burned to death. The whole room was burned out."

Valenti said he couldn't believe that the smoke detector alarm was still buzzing when firefighters arrived since the detector had been all but destroyed by the flames.

Deputy Herbert Rourke, who was in charge of the detail, said there were no injuries and he estimated damage at $20,000. The blaze was believed to have started in a faulty TV set.

S.S. Day Care Services Expanding In New Location

South Shore Day Care Services, a United Way agency, is expanding its After-School Program by moving to a new location at 150-152 East Squantum St., North Quincy, a mile from the present location at Atlantic Junior High School.

The move brings the After-School Program into the same building complex as its local pre-school center.

"This is an exciting new direction for us," said Timothy Esons, After-School Program director, "and once the program is installed in our own space at the East Squantum St. location, the agency hopes to be able to share that space with other social service organizations."

The move will enable the After-School Program to operate in its own building space and become one of the few after-school programs in Massachusetts to have its own facility. Anticipated completion date for the renovations now underway is mid-April.

The new facility will provide extra space and enable the Center to create a more relaxed, comfortable atmosphere that will benefit the social and emotional needs of the children. In addition, the Center will be able to broaden its recreational program to include table games, gymnastics, floor activities, plus more arts and crafts and quiet activities.

The After-School Program has been in operation in shared space since 1971.

The Center, which handles 34 Quincy children during after-school hours, in the age group six to twelve, is open all year round and provides transportation. The professional staff is under the supervision of Center Director Michael Dwyer.

South Shore Day Care Services is a private, nonprofit children's agency providing pre-school, after-school, and family day care programs for South Shore residents.

CATHY FELDMAN, vice president of Boston's Fidelity Guarantee Mortgage Co., say the present slack in the housing market may give homebuyers more leverage to negotiate their mortgages.

V.P. Of Mortgage Company Quincy Woman Sees Slight Relief For Homebuyers

Skyrocketing mortgage rates may start inching back down again, but we'll never again see the days of eight percent mortgages.

At least that's the opinion of Catherine Feldman of Quincy, vice president of one of the largest and fastest-growing mortgage companies in New England.

Mrs. Feldman's company, Fidelity Guarantee Mortgage Corp., specializes in the "secondary market"—arranging loans to banks and other agencies short on mortgage money themselves.

Because of the state of the economy, she explained, most people aren't saving as much money. This cuts down on the amount of money available to banks, accounting in part for the tight mortgage money supply and the resultant high rates.

The market for sellers is as bad as she can recall in the three-year history of the company, she says. Both the condition of the economy and the normal midwinter slowdown in the home market have combined to make the last two or three months among the slowest in memory.

Ironically, this may be working in favor of the potential home buyers, she said.

"A year ago, all somebody had to do was put a price on their home and it was sold like that. This year, the buyers just aren't there."

The shortage of buyers gives those who do obtain financing more leeway to negotiate on mortgages, she said.

"They can negotiate a lot of things that they couldn't before," says Mrs. Feldman. "They can negotiate points (that part of the mortgage given as a down payment), they can negotiate price, they can offer less."

She advised buyers in the mortgage market to "shop around to get the best deal, interest-wise, points-wise and service-wise."

She foresees interest rates, now over 13 percent, dropping slightly this year, but not immediately. And the days of the eight percent mortgage are probably gone forever, she says.

Mrs. Feldman, a resident of the city since 1972, lives at 205 Presidents Lane with her husband Paul and their four year-old son.

Grand Opening Prizes

1st American Bank For Savings Opens New Quincy Branch March 31

A new bank comes to Quincy Monday, March 31 with the opening of a handsome new branch of the 1st American Bank for Savings, at 77 Granite St. at the foot of Hospital Hill.

The new bank will offer ample off-street parking, two drive-in tellers and a 24-hour automatic teller machine, plus convenient banking hours. A full range of banking services will be offered, including a new, convenient service, Pay-By-Phone®.

In announcing the opening, 1st American President Robert G. Lee noted that:

"On the South Shore, 1st American currently holds over 48 million in deposits and over 33 million in home mortgages for South Shore families. With that kind of involvement, we're already an important contributor to the South Shore's growth. It becomes essential to provide local banking services to those who put their trust in us."

Arthur F. Shaw, Jr., Chairman of 1st American, explains the bank's growth in similar terms.

He said:

"A bank functions at the very heart of the community, supplying the funds necessary for the growth and financial security of the family. At 1st American, a major part of our funds revert back into the community. So, if we're going to serve our depositors effectively, we have to be involved. That's why we're looking forward to the opening of our Quincy branch. Our tradition of innovative banking and family financial planning will help us serve both our old and new friends better than ever."

To celebrate the opening, 1st American is offering free prizes in a Grand Opening Contest open to one and all. Entries may be deposited at the bank anytime between opening day, March 31, and May 3.

Winner in the drawing will receive a Grand Prize of a trip for a family of four to Washington D.C.

and Colonial Williamsburg. Second Prize is an Amana Radarange microwave oven and Third Prize is an RCA XL-100 19-inch color TV.

In addition, premiums will be offered while the supply lasts for opening a $200 savings account or adding $200 to an existing savings account. There will be a choice of three items: a Storm King American Flag outfit including flag, jointed pole, halyard and bracket; a machine washable St. Moritz blanket by St. Mary's for twin or double bed, or a red, white and blue canvas tote bag. Visitors during the Grand Opening weeks may also pick up a free American Flag Lapel Pin while the supply lasts.

On hand for opening day ceremonies will be Mayor Arthur Tobin, Jess Cain of WHDH, local government dignitaries and civic leaders.

The public is invited to the ribbon-cutting ceremonies which will take place at 10:30 a.m. on Monday, March 31.

Prices Up, But More Homes Sold In 1979

It's no surprise to anyone in the home market, but buyers paid higher prices for a smaller selection of homes both in Quincy and across the state, during 1979.

The annual report of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors said that the average price of homes sold in the Quincy-South Shore area rose about nine percent last year over 1978, from $41,503 to $45,659. Total listings in the area took about a 15 percent dip during the same period, from 1,930 to 1,630.

Despite the tight money situation and the decline in listings, the total number of homes sold rose about two percent in both the state and the Quincy-South Shore area.

The average price of homes sold in the Quincy-South Shore area during 1979 is slightly below the statewide average of $53,219. Average prices ranged from $35,768 in Holyoke-Chicopee to $70,570 in Boston.

"We expect that 1980 will have better bargains for home buyers," said MAR president William Brown of Gloucester. "With home prices rising below the inflation rate coupled with some relief in interest rates by mid-year and more encouraged sellers. Housing should precede the rest of the economy in turning more positive by summer...just in time for the November elections."

Quincy Dominates Suburban All Star Team

Quincy's basketball team, declared the Suburban League champion when the athletic directors voted to put undefeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin at the bottom of the league due to recruiting charges, dominates the Suburban League all-star team.

Cambridge swept through the league unbeaten and won its second straight state championship but, at midseason, the league ADs, by an 8-1 vote, voted to put the team in last place.

Although the courts ruled Cambridge could play in the state tournament and won again, the league coaches failed to put any Cambridge player on the star team. Thus, two of the outstanding players in the state, 7-foot Pat Ewing and Karl Hobbs, are not on the team.

Quincy's entire starting lineup made one of the star teams, the first time a team has done so.

Forward Steve Priscella and center Brian Donovan made the first team, guard Andy Carrera the second team and forward Stan Benson and guard Rich Finnegan the third team.

North Quincy's Mark Millane, the league's number two scorer, made the first team and Rich Keenan was selected on the third team.

Don McLeod of Weymouth North was named the league's Most Valuable Player.

Rugby Club

Upsets Old Gold, 8-0

The Quincy Rugby Club opened its season last Saturday when it upset the Old Gold A team, 8-0, for its 25th straight win.

The first half was a stand off with Quincy scoring the only points on a run set up by John Kennedy, Lou Trubiano scoring.

That was all Quincy needed as it stopped Old Gold four times on the goal line in the second half. Quincy scored late in the second half with Co-Captain Bob McCormick scoring the clincher.

"Those plays on the goal line took a lot out of Old Gold," said Coach Rich Carroll. Co-Capt. Nate Hale was named Quincy's Most Valuable Player.

Quincy's B team lost, 12-2, despite fine performances by the Riley Brothers, Colin, Mark and Eric, who were Quincy's MVPs.

Quincy will host Worcester Saturday at Merrymount park, at 1 o'clock with the A and B teams playing.

Reardon Winner On NEAAU Round

Eddie Reardon, 17-year-old Quincy southpaw, defeated Joe DeValle of Fall River last week in the elimination round of the NEAAU boxing championships at Freeport Hall in Dorchester.

The win gave Reardon the edge over the Golden Gloves champion. In February DeValle had eliminated the Quincy boxer in the semifinals of the Golden Gloves, to even their personal rivalry at three wins apiece.

Reardon's win last week was the best bout of a 15-bout program.

Reardon will return to action April 2 when the semifinals are held and the finals will be held on April 16. Both programs will be held at Freeport Hall.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You
By ROBERT COLMAN

Here's a true story about what happened one day to the great golfer Bobby Jones - and, this is a story that illustrates the real meaning of the word "sportsmanship." Jones was playing in the National Open of 1925 at Worcester...His ball went into the rough, and then accidentally moved very slightly when Jones's club touched a nearby blade of grass...Reporters later said that NOBODY saw the ball move...Jones, however, asked that he be penalized a stroke...Everyone tried to talk him out of taking the penalty because no one saw the ball move...But Jones insisted and as it turned out, that stroke cost him the title that year...Someone later asked Jones why he'd done it...He said, "That's the only way to play the game"...Is there a better definition of sportsmanship than that?

What was the longest fight on record?...Most boxing records show that the longest glove fight ever was between Andy Bowen and Jack Burke in New Orleans in 1893...Their bout lasted 110 rounds, or 7 hours and 19 minutes...It ended as a draw when neither man could continue.

I bet you didn't know...That Colman's has a complete line of outdoor sports needs, outdoor games, fishing needs, tennis, etc. You name it, Colman's has it AND at Colman's low, low prices.

The concert is designed as a showcase for young musicians from surrounding towns, according to conductor Robert Brown.

"One of the obligations of a civic organization such as ours is to provide the musical youth of the area a theater for displaying their talents," he said. "The opportunity to perform before a live audience with a 70-piece orchestra is rare in most communities."

The April 11 concert will feature choirs from Braintree, Medford and Milton high schools, and Milton High School senior Susan Graves, who will perform as violin soloist on a Mozart concerto.

Also to be performed will be Handel's "The Water Music" suite.

Tickets may be purchased at the Wollaston Music Center, Beale St., Charles Bean Music Co., Hancock St., Quincy Center and Mona Norris, Washington St., Braintree. For further information, call 773-4428 or 843-2699.

To Beef Up Patrols

12 Police Officers Reassigned To Street

By TOM HENSHAW

An internal reorganization of the Quincy Police Department will put 12 more officers on the streets in about two weeks, it was disclosed by Mayor Tobin and Police Chief Francis X. Finn.

The department has been operating with 18 vacancies and Finn has expressed some apprehension about entering the busy summer season without a close to full complement of men on the streets.

"I really don't need them immediately," said the chief, "but the vacation period will be starting very shortly and then the kids will be out of school and we'll have all the problems that go with summer activity."

Mayor Tobin called it "an internal realignment that will only be temporary if the city's fiscal picture turns around. This is strictly because of the financial situation that the city is facing."

Some of the police programs will be curtailed but not abandoned, said Finn, and the reassignment of officers will affect all ranks from lieutenant down to patrolman.

"I am not in any way going to cut down the services performed by the juvenile unit," he said. "None of the other units will suffer any serious consequences. They will still be staffed properly."

Tobin said the new men on the streets will be visible in all areas of the city, including the downtown business district.

"It will not weaken the police department at all," he said. "We are just deploying manpower in a different way. It will mean keeping more of the civilian employees in the police station."

The Mayor said he plans to submit a budget to the City

Panel Expected To Urge:

Close Cranch, Hunting, Standish, Great Hill

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

It is "95 per cent certain" that the citizen's panel on school closings will recommend that four schools be closed this year, according to chairman William Denneen.

They are the Great Hill, Myles Standish, Hunting and Cranch schools, the same four the school committee considered closing in 1979, but didn't.

The task force voted last week to recommend only those four closings for next school year. According to Denneen, the group is now in the process of organizing its data and writing its recommendations to the school committee.

There is a slight chance, Denneen said, that the recommendations could be changed at any time before the April 9 deadline for reporting to the school committee.

The four schools to be recommended for closing are the same four recommended by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon in January, 1979.

After meetings with parent groups from each school last year, the school committee voted to keep all four open.

But, citing the rising tax rate and declining enrollments, some school committee members have said they think the vote might swing in the other direction this year.

According to figures presented to the school committee and task force by Creedon, closing these four schools would save a minimum of $206,000 or about 67 cents on the tax rate next year.

Census Bureau Still Accepting Questionnaires

If you haven't mailed back your completed census questionnaire, it's not too late to be counted in the 1980 Census of Population and Housing, announces district manager William Fleming.

"Although the Census Bureau wanted the questionnaires to be returned on April 1, we'll still accept them. If the questionnaires are not returned shortly, census takers must call, and that will add to the cost of the census to taxpayers," Fleming said.

The census is meant to reflect the count of everyone on April 1.

Anyone who has moved into a household since that date should not be listed on the questionnaire. Anyone who has moved away who was a resident on April 1 should be listed.

Most questions can be answered by blacking in the small circles with an ordinary lead pencil. If the yellow instruction guide that came with the questionnaire is followed, the task will be simple. Also enclosed with the questionnaire was a brown envelope for mailing it back. It is addressed and requires no postage.

Supply, Distribution Point Drugs Ride The T

By TOM HENSHAW

To Patrolman Donald Pearson, the Quincy Center MBTA station is more than just a place where rapid transit trains inhale and exhale commuters going to and from Boston.

It's a jungle of wheeling and dealing in drugs where the same players, like members of a stock company of actors, seem to fill the same roles day after day, week after week, year after year.

Pearson the lawman, 6-foot-6 and weighing about 300 pounds, has a role to play, too. He's the shark among the piranha. They call him "Big Pig." They scatter when he approaches.

"One of the reasons they scatter is that I leave no doubt in their minds that I will lock them up," he says. His record of convictions is exceptional. But every now and then there is a deliberate challenge.

A while ago, one young man started bragging around the T station that, since he had a relative who was a lawyer, he could beat any rap Pearson chose to throw at him.

"All the T bums were watching this one pretty close," says Pearson. "The charge was only possession of grass but they went to trial and they pulled out all the stops."

"I made the arrest in the cemetery and the lawyer even went into the cemetery with a reflex camera, the kind you hold down at your waist, taking pictures to prove I couldn't see the deal."

"I spoke up and I said, 'Your honor, I suggest that this is photographic misinterpretation. I'm looking from up here; he's photographing from down here.'"

"The judge ruled the photos were inadmissible. They tried everything in the bag so it really helped my reputation around the T when I nailed him on that one."

Although some of the pressure may be off now that the Red Line extension has been opened to Braintree, the Quincy T has long been a supply and distribution point for the towns farther south.

"The T is the end of the supply line," said Pearson. "But it's also a bus terminal. I gets them from all over. I've made arrests around the T from Hanson, Marshfield, Hingham, you name it.

"When the weather gets good it's going to be back to Wollaston Beach but there's still going to be activity here because it's near the bus lines and the subway and a lot of these people don't have cars."

One of Pearson's frequent adversaries is a young dealer from Cambridge.

"I saw him one time on Presidents Lane, dealing at the top of the stairs," he said.

"I called the cops and they chased him right to me at the T station."

"He ran onto a bus by the

Fire Hydrant Testing To Start Friday

Chief Edward F. Barry announces the Fire Department will start its annual hydrant testing program Friday.

The testing under the direction of Deputy Chief Thomas Andrew and Lt. Robert McCarthy of the Training Division, will be 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. The testing will take place simultaneously in all sections of the city.

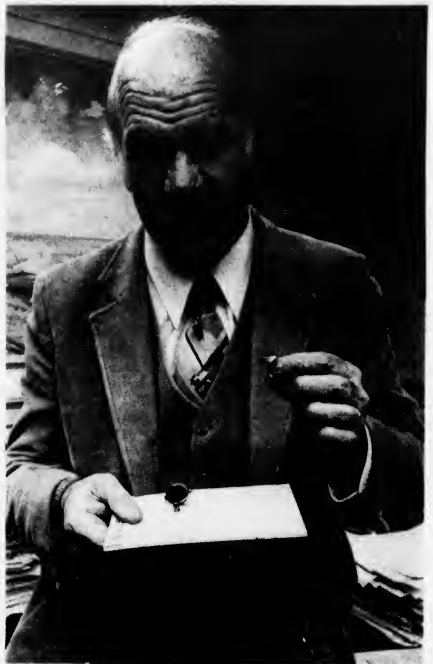

During the testing of the hydrants, residents may experience some discoloration in household water. The water Barry said is not harmful to drink or use, although it should be checked before using in washing machines. Persons experiencing discoloration of water are requested to flush the systems by opening their cold water faucet for a few minutes then wait approximately one hour. If the water does not clear, repeat flushing procedure.

The Fire Department estimates this hydrant testing program will take approximately four weeks.

'We Never Thought We Would See Them Again' More Historic Items Recovered From Adams Mansion Break

More loot from last September's break at the Adams National Historic Site has turned up, this time in the office of Atty. George G. Burke in North Quincy.

Burke turned over a ring and a pendant which once belonged to President John Adams to Quincy Dets. Tom Healey and Tom Casey Tuesday morning.

Burke said both items were found Monday "somewhere on the South Shore," and he was turning them over to authorities on behalf of a client whom he refused to name.

He did say, however, that the client, who gave him information on the whereabouts of the jewelry, was someone who had been charged in the break and thus far only one had been charged.

He is James J. Nally Jr., 30, of Hingham, who pleaded innocent in Quincy District Court last Friday to receiving stolen property. His case was continued to May 2.

Quincy Police Lt. James Fay said he knew of no other arrests in the case.

Burke said both the ring and the pendant were inscribed with the imprint of a bulldog and the word "Tenax," both of which appeared in the design of John Adams' seal.

Last week, several other items, including a watch belonging to Charles Francis Adams that was used to time a Union attack at Gettysburg, were returned to the Adams Mansion by police.

"We're extremely pleased," said Mrs. Wilhelmina Harris, superintendent of the historical site. "We never thought that we would ever see these things again."

Some other stolen items, recovered by police from a house in Hingham, were retained as evidence against Nally, the occupant of the house.

Police said they also found a stash of marijuana and pills, drug paraphernalia and $13,500 in cash in the house.

Nally pleaded innocent to possession with intent to sell a Class D substance and the case was continued to May 28 in Hingham District Court.

"They have recovered about half of what was taken," said Mrs. Harris, who is superintendent of the historical site. She said police told her that more items may still be recovered.

In addition to the watch, things returned last week included:

- A pair of matched duelling pistols that were owned by President John Quincy Adams, who collected guns. They were rusted and some of the beadwork was

WIC Training Program

CETA Opportunities For Women In Construction

Women are learning non-traditional skills through a CETA-funded Women In Construction (WIC) pre-apprenticeship project.

WIC responds to federal regulations that state that all construction projects receiving over $10,000 in federal funds must employ a certain percentage of women. Jobs, Inc., Mass. State Building and Construction Trades Council, AFL-CIO are sponsoring the project.

There are two 12-week cycles in 1980. The first began March 22 and the second will follow in July.

During the first three weeks of study, women become familiarized with the three trades to be offered. For the remainder of the program, training is focused on a specific skill of each woman's choosing.

The bulk of their workday is devoted to hands-on and classroom training. But also the women train physically to prepare for additional body strain and they receive personal counseling.

The three Massachusetts program sites are located in Brighton, Lowell and Springfield.

Linda Walden, Brighton's on-site administrator, said the program will ease women's entry into this previously all-male occupation. Participating women will develop marketable skills and qualify for trade union membership.

Quincy CETA interviews applicants for the Brighton site and will pay participants hourly wages and transportation expenses.

The placement rate for the 1978 pilot program was 70 percent and for the 1979 program, the rate reached 78 percent.

Women unemployed, low-income heads of household or public assistance recipients can qualify. High school diplomas are not required. For information, contact Pat Bickford, Quincy CETA, 1073 Hancock St., Quincy, 773-3983.

'Doom And Gloom'

Creedon Praises Teachers, Criticizes Sun's Drug Series

While the School Committee was honoring the accomplishments of some of its teachers, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon took some time to issue some not-so-complimentary remarks on The Sun's series of articles on drug problems in Quincy.

"You may know that for the last seven weeks The Quincy sun has been publishing a series of articles on drug problems in Quincy," Creedon said. "Maybe when The Sun is finished with that doom and gloom story we'll see something a little more positive on the sort of things that are going on in the school system. A little more attention should be paid to the accomplishments of people like these rather than dredging up stories from 1973, '74, '75 and '76."

The series, now in its seventh week, has focused on the accounts of police and school officials of drug use in Quincy and what is being done about it.

The series actually covers drug cases that have happened during March of this year and are not just old cases as Dr. Creedon indicated.

The topic came up during a discussion of the more happy accomplishments of four Quincy teachers.

Judith Appelby, a Quincy High School science teacher, was recently invited to Switzerland to an international convention on eye research. Miss Appleby was co-author of a paper on eye research involving baby owl monkeys, whose eyes most closely resemble those of humans. Miss Appleby works at the Retina Foundation in Boston during vacations and days off and is also the Quincy High swim coach.

See editorial on Page 10

Quincy High band director Michael Cahill was recognized for publication of his book on "Developing Corps Style Percussion". Creedon told the committee that Cahill is a nationally known authority on marching bands, frequently acting as consultant and judge at competitions during school vacations.

Janet McLean, also a Quincy

High science teacher, presented a paper on breast tumor research to a medical conference at the University of Surrey, England last September. Mrs. McLean, who is the daughter of Assistant Supt. John Osterman, is awaiting replies on her applications to several medical schools.

The committee received copies of a new book, "Creative Math," written by teacher Richard Porteus. It is the sixth book by Porteus, who is assigned to the Squantum and Snug Harbor schools as an art teacher. The books are aimed at making math fun for elementary-age kids, he told the committee.

"These teachers, like most of the teachers in Quincy Public Schools, tend to disprove the stories that you see in newspapers that teachers don't care and are only interested in themselves," Creedon told the committee.

Your Dental Health

by Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S.

There is still chance of decay or problems with the supporting tissues of the teeth regardless of how much brushing and flossing is done. This is the prime reason why it is still necessary to visit your dentist regularly. Even when a sound program of dental care is followed and problems are not apparent the visits are necessary. Dental problems usually start small and so are easy to ignore until they become painful enough to require attention. It should then become apparent that regular rather than crisis checkups make a lot more sense.

A dental check-up should be a routine part of every family's yearly health program. At the office of DR. DANIEL P. SWEENEY, D.D.S., 539 Adams St., East Milton Square, 698-3636 we stress preventive dentistry. We will tell you why needed dentistry should not be postponed and how proper home care can protect your smile. We want to be able to intercept dental problems at the lowest level of dental treatment. We know that teeth are good things to have...and good things to keep.

DENTAL TIP:

Chewing and other mouth movements put added stresses on the teeth when a few are out of line.

12 Police Officers Reassigned To Street Duty

Council Monday, April 7, containing an appropriation for a full complement of 188 policemen. "If the City Council feels that they want the vacancies filled then we will make that determination as we go along according to our financial needs," he said. In the past, while Quincy has awaited the release of a Civil Service list for new police officers, Chief Finn has been making up for the deficit by spending the money on overtime.

Tobin said the assignment of new officers on the streets will "have an effect on the overtime by deploying the people more effectively."

The Mayor said that he and City Auditor Charles L. Shea and Budget Coordinator William Grindlay probably will be working through the weekend to finalize the budget for presentation to the Council.

"We are trying to get all 85 department budgets under the 4 per cent cap," he said. "There may be some that cannot be brought in under the cap but there is some flexibility there. Some may be able to exceed the cap while others are under so that it averages out."

He declined to say anything about possible layoffs of city workers to cut expenses.

"When the budget goes to the City council it becomes a public document and you can see what I had to do to get down to the 4 per cent," he said.

Four Schools Eyed For Closing

This would not include savings from an unspecified number of teaching jobs which would be eliminated by closings.

The task force's report will make clear that school closings will mean "no great dollar savings," Denneen said.

"Closing one, two, three schools is not going to do the trick on the tax rate, we know that," added member Joseph Nicastro.

"We're barely scratching the surface," said member Thomas Mullaney.

Task force members differ on details of the report.

Denneen and other task force members said the six weeks time given them by the school committee was insufficient to come up with anything but short-term recommendations.

Denneen noted that in the early '70s, the Arthur D. Little Corp. was paid $200,000 to devise a long-term reorganization for the school department.

"That's $200 a day for 1,000 days," he said, and we sure haven't had 1,000 days.

Member Jane Carly said she wished the task force had more time to study a wider variety of alternatives.

"I don't necessarily believe that larger means better and that smaller schools should go into larger ones," she said. She wished the task force had other options before it, like closing a larger school and dispersing the children to several smaller ones.

Member Kathryn Roberts said the task force should recommend that any schools closed should be turned back to the city, and not used for any school-related purposes. Otherwise, she said, the savings from the closings would be negated.

Member Robert Dolbec disagreed, saying, "I think it's an impossible impediment to their (the school committee's) action."

At its first meeting, Crendon asked the task force to study closings based on three factors—on age, on a total reorganization of the school system or on the basis of size.

Denneen said the task force's study has suggested that "age might not be the strongest measurement" to base closings on. He noted that 15 of the city's 21 elementary schools were built before 1929 and that several of the newer ones are those with the severest enrollment problems.

The topic of a total reorganization "was too unwieldy for us to deal with for the short-term solution," he said.

Size was the best criterion to base closings on, he said. He noted that the Hunting, Cranch, Great Hill and Standish schools are those with the smallest enrollments, smallest capacities and would cost the least to transfer their students to new schools.

"In the short term, it makes sense to close those four schools," he said.

Projected September, 1980 enrollments for the four schools are Great Hill, 45 students, Myles Standish, 90, Hunting, 90 and Cranch, 130.

Minutes of the task force's March 25 meeting report the following information on the votes.

"Great Hill (capacity 150 seats): ample space at Atherton Hough... actually a return of students to the original 'neighborhood school'... school is actually closing itself... passed unanimously.

"Myles Standish (150 seats): returning students to 'original neighborhood school'... passed unanimously.

"Hunting School (225 seats): will require the moving of Head Start, special ed classes... recognize this will be a neighborhood change... motion passed 6-2.

"Cranch School (200 seats): recognizing strong neighborhood feelings will be a problem... motion passed 7-1."

There was also scattered support for proposed closings of the Mass. Fields, Beechwood Knoll, and Gridley Bryant schools, but those motions were rejected. Motions to close the Squantum, Willard, Quincy and Webster schools were defeated unanimously. No other closings were voted upon at that meeting.

NEW 'SOFT' CONTACT LENS

Many of the 8 million Americans who own the conventional kind of "hard" contact lenses find them too uncomfortable to wear regularly. Now, following approval by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, there is a new plastic lens on the market which is soft and supple when bathed in tears or saline solution. The softness eliminates discomfort when the lens comes in contact with the eyelid.

Doctors say that most wearers need no period of adjustment to the new lens. Unlike the hard one, the soft lens does not pop out (an eye tension situation if you happen to be swimming or strolling through the tall grass). Also, it need not be shaped to the eye, and thus does not require repeated visits to the doctor for fitting.

So, for those of you who always wanted to wear contacts, but found them too uncomfortable, you now have a new opportunity to cast off your spectacles.

Fired Plasterer's Suit Claims Favoritism, Prejudice

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Citing unfair treatment and ethnic discrimination on the part of the Housing Authority, fired plasterer Richard Ojala filed suit last week to get his job back.

Ojala and his lawyer, Richard Kerr of Braintree, obtained an injunction preventing the QHA from filling the plasterer's post until the suit is settled.

The authority was served with the injunction at 5:18 last Thursday night, 12 minutes before they were scheduled to meet to discuss hiring a replacement for Ojala.

A hearing at Norfolk Superior Court in Dedham before Judge James P. Lynch, Jr. has been set for today (Thursday) at 9:30 a.m.

Ojala was fired by the authority at its March 19 meeting, barely two months after he was hired. QHA Chairman Carmine D'Olimpio and members Alphonzo Papile and Lolita Harris voted in favor of firing Ojala, saying his knowledge and skills were insufficient for the job. Members Edward Graham and Rev. William McCarthy voted in favor of retaining Ojala.

Ojala's court complaint makes three major claims:

- That he was denied a full hearing before being fired.
- That D'Olimpio and Papile, who voted against him, were not impartial and that "judgement was motivated by discrimination against Mr. Ojala because of his Finnish ancestry and in favor of their (D'Olimpio and Papile's) applicant and candidate, Robert Ceriani, because of his Italian ancestry."

D'Olimpio had no comment on Ojala's claims, but said "We'll have our day in court. If depositions must be taken, they'll be taken throughout the city."

Ojala, in his complaint also alleges that since "the credibility of James D'Olimpio would be a major element in the case," Carmine D'Olimpio and Papile should not have taken part in the vote to dismiss him. James D'Olimpio, QHA superintendent of maintenance, is the brother of Carmine D'Olimpio and the cousin of Papile.

James D'Olimpio's statements against Ojala were a major reason for his firing.

As further evidence of their alleged bias, Ojala cited Carmine D'Olimpio's remarks to reporters after the authority's March 5 meeting concerning Ojala's competence. Ojala also alleged that, after his firing, Papile was heard to say, "Good, now that that's over we can get Bobby Ceriani back." Papile denies making this remark.

Ceriani, a Weymouth resident, held the plasterer's position on a temporary basis for a year and a half before Ojala was hired Jan. 16 as a permanent plasterer.

Jerry Lewis Spelling Bee Starts At 14 Schools Monday

Students at 14 Quincy elementary schools will be taking part in Monday's classroom spelling test, the first phase in the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Spelling Bee.

After the Monday, April 7 test, three finalists from each of the schools will be chosen to represent their schools in the April 14 oral spelling bee final.

Students from the following schools will be taking part: Adams, Atherton Hough, Cranch, Furnace Brook, Lincoln Hancock, Massachusetts Fields, Pollard, Quincy, St. Joseph's, St. Mary's, Snug Harbor, Squantum, Willard and Wollaston.

Students will collect pledges based on the number of words spelled correctly in Monday's test. Every student who turns in money will receive a Jerry Lewis sew-on patch, an iron-on transfer, a certificate and a Jerry Lewis photo. Jerry Lewis wristwatches will be awarded to the top two fundraisers at each school.

Funds raised by the spelling bee help support the Muscular Dystrophy Association's research and service programs in the South Shore. For example, wheelchairs, orthopedic appliances, clinic visits, physical therapy and recreation programs will be supplied to victims of any of 40 muscle-destroying diseases.

The Quincy Jerry Lewis Spelling Bee is sponsored by the Quincy South Shore Telethon Committee in cooperation with Quincy Public Schools.

San Publisher Henry Bosworth and Richard Koch, executive secretary of the Parks and Recreation Department are co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee.

Bonus System Blamed For Accidents At Yard

J. W. Brown, president of a shipbuilding union, blamed a series of accidents aboard the $21 million cruiser USS Quincy on the bonus system of payment to workers used at the Fore River Shipyard.

He told S. W. Wakeman, vice president of the Bethlehem Steel Co. in a letter that the use of the bonus system as an incentive resulted in indifferent work due to the rush for production.

Brown suggested that Fore River abolish the company union and the bonus system and recognize the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers and set decent hourly wage scales at the yard.

He hinted that the Navy might not accept the USS Quincy due to shoddy work.

NEW POLICE CHIEF SOUGHT

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin announced he would pick a successor to resigned Police Chief Ernest H. Bishop from among the top three captains and lieutenants on the Civil Service list.

"I will not feel obliged to take the top man on the list but will give each of the three eligible top men the same chance to get the appointment," he said.

Burgin said he will ask Civil Service to set up an exam as soon as the City Council accepts Bishop's resignation by authorizing the city to pay him a half-pay pension of $1,800.

LADIES' NIGHT FOR WRESTLERS

Guy Faiella, the new matchmaker at the Quincy arena, said he was making plans to hold a series of Ladies' Nights at his wrestling shows when women with escorts will be admitted free.

"The feminine sex are great wrestling fans and I honestly believe a wrestling show without them is rather dull," said Faiella, who formerly was matchmaker at arenas in Boston and Malden.

"To those who have never witnessed a wrestling show, let me say this: There is nothing objectionable at our show. Even the most refined and sensitive person will enjoy an evening of wrestling."

A Tribute To Quincy's Finns

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Lamentably, there are precious few vestiges in West Quincy today of the once-proud Finnish heritage created by the thousands who came here from the "old country" in the 1880's to work the granite quarries, stone sheds and Fore River shipyard. And in quest of a better life and education for their children.

For nearly a half century the entire Brewster's Corner-Finns' Hill neighborhood was steeped in Finnish culture, tradition and heritage. All the way from Center to Quarry Street and from Granite to Common Street was a bastion of Finnish self-reliance and influence. Until the rich treasure of "lasting until everlasting" Quincy granite began to run out. And with that economic blow went the jobs of second and third generation Finns who were forced to seek employment elsewhere as they moved their families to Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Pembroke and beyond.

Sad to say, no longer are the hills of West Quincy alive with the sound of music and laughter and the pneumatic drills splitting granite in the quarries and stone sheds. All that has gone the way of the five-cent cone I used to get at Harry Lark's variety store with the nickel clutched in my grubby little fist. And for a Barber or Mercury silver dime, the piece de resistance—a two-scoop double-header topped with chocolate

"Jimmies". My small fortune was usually derived from peddling copies of my dad's daily newspaper—The Telegram.

As if to symbolize the end of an era, nothing remains of the long-popular Finnish Temperance Hall but the stone foundation. A tragic fire in 1973 destroyed the Suomi road hall and its glorious past but not its indelible memories. Also gone are the churches, bakeries, social clubs, saunas and steam baths (except one) that were synonymous with the Brewster's Corner area and made the neighborhood a veritable "Little Finland".

One of the rare gems in the mosaic fashioned by the talented Finns of the long ago was forged on Patriots' Day, 1919, when two West Quincy boys, Carl Linder and Willie Wick, made history by finishing one-two in the prestigious B.A.A. marathon. Today that 26 mile, 385-yard grind is known as the Boston Marathon and with it we associate names like Clarence DeMar, Bill Rogers, Johnny Kelley and a horde of others.

The triumph of the "Flying Finns" touched off a week-long gala celebration at the many Finnish social clubs and churches that dotted the steep, winding roads between Quarry and Copeland Streets and many house parties added to the neighborhood gaiety. Not only did the huge ethnic population turn out en masse to hail the conquering heroes but a large contingent of city officials, headed by Mayor "Joe" Whiton jammed the Finnish Temperance Society's Hall to pay them homage. The Finnish colony and guests ate, drank and were merry as the dancers stepped to the polka, majorka and schottische and the band, naturally, raised the roof with "Finlandia". And slightly off-key choruses of hit tunes of the day such as "Over There", "Till We Meet Again" and "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" filled the hall.

Sadly, fond memories such as those are fading with the inexorable passing of time. But, thanks to the dedicated efforts of a couple of second generation Finns who first met in a Sunday School class on Finns' Hill in 1920, that West Quincy Finnish heritage will be preserved for posterity.

Walter and Esther Nisula have pored over stacks of yellowed pages written in Finnish and salvaged charred pages from the partially-burned records of the Temperance Society to augment Quincy's rich history with documentation of the important role the hard-working Finnish populace played in the growth of the "City of Presidents".

May the Quincy Finns' glorious past never be forgotten!

MONEY TALKS

George Washington On A $10 Bill? It Pays To Be Alert!

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings

and Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham

8-6 Weekdays

8-7:30 Thursdays

The young cashier looked sheepishly at the ten-dollar bill the store manager held before her. She couldn't see anything wrong with it. "Did you ever find George Washington on a ten-dollar bill?" he asked her. No, but right there in the corners authentic 10s appeared, just as they were supposed to. At his command, she felt the corners and detected an added thickness. Someone had meticulously done a paste-up job and "kited" a one-dollar bill for 900% profit.

Even more gullible were the merchants, reported in Money magazine, who accepted traveler's checks from a Robert B. Roche in the amount of $640. They were First National City Bank checks which had been displayed with the fictitious Roche name in a back-cover ad in the National Geographic magazine. "Roche" simply scraped off the print on the reverse side and persuaded the merchants to ignore the fact that the paper didn't feel right.

The "pigeon drop" is a hoary swindle yet every now and then it works to fleece persons who are tempted to accept a windfall. The two young women had apparently just picked up a paper bag filled with U.S. currency as their older victim approached them. Since she had almost made the discovery herself, they offered to cut her in on the proceeds if she would show "good faith" by posting with them some of her savings. When repeated withdrawals from an account had produced $11,000 in proof of sincerity, the pair made off, leaving their victim literally holding the bag.

A local couple were taking pictures in front of St. Peter's in Rome last summer when they were approached by a distraught German who, in excellent English, told them that his wife was in a Rome hospital because two young thieves on a motorbike had dragged her along the street while making off with a satchel she had strapped around her arm. It had contained their cash, credit cards, travelers checks - everything they carried of monetary value. He needed $0 Deutsch marks (about $25) to buy food for himself and his two daughters until he was repaid for his lost travelers checks. He left a card presenting himself as a Dusseldorf restaurant owner, promising repayment as soon as he reached home. The couple are still waiting for their money.

It often takes a Solomon's wisdom to separate genuine distress from clever duplicity. But it always pays to be alert, realizing there are persons abroad whose wits are directed to fleecing others - and it could be you.

Commission Approves Removal Of 12 'No Turn On Red' Signs

The Traffic Commission recently approved Councillor John Lydon's resolve to remove some "No Turn On Red" signs from Ward 3, opening the door for similar actions across the city.

When the state's "right turn on red" law went into effect Jan. 1, "No Turn On Red" signs were promptly placed at all 87 traffic lights in the city.

Lydon thought that was "ridiculous" and introduced a resolve removing signs from 18 intersections in his own Ward 3.

His resolve got partial consent from the Traffic Commission, which has asked the state Department of Public Works to approve removal of signs at 2 of those 18 intersections.

"I would anticipate the other councillors would follow suit," said Richard Meade of the city planning department, secretary to the Traffic Commission. At least one ward councillor is now "drawing up his own list" of signs he wants removed, Meade said.

Meade didn't know when a decision could be expected from the state Department of Public Works on removal of the signs.

"It's the first attempt," he said. "We've never gone through this before." Other cities and towns are now petitioning the state to remove signs, he added.

The commission decided not to request removal of signs at Granite St. at Granite Place and Whitwell St. at Quincy City Hospital. Also, Lydon's resolve included signs at four intersections on Furnace Brook Parkway. The commission has no jurisdiction over the MDC road, Meade noted.

The commission requested removal of signs at the following intersections:

Burgin Parkway at Granite, Dimmock and Adams Streets.

Granite St. at Whitwell St.

Quarry St. at Common St.

Beale St. at Taylor St., Adams St. and Newport Ave.

West Squantum St. at Arlington St. and Newport Ave.

The Newport Ave. Extension at North Road and South Road.

missing.

- An American flag that flew over the U.S. embassy in London when Charles Francis Adams was ambassador to England during the Civil War. It was damp and discolored.
- A brass microscope, once the property of John Quincy

Adams, which Mrs. Harris explained was one of the earliest microscopes made. It was in very good condition.

- An invitation addressed simply to Mr. Adams, to the funeral of a man named Pitt, who Mrs. Harris said was the man for whom Pittsburgh, Pa., and Pittsfield, Mass., were named.
- A purse that once belonged to Mrs. Louisa Catherine Adams, wife of the sixth president.

All but the funeral invitation, which was found in Hingham, were recovered from a field in Wollaston where they obviously had been exposed to the elements for some time.

Mrs. Harris had high praise for the Quincy police who worked on the case for the better part of six months.

"They kept stopping by the Mansion and telling us not to worry, that they were working on it," she said. "They are a great set of people."

Det. Lt. James Fay said the break in the case came when Patrolman Donald Pearson, the beat man in Quincy Square, was given information on where the articles could be found in Quincy.

That in turn led to the Hingham address and Pearson, along with Dets. Tom Healy and Tom Casey, went there, accompanied by Hingham police, with a search warrant.

Fay said that other arrests are expected.

Koch Cancer Chairman

Richard J. Koch of 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, will serve as Cancer Crusade Chairman in Quincy.

Announcement was made by State Crusade Chairman James F. Carlin, Massachusetts Commissioner of Commerce and Development.

Carlin said, "The citizens of the Commonwealth raised $2,489,971 last year. This year, with Mr. Koch and his committee working at the grass roots level, I know we'll do even better in reaching our 1980 Crusade goal of $2,560,000."

The 1980 Cancer Crusade will climax April 29 with a house-to-house solicitation in Quincy and throughout the state, Koch said. More than 95,000 volunteers statewide will participate.

"We want to help both the patient and the family cope with cancer," said Koch. "Some people think that the American Cancer Society is only concerned with research. But helping the cancer patient is another major ACS responsibility."

"Free clinics for detection of cancers of the breast, lung, colon and rectum, and other sites; seminars for medical professionals; transportation for patients; and a 'loan closet' of sick room supplies—these are just a few of the ways the American Cancer Society puts the contributions of Quincy's citizens to work."

A NEWSPAPER BY AND FOR THE CHILDREN OF QUINCY

Editor: Linda Dugan

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL, Mr. Malvesta is interviewed by fifth grade staff members, (l-r) Tracey Dunbrack and Darlene McPhee for the lead story in this issue of 'Young Ideas'.

The Quincy School Gazette

By CARLENE PELLECCCHIA
Staff Writer

The Quincy School has its own monthly newspaper. It's called the Quincy School Gazette. The Gazette staff, made up of fifth and sixth graders write stories, reports and other things for the paper.

Sometimes we ask other classes to contribute stories too. Occasionally a class will do a special assignment on poems and we'll print a bunch of them in the Gazette. Or, when a class goes on a field trip they'll have someone write up a story about it for the paper—to share it with the rest of the school.

This month the Gazette staff has been busy helping put together this issue of Young Ideas. All through the school we've done stories, reports, puzzles, riddles, jokes and pictures to show how we use "Career Awareness".

From the Kindergarten to the Sixth grade, the whole school has done a lot of work. We hope you enjoy this issue.

Career Awareness At Quincy Elementary School

By DARLENE MCPHEE
Staff Writer

About three years ago Principal Mr. Malvesta and Media Specialist Mr. Clarke were given money to begin Career Awareness in our school. They purchased materials and began working with teachers. Since that time, every class from kindergarten through sixth grade has been working on Career Awareness.

We have had several career weeks at which time people from a variety of careers have come to describe their job and how they become interested in them.

Since career education has been a part of our school work, we have had opportunities to become aware of the many career possibilities awaiting us when we leave school.

Our school has made some slides and video tape that will be used to help other elementary schools begin their own program on career awareness.

Some of the things children learn are: What their own interests are, what work habits are needed when you have a job, what kind of training is necessary for certain jobs, and how school can help us with our future careers.

Our school made a video tape and a slide tape to show the other schools how we work with careers. Miss Nightingale's class dressed up as the people they want to be, and did a play. Mrs. Goldberg's class put on a panel show, "What's My Line". Mr. Clarke videotaped the whole thing in the media center.

The Gazette staff organized the Quincy Sun Young People's Pages. We used some regular features of our monthly Gazette. Contributions come from all classes.

SIXTH GRADE STAFF members, (l-r) Michael McDonald, John Waterman and Gary Steln, work together on editing some of the articles submitted to 'Young Ideas'. The staff members of the school's monthly Gazette were responsible for editing and interviewing this month's issue of Young Ideas.

Q: What did the dentist say to the judge:
A: I'll pull the tooth, the whole tooth, and nothing but the tooth.

Q: How can you get a job where you don't have to work all day?
A: Become a night watchman.

Mrs. Derry's fourth graders, from left to right, Gena Goldberg, Eric Schneider, and Noreen Livingstone display the career quilt they're making as a fourth grade project on career awareness and colonial crafts.

CAREER QUILT

By ANGELA VENEZIA and CHRISTINE VENEZIA

The students in the fourth grade are making a quilt because in Social Studies we are studying Colonial times. We are also learning about colonial crafts and careers. It is a patchwork quilt of calico print and solid green squares. Each solid green square will have a symbol for a career.

The students are sewing it all by hand and embroidering the career symbols.

The quilt will be presented as a gift to the school and displayed for all to see and enjoy.

Miss Lynch's third graders made up some colorful rhymes about careers. Here are some of their ideas. See if you can guess their CAREER before looking at the answers.

Thinking Of Careers Essay

Also in the third grade, Miss Zaleskas' class wrote some essays about what kind of jobs they're interested in. Karyn McPhee wrote:

I'm a little girl and when I grow up I want to be a teacher. My teacher gives me some ideas on how to do it. When I play school I'm always the teacher.

Karyn McPhee
Grade 3

I like to read books and look at the pictures. It is a lot of fun because I learn things. When I grow up I want to be a librarian. I will open the library at 9:00 every morning. At 5:00 I will close the library. I will help children get the books they want.

Patricia Timcoe
Grade 3

I like to play hockey. I play with Eddie, John and David. We play in David's yard. David's brother Joe plays. I would like to be on the Boston Bruins. They make a lot of money. I would like to play against the Philadelphia Flyers. I would like to play center. I would like to win the Stanley Cup.

Michael Thomas
Grade 3

I like to play football. I like to play football with my friends and sometime I play football with my father. When I grow up I'd like to play for the Patriots. I'd like to play against the Dallas Cowboys.

John Pierce
Grade 3

When I grow up I want to be a veterinarian. I want to be a veterinarian because I love taking care of animals. I like to help make the animals get better. I don't want to see the animals get hurt. I like to see the animals run and play instead of in the house sick. I like to grow up to be a very good person to animals.

Career Week

By JOANNE HIDALGO
Grade 6

Each year the Quincy School has a Career Week. It is always in May. This year it will be from May fifth through May ninth.

The Quincy School has been having Career Week for three years. Each teacher tries to find somebody to come talk to the students. You can choose who you want to see. Each person has a different job. After the person discusses what he or she does for a living, the students ask questions.

Mr. Clarke video-tapes the people so, the people who missed it can watch it.

Fourth grade teacher Mrs. Hughes (standing right) shows Christine Sharp how to sew a career symbol on their quilt. Seated, Robyn Rossi (1), and Kerri McDonald design more squares to be embroidered.

INTERVIEWS:

The staff writers interviewed children in grades K-3 to see what kinds of jobs interested them most. Here are their findings:

Billy Fraser wants to become a policeman. He said he'd "catch robbers on a motorcycle and help people when they're hurt."

Michael Thomas wants to become a fireman like his father. He wants to be able to save peoples lives and put out the fires in their homes.

In Mrs. MacDonald's first grade class, Kimberly Rudnisky got the following answers to her inquiry:

Kimberly McDonald said, "I want to be a nurse to make people better."

Pauline Hamilton said, "I'd like to be a model — I think I'm pretty."

Matthew Swierk would like to be a Policeman. "So I can put bad people in jail," he said.

Edward Rizzitano would also like to be a Policeman but he'd like to help people who are in trouble."

Debbie Pitts talked to the second graders in Miss Ray's class and here's what they had to say:

Lisa Drennan: "I want to be an Olympic Gymnast because you get to share your skills with other people."

Laurie Lund: "I want to be an Ice Skater because it's exciting and fun and you get to travel to lots of far away places."

Buzicity And Bakertown

The first graders in Mrs. McDonald's Room have been designing and building a town and a city to learn about the workers who would live there. One is called Bakertown, the other is Buzicity. Here are some of their comments:

MATTHEW SWIERK

We are finding out what people do for their jobs in cities and towns. We are doing this by building cities and towns on big paper with blocks.

PAULINE HAMILTON

We are making a map to learn about cities, towns and the different people who work there.

MARK O'NEILL

We are building a town because we are learning to be grownup. And we are:

Field Trip Essay

By DEBBIE PITTS

On Monday, March 17, our Fifth Grade classes went to Plimoth Plantation. When we got there, we saw a movie. After the movie, we split up into groups and headed for the village. At the village, we went into the fort.

After we left the fort, Mistress Hopkins took us to her house and put us to work chopping wood, grinding corn, churning butter, and kneading dough. Later on we switched with another group and went to the Governor's house and carved wood, chopped wood, made toothpaste, and salted fish.

When we finished, we went out and played ball. After a little ball, we ate the bread that we made and went to the bus. On the way, we stopped off to see the sheep and eat lunch before boarding the bus for our trip home.

For Residential, Commercial Areas

City To Apply For $2 Million In Federal CDBG Funds

Mayor Tobin is preparing to submit a 1980-81 Community Development Block Grant application for $2,179,000 in federal funds for the rehabilitation of neighborhoods and commercial areas.

The request covers six residential neighborhoods, including new target areas in Wollaston and Montclair, and three business districts, including a new one in Wollaston.

The areas designated for the 1980-81 program, the sixth year in which Quincy has participated, include:

Houghs Neck, Germantown, Adams Shore, $160,807.
Southwest Quincy, $238,326.
South Quincy, $210,498.
Atlantic, $304,789.
Wollaston, $72,625.
Montclair, $181,561.
Central Business District,

$165,000.
North Quincy Business District, $25,000.
Wollaston Business District, $45,000.

Tobin said money will be allocated for operation of the Manet Multi-Service Center in Houghs Neck and for the Atlantic Neighborhood Center to which medical and social services will be provided.

The application also includes: General administration, $250,653.

Contingencies, $177,946.
Planning and design studies, $61,581.

Citywide home rehab, $185,215.
Development of new programs, $100,000.

The application, up $115,000 over last year, has to be approved by the City Council before it is submitted to the Department of Housing and Urban Development by April 16.

Funds for the residential neighborhoods are used for housing rehabilitation, public works improvements, parks and playground upgrading and public service.

"The most significant," said Tobin, "is the home rehabilitation programs which provide grants up to $6,500 to low and moderate income homeowners for rehabilitation to their houses."

"The economic development grants to the business districts will make them more viable as we go into the 1980s."

"If you have a strong business community, you'll have a strong city."

He said the funds for North Quincy and Wollaston centers will be primarily for the rehabilitation of store fronts.

Engineers Propose $143,000 Flood Protection For Squantum

The Army Corps of Engineers have found economic justification for spending an estimated $143,300 in federal funds to build a concrete barrier and stone slope protection for the Squantum Causeway.

City Councillor Joanne Condon said he has been so notified by the office of Cong. Brian J. Donnelly (D-Dorchester).

Condon said she was given a timetable that would have funds appropriated for engineering and design by June, 1980, construction begin by October, 1980, and the work completed by April, 1981, at the latest.

All the city needs to do to get the wheels rolling is send the Engineers a letter of intent indicating its willingness to provide local cooperation for the project.

Condon said she received the following report from the Corps:

"The Squantum Causeway site consists of a 500-foot length of erosion along the west bank of East Squantum St. The shoreline is within 2.5 feet of the roadway and is fully exposed to the fetch from the north and northwest directions.

"This roadway is the only access to the island and contains a water main, a telephone conduit and a sewer line. The improvements would involve construction of a concrete barrier with stone slope protections.

The headlines are covered with testimony and news of the investigation of contract and building fraud by the Special Blue Ribbon Commission. The Special Commission, while uncovering sensational stories of corruption and fraud has made a number of lengthy recommendations on a comprehensive re-organization and development of a Division of Capital Planning and Operations to oversee future state and county buildings. The most controversial part of their recommendation is their proposal to repeal the file subsidy law. Hearings by the Special Commission will continue for the next few weeks and are open to the public.

The Committee on Urban Affairs, of which I am a member has heard and is acting on a variety of subjects which include housing (both elderly and family), modernization of state housing, neighborhood stabilization planning and site provisions for community residences.

Many of the committees will be rushing to report legislation out to meet the April 30 deadline.

Won't Rebuild

DiMarzio Rink Owners Embark On New Career

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Everything seems to be coming up roses at last for Jean DiMarzio and Helen Lynch of Houghs Neck owners of the landmark DiMarzio Roller Rink destroyed by a Jan. 4, fire.

With fresh hopes for the future, the two sisters officially opened a shop Tuesday at 1088 Sea St., "Flowers, Etc.", featuring original artificial creations. The location is opposite the Houghs Neck Fire Station about five blocks from the rink.

Invited guests at the opening included Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, City Councilor Leo Kelly, Rev. James P. Hart of Blessed Sacrament Church, Edith Nigro, The Houghs Neck neighbor who awakened the sisters the morning of the fire enabling them to escape safely, as well as relatives and friends.

"We chose April 1, for the opening," said Mrs. Lynch, "because it is a lucky day for us". It was on that day in 1939 that the DiMarzio rink was originally opened.

The sisters considered rebuilding the rink after the fire but as Miss DiMarzio said, "The high interest rates for bank loans frightened us".

Continued Miss DiMarzio, "I didn't want to work the rest of my life to pay back the loan. I couldn't carry that load now, so, I decided that part of my life was over".

The land is now on the market, and Miss DiMarzio added that she is comforted by the fact that people have approached her to buy the land with the intention of constructing a new rink. "Then the children, who loved the rink, will have a place to go", said Miss DiMarzio.

Faced with having to find a new way to make a living, the sisters considered alternatives such as operating a motel, boarding house or restaurant.

The restaurant was ruled out because, as Miss DiMarzio said, displaying her natural sense of humor, "I was afraid if we didn't sell the food, we'd have to eat it all and get fat".

Their love of flowers led them to consider a flower shop. We decided on artificial flowers because we hated to see the real ones die", said Mrs. Lynch.

Apparently their decision was a good one because both say they haven't been so happy in years.

"I've found something that I can do and love to do," said Miss DiMarzio, "and I feel as I've been reborn".

Even before being officially opened, the shop has enjoyed an encouraging stream of customers.

Reflecting on the whole experience, Mrs. Lynch, a widow with grown children, said, "We want to encourage all 'mature' people who have had a setback or suffered a tragedy to try again. Don't ever give up! You're never too old to try again and turn a skill into something productive!"

front door and got down on his hands and knees and started crawling toward the back. I'm pretty tall and I ran alongside. He thought he gave me the slip and I'm running and looking in the window.

"He had a special vest made for nothing but carrying joints. It was a vest that was all pockets and he was loaded. He got to the back of the bus and he put up the seat and is trying to stuff the things under it."

"I saw him and I run full tilt through the rear door and I came crashing down on the seat and I got him. He's got both arms under the seat and I held him until the wagon got there."

The young man from Cambridge is back working the line now. To Pearson, the old gang may be busted up at times but it always seems to get back together.

"They're all one big happy family," he said. "It's worse than ever now because there have been so many people involved in this for so long."

"It's very difficult to get an agent in there because they know everybody. You just don't pop up and say, 'Hey, I want to make a buy.' They'll brand you as a narc right away."

"When you've got the same people all the time that you got stoned with or high with or hallucinated with, you know who's doing what. It's an established network."

"You can watch them on the phones, making deals. When someone makes 17 calls in the space of an hour you know he's not just being sociable."

One of the major dealers at the T, says Pearson, is a 15-year-old boy who wears a leather jacket and keeps his stock of marijuana in pockets sewn in the sleeves.

"One of the biggest problems here is that judges and juries expect a dealer to look like Serpico," he said.

citing a well known New York undercover man. "They forget that the baby-faced paper boy may be dealing."

It's not a game, either.

There is one young man who hangs around the T, said Pearson, who keeps razor blades in his pockets with the single edge pointed outward. That's to discourage searches.

"This fellow here," he said. "Handbag snatcher. He follows old ladies to the bank around the first of the month when they cash their checks. They come out ---zing!"

On one of the rare occasions when authorities were able to get an undercover agent equipped with a body mike into the gang at the T, Pearson listened in on conversations in a van.

"One of the girls was describing how she ripped off 10 old women," he said. "She said, 'Did you see the look on the old bitch's face when I pushed her into the bushes?' They're laughing and bragging about it."

In the absence of an undercover agent to make a buy, according to Pearson, the best way to dent the dealing at the T is to put members of the group in a position where they have to talk about each other.

"You can't get one kid to tell on another one," said Pearson. "No way. But if they have something hanging over their heads, they'll start giving us people."

"Talk about honor among thieves. That's a lot of baloney. If we get them good they'll set up their buddies. They'll do anything."

"But it doesn't happen that often because none of them are facing anything they have to worry about. Who gets sent to prison? No one. Or very few."

Braves Favored Over Tyngsboro In Playoffs

The South Shore Braves, regular season champions of the New England Junior Hockey League for the second year in a row, will be a top heavy favorite to wrap up their opening playoff series tonight (Thursday) when they host Tyngsboro Huskies at 7:50 at their new home, the Quincy Youth Arena.

The Braves, coached by veteran Quincy High coach Bob Sylvia, breezed past the Huskies, 13-4 and 16-4, last weekend and are expected to have little trouble sweeping the series in three straight tonight.

The weak Huskies made the playoffs when fourth place Springfield was barred after refusing to play their final regular season game.

"These two easy wins were good for us as we had a chance to work on our power play and short-handed situations and there wasn't much pressure on us," said Sylvia. "However, the best thing that can happen to us now is for one of the teams in the other series (Fitchburg Wallpapers vs. Suffolk, N.Y., Royals) to win three straight, because we don't need a layoff now."

Sylvia may get his wish as Fitchburg won the first two games of its series.

"It is hard to stay sharp in a series like this," Sylvia said. "But we're fortunate to have some motivating factors. We just moved into our new home in Quincy (after five years in Rockland) and we want to show the people what we can do. There's also a lot of college coaches and scouts here, and it's important for them to do well."

Several members of last year's team, including some from Quincy, played college hockey this season.

Bob DeBase scored two goals in Sunday's 16-4 breeze and set up four others and Paul Greeley scored four goals. Even goalie Cleon Daskalakis had two assists for the Braves.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET
YOU
KNOW

Brought To You
By ROBERT COLMAN

Here's a baseball record that just doesn't seem possible, but it's true... The entire Chicago White Sox team of 1908 hit only 3 home runs ALL SEASON!... Just think, there've been times in baseball history when one player hit 3 home runs in one game - but imagine, here's a whole team that totaled only 3 homers all year - and they still finished in 3rd place that year!... It's hard to believe, but it happened.

How long does it take you to change a tire on your car?... Did you know that during the Indianapolis 500-mile race, pit crews are trained to change all four tires on a car in the phenomenal time of about 20 seconds!

Ever wonder why left-hand pitchers in baseball are called "south-paws"... Ball parks are usually laid out so the batter faces east to avoid a setting sun shining in his eyes... So, if center-field is east, the south end of ball parks parallels the first base line... A left-hand pitcher's throwing hand is on the first base side of the diamond... Thus, he's a "southpaw".

I bet you didn't know... That Colman's has the most complete line of Baseball and Softball equipment in the area... Team outfitting is our specialty... Colman's has the lowest prices anywhere... Famous names. They are all at Colman's.

Heart Fund Theater Party Reaches $1,900 Mark

Richard J. Koch, special events chairman of the Quincy Heart Fund and the annual theatre party chairman, announces that the recent John J. Daniels Memorial Night has netted $1,900 to date.

The committee hopes final returns will bring the figure to $2,000.

The $2,000 mark has been reached twice in the 11-year history of the event. If it is realized this year, the total amount will be $16,600 donated for Heart

Research and Education Programs to the Southeast Massachusetts Division of the American Heart Association.

One of the major projects of the Heart Health Agency for the past number of years has been the cardiopulmonary resuscitation courses where 20,000 persons have been trained in this life support method by the Southeast Massachusetts Division alone including physicians, nurses, police officers, firefighters, boy scouts, other para-professionals and interested laymen.

The few who have not made returns to date are requested to do so. Others wishing to make a donation may make checks payable to the Quincy Heart Fund and mail c/o John McGue, Treasurer, Hancock Bank, 415 Hancock Street, North Quincy.

William Souden, general chairman of the Quincy 1980 Heart Fund Drive, appeals to those who have not returned their February mail-out for donations to the Heart Fund to enclose a donation and return it as quickly as possible.

Face Appeal, 30-Day Trial

Gruchy Family In Germantown Home

By BERNIE O'DONNELL
Mrs. Sandra Gruchy and her six children have found at least a temporary home in the Quincy Housing Authority's Germantown housing.

How long they stay there depends on the QHA's view of the Gruchys during a 30-day trial lease, as well as an appeal by the Harborview Residents Committee of last week's decision to house the family.

Mrs. Gruchy and her family were evicted from their Weymouth home in February after it was condemned as "unfit for human habitation." Since then the family's bills at a local motel were paid first by welfare and later by QHA member Rev. William McCarthy, Pastor of St. John's Church, Quincy.

The QHA members voted unanimously last week to house the Gruchys in Germantown housing until a permanent home could be found. Seconds after making that vote, the authority was presented with a letter announcing the Harborview Residents Committee's intention to appeal the decision.

HRC chairwoman Roberta Cohen said that, while she had no personal objection to the Gruchy family, her committee objects to their application for housing being taken out of order on the list of applicants.

Department of Community Affairs (DCA) regulations state that applications must be considered in chronological order, except for several exceptions. Mrs. Cohen said her committee felt the Gruchy case did not come under any of those exceptions.

According to QHA administrator Clement O'Brien, the vote was based upon advice from the DCA and from QHA counsel Paul Hunt that the Gruchy family could legally be housed immediately.

The family moved into their new Germantown home Friday morning just hours after the vote.

According to O'Brien, the condition of the home and the Gruchy's suitability as tenants will be monitored both during and at the end of the 30-day lease. He didn't know when a decision could be expected from the DCA on the HRC appeal.

Fr. McCarthy said, "I am very happy about the authority's unanimous decision on behalf of a family which has certainly gone through a lot of public scrutiny."

The Gruchys were referred to Fr. McCarthy by the Quincy welfare office, one week after their eviction, when their housing eligibility ran out.

Houghs Neck Gas Station Denied Used Car License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board voted two to one Tuesday to deny a request from Stanley Picarski, Jr., of Manet Shell, Inc., 895 Sea St., for a used car license.

Voting to deny the Motor II license were Police Chief Francis X. Finn and Building Inspector Allan MacDonald. City Clerk John M. Gillis favored granting of the license, and Health Commissioner Dr. Robert McKeogh did not vote. The fifth board member, Fire Chief Edward Barry, was not at Tuesday's meeting.

The request had been continued from the March 25, meeting when the board, concerned with upgrading the Houghs Neck area, decided to send an inspection team to view the gas station.

Deputy Chief Carl Valenti of the Fire Department reported to board members this week that he found no problems at the station. Chief Finn said it would be incongruous to grant the license to this station after turning down other stations a half mile away.

"We want to upgrade the area and selling used cars would not help the area," said Chief Finn.

Gillis countered by saying gas stations are not pushing the volume of gasoline they once did, and they need something to help them get by. "I think we have to help the little guy," said Gillis.

MacDonald said he couldn't see every Quincy gas station turning into a used car lot.

Finally, chairman Gillis told board members to vote the request "Up or down, in or out." Finn made the motion to deny the request, which was seconded by MacDonald.

In another matter, the board approved a request from Kelly's Pub and Grub, 27 Billings Rd., North Quincy, for permission to remain open until 1 a.m. Sunday mornings.

The establishment had originally asked for a noon opening on Sundays, as well, but withdrew the request after Ward Councillor Joanne Condon opposed the request.

In a letter to the board, Mrs. Condon said she opposed the earlier opening because of the close proximity of the pub to Sacred Heart Church which has a noon Sunday Mass.

The board had approved the pub's request for a seven day alcohol-common victualer license March 18.

In other action, the License Board:

- Granted a request from St. Ann's Church for a one-day alcohol license to be used in conjunction with a Las Vegas Night Friday, April 25, 7 p.m. to 12:30 a.m., at St. Ann's School.

- Granted a request from the Quincy High School Band Parent's Organization to conduct a "Tag Day" April 5, to raise funds for a Bermuda trip.

- Granted a one-day, all alcoholic license to the Caddy Detachment of the Marine Corps League for a past commander's night Friday, April 5, 8:30 p.m. to midnight, at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Postponed a request from the Blessed Sacrament basketball team for a permit to conduct a "Tag Day" Saturday, April 5. The board will contact Mrs. Ruth Galligan, a representative of the group who did not attend this week's meeting.

But How?

School Committee Ordered To Pay Custodians' Raises

A state arbitrator has ordered the School Committee to pay raises negotiated with the school custodian's union - although they're still trying to figure out how to get the money.

Like all school employees, the custodians have received no raises for the 1979-80 year. Mayor Arthur Tobin has refused to submit negotiated raises to the city council for funding.

The custodian's contract calls for a four-percent raise effective July 1, 1979 and a three-percent raise effective Jan. 1, 1980.

Alfonse D'Apuzzo of the state arbitrators board last week ordered the committee to pay the custodians' raises plus eight percent interest by whatever means possible.

"I suppose we will have to pay it," said Committee Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy, "but I'm not sure where it's coming from. Obviously, there's no money in the budget. It's something we'll have to talk about."

After reading D'Apuzzo's 43-page decision, Kennedy added, "First, it's telling us we ought to pay; second, that we ought to go after the mayor for the money and, failing that, that we ought to put the money in next year's budget. What else is new?"

The school committee has already taken those steps, by suing the mayor to force him to fund the raises and by including funding for the 1979-80 raises in the 1980-81 budget.

The arbitrator's decision may even serve to strengthen the committee's position in their suit against the mayor, Kennedy said.

The success of the custodians' grievance would probably inspire the other seven school unions to follow suit, Kennedy said. Raises negotiated with school unions for 1979-80 total $1.4 million.

"I don't know where all that would come from, either," he added. "There's no easy fix in the school budget - it's as tight as it's ever been."

"We can't tell them where to get the money, that's not our job," said William LaForest, president of the custodian's union. "But now they have a binding order to pay us what is due."

WEEK OF APRIL 3

AQUARIUS—January 21-February 19
It's easy to be deceived this week. Coworkers may use flattery to get you to take on extra workloads, and you might misinterpret the motives of loved ones.

PISCES—February 20-March 20
Time to change from that comfortable old style and present your ideas in a more flamboyant way. If you've taken a vow that says for better or for worse, this is the weekend to enjoy the better.

ARIES—March 21-April 20
Your life is an open book, and you're ready to share exciting news with the world. Make no assumptions about work that is supposed to be done for you. Check up often, and be a little aggressive if necessary.

TAURUS—April 21-May 22
Your loved one may seem overly eager to push his/her opinions on you. It's only a way of letting out steam—so don't take it personally. Weekend accents work—and a chance to make extra cash.

GEMINI—May 23-June 21
Ideas about your job or academic program are changing. To switch or not to switch is the question, and an older relative could offer wise counsel. Sense of humor is in great form; you're a marvelous stand-up comic!

CANCER—June 22-July 22
Loved ones may seem a little gruff or a little rushed, while you're in a mood to take life very casually. A good week for joining groups, especially sports-related ones. Excellent potential here for introductions.

LEO—July 23-August 22
Unexpected expenses balance small financial gains. A request appeals so much to your ego, you have trouble saying no. Be warned! Health needs should be taken more seriously.

VIRGO—August 23-September 22
Coincidences dominate this period; the key to a successful week is to make the most of many chance meetings. Prepare, too, for lecture from those who look after your finances.

LIBRA—September 23-October 22
A good time for making arrangements for future events. The generosity of someone you barely know touches you, and news of a romantic nature makes you positively glow.

SCORPIO—October 23-November 21
Make a triple effort to remain calm among testy friends. Home improvement project could receive setback around weekend, but finances appear much brighter as of Tuesday.

SAGITTARIUS—November 22-December 22
News can be unreliable Thursday-Friday; stories are exaggerated, rumors fly fast. Follow up original ideas promptly—that is, before they're borrowed. Enjoy choice opportunities for relaxation.

CAPRICORN—December 23-January 20
The week favors beginnings—everything from making a blueprint of your goals to adopting a pet. Social life is more demanding than usual. Personal relationships prosper, perhaps with a Gemini entering the scene.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Take a strong sense of loyalty and a deep sense of devotion. Combine with brittle wit and extreme impatience. patience. The result? You, of course. In romance, your more-than-direct approach brings results in May. Chances of location are favored in summer or early fall.

BORN THIS WEEK

April 3rd, actor Marlon Brando; 4th, dance instructor Arthur Murray; 5th, actor Spencer Tracy; 6th, King Richard II; 7th, poet William Wordsworth; 8th, actress Mary Pickford; 9th, singer Paul Robeson.

'No One-Way Street' Tobin, Council Clash Over 'Direction'

By TOM HENSHAW

Some of the simmering antagonism that has existed recently between Mayor Tobin and the City Council broke through the surface this week.

The Mayor asked the Council for a "sense of direction" on several controversial matters and the Council told the Mayor, in effect, to go run his city and stop bothering them with letters.

"I think we accomplished what we set out to do last night," said Tobin Tuesday. "We put everything back in its proper perspective."

What Tobin did Monday night was this:

He forwarded to the Council letters from Agrippino (Rocky) Rocuzzo, assistant director of City Hospital, and Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti asking the Council's help.

Rocuzzo wanted a "sense of direction" on disposal of the Hospital's Gordon House and Ricciuti wanted to know the Council's feelings about the Lyons Turning Mill.

Since neither letter made any recommendation, the Council was at a loss what to do.

Rocuzzo, whose plan to turn Gordon House into leased medical suites was challenged by the Council March 17, urged councillors "to point our nose in the direction that will be approved."

"It is a serious concern for me to project some costs for the next year and look at $184,000 for utilities for a building that is presently unoccupied," he said.

"I make a motion to sell it," said Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., who apparently had an uneasy feeling that something was up. It failed to get a second.

Councillor Francis X. McCauley wanted to refer Rocuzzo's letter to the Council's Blue Ribbon Commission that is studying the operation of City Hospital.

Councillor Joanne Condon wanted the letter for consideration of her Public Health and Hospital Committee with a xerox copy going to the Commission.

Councillor John J. Quinn thought that Gordon House should be converted into an extended care facility, which would save hundreds of thousands of dollars in uncollectable bills.

"It's up to the Board of Managers to decide this and then come before us for approval," proposed Councillor Stephen J. McGrath. "All we ask is to be kept apprised."

And he added:
"What is going on?"
The Council wound up sending the letter back to the Mayor.

Then Ricciuti popped up asking the Council for a "sense of direction" on what to do with the 80-year-old Lyons Turning Mill, which stands in the way of further

110 Luxury Units

Rezoning Clears Way For Quarry St. Apartments

The City Council agreed Monday night to rezone a piece of land off Quarry St. so that Anthony Losordo can have a parking lot to go with his proposed seven-story, 110-unit luxury apartment development.

The vote to alter the zoning of the land from Planned Unit Development to Residence C was 8-1 with Councillor James A. Sheets in opposition.

Earlier in the evening, the Council held a public hearing on the matter at which Ronald Iacobucci, chairman of the Quarry St. Land Use Committee, registered opposition to the change.

"A poll of 100 residents of the area last summer," he said, "showed that 40 per cent did not want any more apartments or high rise developments in the Quarry St. area."

"We are not totally opposed to this development but we would like an opportunity for members of the committee to get together with Mr. Losordo in the next two weeks and review his plans.

"If that happens, good things can result. If it doesn't we have no alternative but to state our opposition to this zoning change."

Councillor Daniel G. Raymond could see no necessity for any further delay in giving Losordo the go ahead.

"This matter has been before the Council since Jan. 21," he said, "and I venture to say that the mortgage interest was then probably 14 or 15 per cent and right now we are at 19 or 20 per cent."

"This matter has been before the Council on two or three other occasions. Mr. Losordo has been here on all those occasions. I don't think it's fair to place the burden on him."

He indicated that he felt if the two week extension were granted to Iacobucci the committee would come in with another delaying tactic.

"There doesn't seem to be anyone who is opposed to what he is building," he said. "It's not fair to delay him any further."

Sheets noted that last summer's poll showed opposition to the project and, he said, "once you remove the PUD that you substantially remove the opportunity the people have to determine what can be built."

Losordo explained that he purchased one acre of land on Quarry St. 40 years and used it as a headquarters. Three years ago he bought 70,000 square feet from the city on which to build the apartments.

But about 20,000 square feet is zoned for PUD and he needs it to be rezoned Residence C so that he can construct a 110-car parking lot for tenants of the building.

Raise For Berlucchi, Fees To City

Mayor Proposes Change In Dog Pound Operation

The budget for one city department for fiscal 1981 is going up and Mayor Tobin is afraid that people aren't going to understand why.

It's the dog pound, which Tobin says has not been given any operating funds to cover expenses for at least a dozen years.

The pound has two employees, Dog Officer Frank Berlucchi and his assistant, and a van and not much else.

Berlucchi gets a salary of $12,000 a year, plus fees. Fees and other income also are allotted to expenses, such as utilities, dog food, etc.

But recently a special committee studied the operation of the Quincy pound and those in surrounding communities and recommended that it be placed under the police department and budgeted.

The fees, the committee decided, should go into the city treasury.

The problem is that the dog officer would then command a department head's salary of some $19,000, some $7,000 more than what has been in the budget for the past 12 years.

Technically, said Tobin, Berlucchi is an employee of the Highway Department and if he transfers back to Highway, with his 35 years seniority, "he'd be up in the general foreman range, $19-$20,000."

The Mayor said he has asked Berlucchi to meet with members of the City Council to explain the administration's predicament, and see if councillors are receptive to the new plan.

"We don't want the Council to think we're granting a $7,000 pay raise," he said.

"But to correct the operation of the dog pound, which is what councillors want, then they've got to either approve this proposal or some other one."

"I want to have it explained thoroughly to the city council so they won't think any games are being played."

Tobin said he will probably be asking for $50-$60,000 in an expense budget for the dog pound "but it comes down to a net of $20,000 when the fees come in."

Members of the committee that studied the pound were Berlucchi, Police Chief Francis X. Finn, City Solicitor Robert Fleming, and Richard Mead of the Planning Department.

One Arrested

3 Still Sought In Attack On Delahunt, Reporter

One man was arrested and three others are still sought in connection with an attack on Dist. Atty., William Delahunt of Quincy and a Boston Herald American reporter early Saturday.

Arrested was Anthony Rumble, 22 of 16 Weeden Pl., South Quincy.

Delahunt told Boston police the incident began outside the Bradford Hotel about 1 a.m. He and reporter Paul Corsetti, after taping a program at radio station WITS, had stopped for dinner and a "nightcap."

Delahunt told police that, as he prepared to drive Corsetti back to his car at the Herald American, a carload of youths pulled alongside, shouting obscenities and calling the two "fags." The car followed Delahunts to a red light, where one of the occupants got out and punched the district attorney in the jaw.

Delahunt said he then drove to a nearby police station, where Corsetti went inside to notify police. While Delahunt waited outside, the car pulled up again, a man then opened Delahunt's car, ripped out a mobile telephone in the car and threw a bottle through the windshield. The car then left the scene.

Rumble was identified through the license plate of the car, which Corsetti had copied down. He was arrested at his house about 4 a.m.

He was charged with assault and two counts of malicious damage.

Two Youths Charged In Copeland St. Stabbing

A probable cause hearing is scheduled for tomorrow (Friday) for two West Quincy youths charged with the stabbing and attempted robbery of a 73-year-old man Friday night.

William R. Barris, 18, of 64 Woodcliff Rd., and James M. Shannon, 19, of 949 Furnace Brook Parkway, pleaded innocent to all charges Saturday in Quincy District Court.

Barris is charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and attempted armed robbery. Shannon with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, assault with intent to murder and attempted armed robbery.

William L. Barton of West Quincy was reported in satisfactory condition at Quincy City Hospital, where he was treated for severe abdominal wounds. Police allege the two suspects approached Barton Friday night on Copeland St., demanded his wallet and stabbed him when he claimed to have no money.

Police say Barris was arrested that night near the scene of the stabbing and that Shannon surrendered voluntarily Saturday morning.

Barris was released on $400 bail. Bail was set at $10,000 surely or $1,000 cash for Shannon, who was still held Tuesday.

Commercial Vehicles Crackdown On Furnace Brook Parkway

MDC Commissioner Guy A. Carbone announces today an immediate crackdown by MDC Police on commercial vehicles using Furnace Brook Parkway in the Quincy area.

Carbone, after conferring with MDC Supt. Laurence J. Carpenter, said MDC officers patrolling the above area will issue citations to all drivers of commercial vehicles.

The action follows complaints that commercial vehicle drivers have been ignoring the regulations forbidding such traffic on MDC roads.

"These violations are especially flagrant on Furnace Brook Parkway in the Quincy area," he said. "I have therefore instructed our police to begin an immediate crackdown. Violators will be taken to court."

Saturday Art Festival Deadline For Student Paintings

Saturday morning, April 12, is the deadline for Quincy residents in grades nine to 12 to submit paintings for judging in the Quincy Art Association's Fourth Annual Art Festival at Adams Academy. All paintings must be ready to be hung.

Scholarships, awards and prizes will be presented Friday evening, May 9, and the festival will be held Saturday, May 10, with exhibits indoors and outdoors.

Art association members and local artisans will also be exhibiting in the festival.

HANCOCK CEMETERY, some 30 feet from City Hall, is a favorite spot for young pot-smokers, like the two shown here. Patrolman Donald Pearson makes some 40 arrests a year in the cemetery for various narcotics offenses.

Freed On Lesser Charges Police Hampered By Sealed Drug Records, Plea Bargaining

By TOM HENSHAW

"Here's one of the problems you run into," said Patrolman Donald Pearson, his finger stabbing at a pink paper report of a drug dealer he had arrested in the vicinity of Quincy Sq.

"I locked him up May 5 last year," he said. "Got him with 102 PCP (angel dust) capsules. He gave an address in Florida. Never showed up in court. He defaulted."

"Why do they bail a guy with a Florida address unless he shows some local place where he can be reached, an address that can be verified?"

"I got ahold of the bottle he had the pills in. It was a prescription for a pussycat. I got the vet's number and the place where the prescription was filled. I traced the guy to Dorchester."

"But no one's gone to pick him up."

"Here's a guy with 102 PCPs, a major dealer. They allow him to bail on personal recognition, even with a Florida address. He never shows up in court and now he's never been picked up."

Pearson shares with a large number of police officers the frustration of patiently building a case against an offender and then watching him freed on a lesser charge.

It's called plea bargaining.

"There are times," he said, "when they are out on the streets again before I've finished writing my report."

A few weeks ago, Pearson was in the Della Chiesa Parking lot when he spotted a youth, looking south on the path behind the Hancock Cemetery.

"He approached two young kids," he said. "I saw them stop, talk, and I watched him take a plastic bag from his right jacket pocket. He emptied some of the contents into white rolling paper, put the paper to his lips, then passed it to one of the two boys."

"The kid reached into his pants pocket and handed something resembling money to our guy, green paper. He repeated the motion at least one more time. He rolled a couple of joints for the kids."

"I called for assistance but before it came they took off running. I chased our boy through the T station, across Burgin Parkway and up the stairs onto Presidents Lane."

This is the eighth in a series of articles on the drug problem in Quincy.

"About 200, I grabbed him. He threw a plastic bag over the fence. I arrested him and recovered the bag, loaded with marijuana. I put him in for distributing."

Pearson doesn't know what happened then.

"I never went to court on him," he said. "Chances are he might have bargained a plea to it."

"The next time I saw him a little while later I picked him up with a handgun stolen in a housebreak down at the Neck. They sent me down because they heard he was in the area and I knew him by sight."

"All I've heard about him since is that a couple of weeks ago he was out on furlough."

Pearson would like to see some kind of form to be filled out by the court for the arresting officer so that he will at least know the disposition of his case.

Not long ago, Pearson arrested a girl on McIntyre Mall who was trying to sell five bags of marijuana. She had a suspended sentence for a previous conviction hanging over her head.

"She knew that with the five bags of grass and possession to distribute, she was going to go by by," he said. "She gave us two fellows on armed robbery."

There aren't many voluntary informers among the group that deals at the T station. Just about the only way to get information from them is to hang something over their heads, like a suspended sentence or probation that will send them away for a second offense.

"If they were facing things, they'd be ratting on everyone else," said Pearson. "They'd be cutting everybody's throat up there. But they don't have much to worry about."

Another court practice that police officers feel hampers their investigatory efforts is that of sealing records after a certain period of time.

"The first offense, you can just plead and they continue it without finding for six months," said Pearson. "At the end of six months, they seal the record, which raises hell with probable cause."

Probable cause is the policeman's reasons for stopping someone or conducting a search.

"I see a car pull in," said Pearson. "It makes the U, all the faces looking out. They double park. I see several people I've arrested for narcotics running over to the car. I'm establishing probable cause."

"But if the guy's record is sealed within six months, I have no probable cause. The courts certainly are not helping us any."

But sometimes the courts can surprise you. Pearson recalls a case last summer in which he arrested a 15-year-old boy on five counts of distributing a controlled substance, Class B (angel dust).

"He was adjudicated a delinquent and referred to the Earn It Program for 16 hours of community service," said Pearson. "That was nothing, but he appealed it to Superior Court."

"He was saying he was set up, he was framed. It wasn't him, it was someone else. When we got out to Dedham, I shot his story full of holes."

"The prosecutor, Judy Collins, got up and recommended one year's probation and no fine. But the judge, Mel Greenberg, shook his head. He fined him $500 and gave him two years probation. Now the kid has something hanging over his head."

"An excellent judge, Mel Greenberg."

Ojala Loses Case

QHA Gets Go-Ahead To Hire New Plasterer

The Housing Authority will try again at its April 16 meeting to select a replacement for recently fired plasterer Richard Ojala.

Judge Paul Garrity of Dedham Superior Court last week rejected Ojala's request for immediate reinstatement and for an injunction preventing the QHA from hiring replacement.

QHA chairman Carmine D'Olimpio said he's pleased by that decision and hoped the authority would fill the post at next week's meeting.

Ojala was fired by the authority at its March 19 meeting, barely two months after he was hired. D'Olimpio and members Alphonzo Papile and Lolita Harris voted to dismiss the plasterer, saying his knowledge and skills were insufficient for the job.

Ojala and his attorney, Richard Kerr of Braintree, later filed suit to get his job back. They claimed Ojala was denied a full hearing before being fired, that D'Olimpio and Papile discriminated against him because of his Finnish ancestry and that because those two are related to maintenance supervisor James D'Olimpio, who had first complained about Ojala, they should not have taken part in the vote to dismiss him.

Although Garrity rejected any immediate action on Ojala's request for reinstatement and for an injunction preventing the job from being filled, the rest of Ojala's suit is still pending. An April 13 hearing has been set.

Today's Women

First Cigarettes And . . .

Now, Women Have A Wine Of Their Own

By TOM HENSHAW

The girls who came a long way to become women with a cigarette of their own now have a wine of their own, too.

It's called Biseaglia. Elizabeth Lisboa, who came a long way herself, all the way from Madison Ave., New York City, was in Quincy the other day to spread the word about it.

"Did you know that 75 per cent of table wine is bought today by women?" said Miss Lisboa, who admits she's partial to a little chenin blanc herself at $2.99 a liter.

That's a little over two pints, if you're used to buying by the six-pack.

"Women not only purchase most of the table wine," Ms. Lisboa continued, "but they are also the major decision makers. They decide what brands to buy. This wasn't the case five or 10 years ago."

Five or 10 years ago, she was working for Playboy Clubs International Inc. Now she owns her own public relations firm, which just made the significant move from East 57th St. to Madison Ave.

"The women in this country are earning and spending their own money now," she said. "Women want to obtain the positions of power. 'Our time has come,' so to speak."

By odd coincidence, that's the theme of the Biseaglia wine PR pitch, "Our Time Has Come," with scarcely an apology to Orson Welles, the man on TV who pledges that "Paul Masson will sell no wine before its time."

In fact, the Biseaglia wineries in California, which were founded in 1888, were putting their wine in Paul Masson and other bottles for years before it was decided that "our time has come" to bottle their own.

Even the Biseaglia bottle, which is light and has a handle, is designed for women, although, said Miss Lisboa, it is permissible for a woman to bring the wine home and offer some to a man.

Biseaglia wine comes in five varieties - burgundy, chablis, vin rose, chenin blanc and cabernet sauvignon.

Each bottle, incidentally, contains 1.5 liters, enough to fill eight glasses. The standard bottle contains six glasses.

Also in the Biseaglia promotion package are an assortment of recipes, ranging from clam dip chablis to fillet of sole chenin blanc.

How does that square with the new image of women, who presumably have come a long way from the kitchen?

"Oh," said Miss Lisboa, "men are better cooks than women. After all, a man taught me how to cook."

NOW FOR NOW

(or payment by check is coming back in style.)

In this topsy-turvy economic period, there is one stable, safe way to handle your money—open a NOW account at our Bank.

What can a NOW account do for you and your money management?

Well, as the use of credit cards becomes more and more restricted, a NOW account lets you switch to a cash operating basis, thus avoiding interest charges for time payments. And your money in your NOW account is earning 5% interest per annum. Thus you get the best of both worlds—you avoid interest charges while collecting interest for yourself.

But, you say, going on a cash basis means I can't make larger or more costly purchases and spread the payments. In this economy with interest charges going up almost daily, maybe that is not all bad.

It depends on how much you need a "big ticket" item. If you have a wife and five youngsters and your washing machine breaks down hopelessly, you need a washer, of course. If you don't have the cash, you charge it. But if you can switch to a cash only (or check) basis for most items, you will save money.

The trouble with cash itself is that cash is dangerous. You can be robbed or you run the risk of losing it. NOW account checks are safe and you have an ongoing record of your expenditures.

Think about it.

Should your household budget be keyed into a NOW account?

Will it save substantial interest payments?

Will it be safe and convenient for you?

• If you don't have a NOW account and want to open one (for as little as $10.00) come in to our main office or one of our branches.

We think a NOW account is the simplest and best way you have to help fight inflation.

Are "Free" NOW Accounts Really Free?

You will notice in this advertisement we did not use the term "free NOW account." That's because we want no confusion about our NOW accounts even though we feel that we come as close as anyone in offering NOW accounts at a basic minimum cost with no hidden charges.

Here is the way we work our NOW accounts:

You can open an account for $10.00.

As long as you maintain a balance of $10.00 or more you will get interest credited monthly at 5% per annum.

Overdraft charges are $5.00 each, which covers the paperwork in notifying the customer.

Stop payment fees are $5.00 for the same reason.

And the only other charge is $3.85 for each book of 200 plain checks imprinted with your name, address and account number.

What about those which claim to have "free" NOW accounts? They can demand a $300 monthly balance—or $500.00. The only minimum at our bank is $10.00 if you want to earn interest.

The thing to think about when someone says "totally free NOW account" is this: if you don't keep your balance at $300.00 all month long, you can be charged 20 cents for every check you write that month even if you bring your account up to $300.00 within 24 hours. Nothing like that at Quincy Cooperative!

We remind our customers that nothing in life is really free.....but the cost of a NOW account at our bank is very much less than for most other banking institutions.

Judge Kramer's Earn-It Program 'Isn't Working'

(Following is a copy of a letter sent to Judge Albert L. Kramer, presiding Justice of Quincy District Court by Quincy businessman Paul E. Hurley, Jr., regarding the much publicized Earn-It Program at Quincy District Court. The copy was sent to The Quincy Sun by Mr. Hurley.)

Honorable Albert L. Kramer
Quincy Court House
50 Chestnut Street
Quincy, Mass. 02169

Dear Judge Kramer:

The purpose of this letter is to suggest that you redirect or establish a new earn it program. This one should be for the victims and potential victims of vandalism, theft, and housebreaks. You know, the average citizen who has worked for a living, pays taxes, and has earned valued possessions he has accumulated such as a house, furniture, car etc. The cost of protecting this property is becoming ridiculous. Alarm systems, locks, and even permanently boarding up doors and windows are expensive. Maybe an earn it program for us would help pay for it.

I would like to remind you that I was a member of the committee representing the business community when you first started your program. I endorsed the idea of giving first offenders of minor crimes a second chance, only if the second and repeat offenders were treated with stiff penalties. Well, this did not happen. There is apparently a relatively small number of criminals involved in drugs, housebreaks, office breaks, purse snatching, and worse, who actually find comfort in going to the Quincy court. They know they'll be out on the street again within hours and maybe even get a job too, that seems strange to me! It is harder to get into jail than it is to get into Harvard University.

I have spoken to several merchants and policemen in Quincy and the South Shore and find that the justice system around here is perceived to be a bit distorted. The mood of the public in general is down. Being in the insurance business, I find that housebreaks and robberies are so common that a day without a claim of some sort is cause for celebrating. We can replace the dollar value of a stolen TV, but we can never replace the sentimental value of an item. Nor can we replace the value of the lost peace of mind. We ask the police to confront the same individuals day after day. Many of these bums are spaced out on some drug and should actually be considered dangerous. The police are doing their job, now it's time for the court to do theirs.

Your court doesn't seem to believe in jails, but who is in jail now? I'll tell you! It's the terrorized senior citizen whose afraid to go outside. It's the nervous homeowner or business person whose home or office is alarmed, locked, fenced and boarded up. Doesn't that sound like a jail? It is. Perhaps, Judge, the most costly expense of your system is the psychological wear and tear on the taxpayers of the South Shore who are paying the salaries and other costs of your court for protection.

If your program is working, I find no evidence to support it. I again ask you why these repeat offenders are still out on the street, and in fact in my office at night and in our homes threatening our well being. I feel that the criminal has had enough protection, and I would now like to have some protection for the taxpayers and their children.

Perhaps others feel the same way.

Sincerely,
Paul E. Hurley, Jr.

Points To Ponder

- An interesting political sidelight: In 1940 a young actor and model was voted by University of Southern California art students "the Adonis of the twentieth century" — the person with the most perfectly formed body. That person was Ronald Reagan.
- Most economists tell us that there is a solution to inflation — unfortunately it's called recession.
- It appears that there are now 51 hostages. 50 are in Iran and 1 is in the rose garden of the White House.
- Psychologists tell us that when people tell lies they tend to touch their face with their hands. Certain politicians probably have severe bruises about their faces if the psychologists are correct.
- The federal government says it will only assume responsibility for the Somerville gas accident if the train was moving. That sounds like the unethical car insurance company that covers you for fire and theft — you're covered only if someone steals your car while it's on fire.

Cites North Track Coverage

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I want to thank you on behalf of our boys and girls track teams for your excellent coverage this past winter season.

Mr. Tom Sullivan has taken the time each week to call the coaches to seek meet results and information and has done an excellent job promoting track. Although not one of the most popular sports, interest in school track is skyrocketing, and the people at The Quincy Sun are certainly one of the reasons why. We have 87 young men and women who each week look forward to reading Mr. Sullivan's coverage of our teams at North.

Thank you

State Races In Slow Motion

You'd hardly know it at the moment but, yes, there are going to be state elections this fall.

Candidates aren't exactly falling over one another trying to get at nomination papers. At this writing there is only one official candidate on the local state representative-senator front.

Ward 5 Councillor Steve McGrath already has his hat in the ring for the Second Norfolk District seat occupied by Thomas Brownell.

McGRATH

But there is no sign yet that Reps. Michael Morrissey (First Norfolk) or Robert Cerasoli (Third Norfolk) will have any opposition in their re-election bids.

And, there is no indication that Sen. Paul Harold will have anyone to contend with as he goes for his second term in the Quincy-Braintree-Avon-Holbrook district.

All are Democrats and you can't help wonder if the Republicans are tossing in the towel.

Unless some other candidates, Democrats or Republicans, step forward it will mean the primary election will settle it. There will be no final showdown.

Time is running out fast for potential candidates to make up their mind. Deadlines for filing nomination papers for state representative and senator is April 29.

That's just 19 days from now.

FUND RAISERS are on tap for three local state incumbents on three consecutive nights.

Sen. Paul Harold, seeking his second term, has a reception and entertainment on tap for Friday, 8 p.m. to midnight at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall. Tickets are $10 per person. Ticket chairman is Ann Leahy, 30 Stedman St., West Quincy. Tickets will also be available at the door.

A reception for Rep. Robert Cerasoli will be held Saturday at the Bryan VFW Post, Broad St., from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Dance, floor show and buffet included. Tickets $10 per person. Ticket chairman is Dolores McCray (773-5924).

Then, on Sunday night, it's Rep. Thomas Brownell's turn with a cocktail reception at the Faxon Commons clubhouse from 5 to 7 p.m. Tickets are $20 per person. Margaret Gibbons (773-3083) is ticket chairman.

CLAIRE SILVERMAN, daughter of Mrs. Ida Silverman of Quincy and the late Morris Silverman, appeared on the Tim Conway Show Saturday night playing the part of Trixie in a boxing skit.

A resident of Los Angeles, she was one of four people chosen to appear with Conway in the audience participation segment of the show. Her father owned the Silverman & Sons auto agency at Washington St. and Southern Artery in Quincy Point.

Mayor Arthur Tobin isn't sure if he won a vote Sunday in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, but he made a friend.

TOBIN

The man was cussing out the local politicians for his troubles. They couldn't run the city right, he told the joggers. The Tobin kids fanned out across the cemetery and located the missing grave.

The man thanked them and reminded them that they should listen to their father because he was a nice man and that the kids held the future of the country in their hands.

He found out that Brian Tobin was 17 and he told him, "You're going to be eligible to vote next year and I hope you vote for a man who, etc. ...." "I'd vote for him," said Brian, pointing to his father.

"So would I," said the man. "He seems like a nice man but I wouldn't wish politics on him. He's too decent a man."

"Well, he's the mayor of Quincy," said Brian, much to the man's consternation.

QUINCY Atty. Richard Barry, former city solicitor and assistant district attorney, has been elected a Fellow of the Massachusetts Bar Association by its trustees. It's an exclusive group. Membership is limited to two percent of the Massachusetts bar. The foundation serves as a research arm in the law, publishing literary works on the law and making them available to the public. Barry was nominated by Mass. Bar Association President Charles Kickham.

BARRY

ALTHOUGH A MILTON resident, Eddie Moore, aide to Congressmen James Burke and Brian Donnelly, always had a deep affection for Quincy. And vice versa, as was quite evident recently when the City Council paid special tribute to him.

And, Police Chief Francis Finn recalled this anecdote:

"A few years ago, Jim McIntyre was mayor and I asked him for a police boat. Jim always said, 'Go get it from the federal government.' I said, 'Where do I go?' He said, 'Go over and see Eddie Moore'.

"So I went over to see Eddie Moore. Eddie Moore responded very rapidly, in fact, within about three days. He offered me a Coast Guard cutter. That's what Eddie Moore thought of Quincy."

QHS Model Guidance Program To Be Recognized

A model program developed by the Guidance Department of Quincy High School has been selected by the Massachusetts School Counselors Association for special recognition at its Annual Spring Conference at Hyannis May 5.

Three members of the Quincy High School staff will detail the history of a five-year effort that resulted in the program utilizing in-house guidance resources to simplify for parents and students the complex process of obtaining financial assistance for post-high school education.

The presenters, Edward Nankin, head counselor, and William Hutchinson and Richard Pessin, counselors, will demonstrate the program form, used at Quincy High School review the scope and sequences of the program's content, offer examples of audio-visual aids, and explain how the item-by-item preparation of the Financial Aid Form is accomplished through a group process.

Second Generation

5 New Firefighters Follow In Dads' Footsteps

A second generation of firefighters joined the Quincy Fire Department recently when five new recruits completed drill school.

All five are the sons of former firefighters.

They are Edward Columbus, Jr., son of Quincy Fire Captain Edward Columbus; Stephen Mellor, son of the late George Mellor, Boston firefighter; Stephen Paolucci, son of the late Albert Paolucci, Quincy firefighter; Joseph Martell Jr., son of Quincy firefighter Joseph Martell and Richard Murphy, Jr., son of the late Richard Murphy, Quincy firefighter.

Those five made up the second graduating class of the department's drill school held at the Quincy Fire Academy. Fire Chief Edward Barry ended the six-week course on March 28 by handing out badges and assignments to the recruits.

Training included cardioresuscitation, pulmonary (CPR), first aid, driver training, pumping operation, ladder procedures, rescue techniques and firefighting tactics. About 70 percent of the training was outdoors, with an emphasis on "hands on experience."

Drillmaster was Deputy Chief Thomas Andrew, assisted by Deputy Chief Carl Valenti, Lieutenant Robert McCarthy and firefighter Robert Mood.

Furcolo Defends Record State Budget At Quincy Dinner

Gov. Foster Furcolo defended his record state budget of $457 million at a dinner-dance sponsored by the Democratic City Committee and the Democratic Women's Club at Quincy Armory.

But he declined to get into a debate with Lt. Gov. Robert F. Murphy, an opponent of the governor's proposal for a limited sales tax. Murphy left the party before Furcolo arrived.

"Irresponsible men vote for programs and won't vote to finance them," said Cong. James A. Burke (D-Milton) in support of the governor. "Furcolo has the courage to do something to pay off the debt."

Atty. Gen. Edward J. McCormack urged everyone present to become a missionary for the presidential ambitions of Sen. John F. Kennedy by writing to friends out of state "and telling them about Jack Kennedy."

TANKER AGREEMENT

An agreement was reached on more than $50 million in financing guarantees that apparently cleared the way for construction of a 106,500-ton tanker and two 46,000-ton tankers at the Fore River Shipyard.

The tankers, one costing $26 million and the others $12,650,000 apiece, had been on order for some time by the Onassis interest of Greece but the financial negotiations had been long and involved.

RAISES APPROVED

The City Council's Ordinance approved raises for all members of the Police and Fire Departments, effective July 1, their second pay hike of the year.

Under the new salary schedule, privates in both departments would get raises from $3,990 to $4,000 to start and a maximum of $4,705 to $5,000 for the lowest rank.

At Shipyard Employment Crisis Passed For State's Smallest Railroad

The smallest railroad in Massachusetts is back on normal operation, in spite of what the State Division of Employment Security has been saying.

The DES announced recently that employees -- all 10 of them -- of the Fore River Railroad whose employment has been adversely affected by foreign imports may be eligible for financial assistance.

A spokesman for the railroad, which is not used to so much attention, said that, while there may have been some employment problems last summer, the situation has been cleared up.

"When General Dynamics couldn't get steel last summer we had to cut the work week back to three or four days," he explained. "But we're back to normal now."

The Fore River Railroad, which runs from the Old Colony tracks in East Braintree to the shipyard, is a "holding" of General Dynamics, which owns all its stock. But, by law, it is a separate corporation.

brief the chamber on defense issues.

Rear Admiral Richard E.

Rumble, U.S. Navy, who is Chief of Staff will be team leader. Other team members are Commander James C. Bain, Canadian Forces; Commander Michael V. Taylor, Royal Navy; Captain U.O. Harkness, U.S. Navy; and Commander Helmut Meyer, Federal German Navy.

A question and answer period will follow.

'Franklin St. Extension' Finally Off City's Books

Ever hear of the Franklin St. Extension?

Neither did the present City Council until Monday night when it was asked to clear up a cloud that was hanging over a parcel of land near the corner of Hancock and Granite Sts.

Seems the City Council of 1929 took an easement on the property in conjunction with a plan to extend Franklin St., from School St., to Granite St., through what is now the Ross Parking Area.

But the '29 Council was feuding with the Mayor of the time, explained Asst. City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington, and the Mayor refused to ask for money and the extension never went in.

"The purpose of the easement was abandoned," said Harrington, "and the easement should have been abandoned at the same time to give the owners clear title."

Now, he said, the owners are planning to sell the land and the buyers have a mortgage commitment that runs out April 15 and papers cannot be passed until the title is cleared.

He indicated that the owners of the property could sue the city for damages for not abandoning the easement years ago.

The Council voted abandonment unanimously.

Mrs. Hammerle Named To Industrial Finance Post

The appointment was confirmed Monday night by the City Council.

Mrs. Hammerle, who has been a licensed broker since 1964, is employed by Emmanuel Realtors of North Weymouth, and also works as a bookkeeper at the Woodward School for Girls.

college to people who are not presently students at Quincy Junior College, and we hope that people who are curious about college or specific courses or who have questions they'd like answered -- or who simply want to visit with us -- will attend."

There will be a central gathering place with coffee and doughnuts operated by students and staff members and which will be located in QJC's Courthouse Room 5. Members of student government will guide visitors. Visitors can choose which class

DR. BARRY FREEDMAN SPEAKS TO YOU ABOUT HEALTH!

YOU CAN BEAT THE "BAD BACK" SYNDROME

Are you one of 7 million people suffering from back problems?

There are more than 7 million people in the United States who suffer with back problems. So if you get out of bed every morning holding your back, and are afraid to do anything strenuous even when your back is not in pain for fear of having a recurrence, you are not alone. But having partners in misery is really no consolation!

Surgery is not always the answer.

Surgery might even be appealing, if you knew for sure that it would correct your problem. But you have no guarantee, and the track record has not been outstanding.

It must be recognized that all operations, no matter whether they are called "major" or "minor", offer an element of risk. Actuaries can give you the percentage, but certainly death is a possibility with all surgery. Disability may be more frequent. And pain and hospitalization are certain.

Chiropractic treats back problems without drugs or surgery.

Many spinal and back problems that would require surgical procedure have been treated successfully with manipulation by doctors of chiropractic. Chiropractic's record has been excellent with cases of slipped disc and sacroiliac problems. Likewise, case histories have shown chiropractic to be an effective non-surgical method for the treatment of many other types of health problems.

Chiropractic specializes in treatment of structural and health problems related to the spine and nervous system.

Chiropractic utilizes the inherent recuperative powers of the body and the relationship between musculo-skeletal structures and functions of the body, particularly of the spinal column and nervous system, in the restoration and maintenance of health.

When all is said and done, in some cases, you may need surgery. And if you do, your doctor of chiropractic and every other conscientious member of the health team will refer you to a surgeon experienced in handling the problem. But on the other hand, you may not need surgery. Isn't it worth while to at least find out before you take the painful step?

As a member of the health team, the doctor of chiropractic diagnoses, treats and refers.

'Superwalk Sunday' For March Of Dimes

Mayor Arthur Tobin has proclaimed Sunday, April 13 as Superwalk Sunday, in honor of the event sponsored by March of Dimes, Sons of Italy and Zayre's Department Store, to raise money to fight birth defects.

Mayor Tobin recently presented the proclamation to Sons of Italy Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo; Helen Testa, Venerable of Stella Del Nord, the Sons' Womens auxiliary and Heather Saia, Massachusetts Bay poster child for the March of Dimes. Heather is the niece of Lloyd Hill, principal of Quincy High School.

The proclamation noted "the March of Dimes, which contributed immeasurably to the victory against polio is now devoting its efforts towards the prevention of birth defects, which is the nation's number one child health problem."

The 30-kilometer (about 18-mile) walk will begin at Quincy Vocational Technical High School on Coddington St., Quincy Center at 9 a.m. Other Superwalks will be held the same day in Boston, Framingham, Lynn, Malden, Norwood and Watertown.

Zayre Department Stores will provide prizes, including a color television, to be awarded at random from walkers who have sent in their pledges.

The Sons of Italy members will assist with walker recruitment and registration and man checkpoints along the route.

To register for Superwalk 80, pick up a registration card at Zayre Department Stores or call the March of Dimes at 329-3902.

Kindergarten Registration April 15

Registration for kindergarten for the school year 1980-81 will be held Tuesday, April 15, from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. at all Quincy public elementary schools for children who will be five years of age in 1980.

Parents must present a birth certificate at the time of registration and evidence of immunization for D.P.T., polio, measles, mumps and rubella to comply with State Law, Chapter 590. A child may be admitted to kindergarten if in the opinion of a doctor he is not in a condition to be immunized and issues a certificate indicating this fact.

Appointment will be made on registration day for vision, hearing, and entry screening assessments as required by State Law Chapter 76B.

School

Marking Periods

The third marking period ended Wednesday in Quincy's secondary schools, grades 7 to 11.

The second semester marking period for seniors ends May 16.

Report cards for grades 7 to 11 are to be distributed Friday, April 18.

MARCH OF DIMES Superwalk Sunday proclamation is presented by Mayor Arthur Tobin to March of Dimes poster child Heather Marie Saia, Stella del Nord Venerable Helen Testa and Sons of Italy Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo. The April 13 Superwalk, held in cooperation with the Quincy Sons of Italy and its women's auxiliary, Stella del Nord, will raise money to fight birth defects.

Biblical Reenactment Opens First Church Of Squantum Easter Service

The Easter service at the First Church of Squantum Sunday began with a reenactment of the Biblical account of the women's early morning visit to Christ's tomb.

Playing the parts of the women were Barbara Colwell, Gretchen Bumpus and Laurel Bumpus. Aaron Gerry and David Gerry were the angels who greeted them.

The Boys' Choir and the Junior Choir combined to sing, "Alleluia!" to a traditional Easter melody. Mary Ruth Scott directed, assisted by Kathy Fluhr.

Andrew Ogilvie and Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, made a special presentation of the Easter message to the children. Richard Williams and Jo Ann Warren then distributed "Jesus eggs" from the pastor to each child. The eggs tell of Jesus' resurrection.

The Youth Choir sang "Christ Arose" by Robert Lowry. The Senior Choir sang the anthem, "This Joyful Eastertide" arranged by Shaw-Parker to a melody from Davids Psalmen published in 1685.

Dr. Langevin preached on "How Do We Know That Jesus

Cardinal Medeiros At Dedication

Catholic Charitable Bureau Opens Quincy Center Office

Humberto Cardinal Medeiros was present to bless the new Quincy office of the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston at the office's dedication recently.

The office, at 19 Cottage Ave., Quincy Center, was dedicated in honor of Judge J. John Fox, former judge of probate for Norfolk County. Fox is a past chairman and present member of the bureau's Board of Directors. Mayor Arthur Tobin presented Fox with a certificate of appreciation from the City at the dedication ceremony.

Rev. Msgr. Eugene McNamara, executive director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston, said the Quincy office will serve the communities between Boston and Brockton. Between July, 1978 and June, 1979, almost 400 cases were accepted from these South Shore communities, including 110 from Quincy.

"To serve these communities from the downtown Boston office was extremely difficult and wasteful," Msgr. McNamara said.

CATHOLIC CHARITABLE BUREAU's new Quincy office is opened by, from left, J. John Fox, former Norfolk County probate judge; Mayor Arthur Tobin and Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, who blessed the 19 Cottage Ave. offices. # Tobin, Council Clash Over 'Sense Of Direction' development of the sanitary landfill.

The Quincy Historical Society claims the mill, a survivor of the glory days of granite quarrying, has historical value and should not be sacrificed to the city dump.

Ricciuti said the city has to begin Phase 4 of disposal development in two years and the mill stands right in the middle of it. Moving only a part of it would cost $284,000.

What, asked Ricciuti, is your pleasure, councilors?

"I don't know why we're just getting letters," said Councilor Daniel G. Raymond. "At some point the Mayor has to make a recommendation. We don't run the city. The Mayor has to give us his recommendation and convince the Council it is right."

Ricciuti's letter on the turning mill also was turned back to the Mayor.

When a second Ricciuti letter arrived on the agenda—this one involving an energy conservation plant on the dump site—the Council began to take the heat.

Raymond interrupted Clerk John Gillis' reading of the letter to have it placed on file.

"I further suggest that at some point in this agenda we have to separate those items that are just informational from those on which action is requested so we can take action," said Raymond.

"Until someone asks me to do something and I get a recommendation, I just don't want to come up here and waste my time on letters."

Tobin, who is still nettled by recent Council decisions rejecting a $1 billion bond issue for a downtown parking garage and setting up the hospital commission, feigned innocence Tuesday morning.

"We thought we were complying with their wishes," he said. "They have been saying that they want to be part of the decision-making process. So we went there and asked for help and direction.

"We went to make them part of the decision-making process and they ducked it. They don't want any heavy lifting. They can't have it both ways."

Tobin said that when Rocuzzo appeared before the Hospital Committee on March 17 "he got attacked. They said they were not being kept aware. They wanted to be informed."

"Rocky wrote a memo asking a sense of direction. How can we tell him what to do when we don't know what the Council will approve. He went to the Council for guidance and they referred it back to the Mayor. Now we're back on square one."

The Mayor called the councilors "nice people, and their intentions are good."

But, he added, "there were attempts to usurp the authority of the executive. They put a commission together to act on my behalf. No one sought the Mayor's advice. They just went off and put a commission together and told me it was my commission."

"Councilors can't keep coming into the Mayor's office and wanting all the goodies for their areas."

"Once they get what they're looking for they go back out in the Council and they take a project that is good for the city and they make political statements and everybody runs for cover."

"For those councilors who want to be part of the process and want to help with the decision-making, we welcome it and their sense of direction. Let's go!"

"For the others who are going to sit back and continually criticize, they're going to have to deal with me on what's going on in their areas. It's not going to be a one way street any more."

RIBBON CUTTING CEREMONIES were held last week for "Flowers, Etc.," a shop at 1088 Sea St. being run by owners of the landmark DiMarzio Roller Rink destroyed by a Jan 4 fire. From left at opening day ceremonies are co-owner Mrs. Helen Lynch, Rev. James Hart, Blessed Sacrament Church; Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, Councilor Leo J. Kelly, co-owner Jean DiMarzio and City Auditor Charles Shea. The Houghs Neck shop features original artificial creations.

Private Property Week April 13-19

Quincy, South Shore Realtors Support '2% Solution' To Reduce Federal Spending

Plans for an all out effort in support of the National Association of Realtors "2% Solution", aimed at reducing federal spending, to celebrate Private Property Week, April 13 to 19, were announced by George H. Raymond, president of the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors, Inc.

"The purpose of Private Property Week is to reaffirm the right of every American to own property and to preserve the private property heritage given to us by our forefathers," said Raymond.

This year's theme for the observance is "Private Property Rights - Protect Them." The National Association of Realtors with over 700,000 Members, today launched a nationwide media campaign to inform the public of the "2% Solution."

"During Private Property Week, our local Board will be bringing the message to area residents in support of this solution," Raymond remarked. "Realtors are committed to insuring that all Americans interested in exercising their right to private property ownership have an equal opportunity to do so," he added.

Raymond invited all area residents to observe Private Property Week and to participate with local Realtors in responding to the advertising campaign by filling out the coupons provided in their newspaper and forwarding them to Washington. Now is the time for the people to speak out.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

A Quincy Sun Special Section

Fresh, new springtime looks for your home

Americans are expected to dip into their pockets and come up with over $45 billion this year to improve and modernize their homes. As recently as 1974, home improvement spending was a mere $21.1 billion.

Several developments in recent years point toward a healthy home remodeling and modernization industry becoming one of the most rapidly growing and vigorous segments of the nation's economy.

Inflation, aggravated by the soaring costs of new homes and high interest rates on home mortgages, is forcing many homeowners to realize that bigger and better doesn't require a move.

"Another impetus to the soaring home modernization industry," says John Hammon, executive vice president of the National Home Improvement Council, "is the high cost of energy."

Remodeling surge

"This has led to a boom in such energy-related improvements as insulation, storm windows and replacement windows and doors."

Elsewhere, Hammon adds, "The replacement market for certain products such as appliances, roofing, siding, kitchen cabinets and bath vanities surpasses the volume of these products being installed in new homes."

Fly-by-night operators

Along with the rapid expansion in the home improvement market has come a number of disreputable entrepreneurs, whose offices frequently are little more than the glove compartments of their trucks. Impersonating professional contractors, they often prey on unwary consumers.

How can you determine whether a contractor is a qualified professional or a fly-by-night operator?

The National Home Improvement Council, largest professional association in the remodeling industry, recommends homeowners contact at least three professionals with established places of business.

Check credentials

Make sure the contractor is financially stable and willing to supply references from satisfied customers, NHIC advises.

The Council also suggests checking a contractor's reputation with the local Chamber of Commerce and Better Business Bureau.

NHIC members, for example, pledge to follow a prescribed code of ethics. This code assures consumers of "the highest standards of frankness, integrity and responsibility."

BOOST YOUR HOME'S ENERGY SAVINGS

With utility rates and fuel costs increasing from 10 to 15 percent annually, the homeowner who opts for improvements designed to conserve energy is wise indeed, says the National Home Improvement Council.

Although the cost of adding insulation, energy-efficient windows or a more efficient heating system may seem high initially, the investment should pay for itself in just a few years. And, as fuel costs rise, so will the savings.

Creative Financing When You Buy a Home

If you're in the market for a home of your own, you're probably in the market for a home loan, too. A conventional mortgage is usually the first kind that comes to mind, but other alternatives do exist.

These include •privately insured loans •GI-insured loans •FHA/HUD*-insured loans •Farmers Home Administration loans •urban "homestead" loans •"house-to-house" loans •variable interest rate loans •graduated payment mortgages and •HUD's subsidized homeownership program.

To learn about these possibilities, talk to a member of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® before you start looking. REALTORS® are real estate professionals, and forms of financing are part of their expertise. They can tell you what's available in your community, and how you can qualify.

Creative financing could make the difference between a home that's just right and one that's just affordable. For valuable advice and assistance, call a REALTOR® today.

The secret to livability lies in the Three C's of contemporary decor

People who object to contemporary furnishings do so because they find them cold, stark and functional—all hard lines, neutral colors and angular shapes. Nice to look at maybe, but not to live with.

But there's another side to contemporary. Rooms decorated in this style can have warmth and charm—livability—but it takes a little know-how to make them so.

The secret is the Three C's: Color, Curves and Comfort.

Let's look at how professional interior designers employed the Three C's in an open plan kitchen and family room to achieve a decorating effect that is impeccably contemporary but not unpleasantly stark.

Too many contemporary settings starve the eye on monotonous panoramas of neutral grays, beiges or off-whites. Not this kitchen-family room, though.

There's nothing bleak or sterile about the hunter green-almond-and-marigold color scheme the designers created for it. The dominant color is the hunter green; all of the walls and kitchen cabinets are lavished with it.

That would be overwhelming without massive infusions of a lighter color for relief, so the floor throughout the two areas was covered with Armstrong Solarian in a delicate almond shade.

The Solarian also serves to unify the decor of the kitchen and family room, and the no-wax surface is modern and practical.

More almond: the kitchen appliances, countertops and a custom-made hibachi table painted that color.

The modular seating units, arranged as an L-shaped sofa, are upholstered in a stylized floral print fabric in hunter green and marigold.

The modular units spell comfort with a capital C, with their amply padded seat and back cushions that beckon loungers to stretch out and relax.

The area rug is also hunter green, while the cushions of the rattan tub chairs around the hibachi table are a coordinating but not matching malachite green.

The straight-line architecture of the room is saved from severity by the introduction of curves in the cylindrical polished chrome occasional tables, the tub chairs and the rounded top of the hibachi table.

The hibachi table serves a dual purpose as a cooking and dining table or, with the cooking grate plugged, as additional counter space. (When the table leaves are dropped on all four sides, the shape changes from round to rectangular.)

The polished chrome floor lamps have graceful, arc-shaped necks.

Accessories include primitive African carvings, ostrich eggs, silver sculptures and pottery.

The description "likable but not livable" need not apply to contemporary rooms where the decorator has observed the Three C's.

Enhance garden beauty while adding privacy

The territorial imperative is said to be basic to human nature. Perhaps that's why fences are so popular.

But it's not the only reason. Others include aesthetics, a need for privacy, screening against the weather or as a backdrop to a family garden.

Like any other home improvement project, a fence requires careful planning.

Check local building department regulations. If the height of the fence is less than the maximum allowed in your area, a permit may not be needed.

The climate may also play a role in the choice of materials to use to build the fence.

Wood remains one of the most popular fencing materials because of its adaptability to a variety of shapes, sizes and heights.

There are as many different styles of wood fences, ranging from the ever popular picket fence to the richly-textured woven fence, as there are varieties of wood to build the fence.

The material you select should also be based on appearance, durability and ease of upkeep.

MAKE MONEY BY SIMPLY INSULATING YOUR HOME.

Yes! . . . We did say "make" money which can be turned around to say you'll be losing more than heat if you don't insulate.

At the end of this ad is a chart which will give you a good idea of what your own individual insulating effort will mean

Look at it as . . . "conservation" . . . "national spirit" . . . or just as dollars; the advantages are astounding!

TYPICAL SAVINGS . . .

As an example—consider a single home in the Quincy area (two full stories, usual number of rooms, walk-up attic), install 8" of mineral wool insulation and your savings will approach 25%. This is not an arbitrary figure, our customers are saving this much. Add insulation to reach this depth and your savings are about 20%. With full insulation in the attic and walls, saving 40% is entirely realistic.

And how much will it cost to save 25% on heating and cooling bills? . . . about $650 for an average 1,000 square foot attic.

A BONUS . . .

Actually the money saving is not only in oil or gas . . . you get more . . . from Uncle Sam. You can deduct 15% of what you spend from the bottom line of your income tax form. (That's about $100 on the average job).

Follow this train of thought: If you use 1,000 gallons of heating oil you're spending about $1,000 each year to keep warm. Immediately figure a saving of $250. Add the $100 tax credit and you've saved $350 during the first year alone.

Any local bank is likely to lend you the money to do the job resulting in payments that will be lower each month than what you would have spent for oil. Each month, year after year, you'll be saving 25%. At today's oil prices that amounts to a lot of money . . . at tomorrow's prices it could be a small fortune.

We've been in this business long enough for people to trust our judgement. Basically there's only one material we want you to consider . . . Mineral Wool (sometimes called Rock Wool). It's 100% natural, will not corrode, or cause fire and it doesn't settle or sink. Mineral Wool has no odor and is not a health hazard. It is also vermin proof and efficient.

Not every company has the sophisticated equipment necessary to inject Mineral Wool (so they may try to sell you some other less effective product). Beware!

We blow the wool into your attic under the floor. We do it in one day and there is no inconvenience to you—you don't even have to move anything out of your attic. The Frank Evans Company has served thousands of South Shore families. We can provide you with references and statements on customer's actual savings.

CALCULATE YOUR SAVINGS...

SAVINGS IF FUEL COSTS ...

GALLONAGE	$1.00	$1.15	$1.30	$1.50
1,000	$250	$287	$325	$375
1,200	300	345	390	450

About the house . . .

The kitchen is a good place to start using energy wisely

The kitchen, with its line-up of greedy appliances and great demands on the homemaker's time, is a good place to start saving energy.

• A ceramic tile floor makes wonderful dollars and sense. In winter it'll absorb and store heat effectively, and in summer it'll be so nice and cool, you'll want to go barefoot.

Also, it'll mean the end of tedious floor cleaning and waxing. Once over with a mop is all it takes to keep it beautiful.

• Make sure the refrigerator and freezer are placed away from heat sources.

• The hot-water heater gobbles up enormous energy, so set its thermostat low, use the coolest possible setting for the washer, and don't wash dishes under running water.

• If there's any way you can add a woodburning stove, do it. Get the kind you can cook on, too.

If you can't handle an omelet or delicate sauces on such a stove, at least it'll keep the coffee or tea kettle on the ready.

• Ceramic tile is the classic material for the walls and floor in such stove areas because it'll stand up to flying sparks, and soot wipes right off.

Tile's good looks is an important consideration, too, for those who consider a wood-burning stove more practical than eye-pleasing.

A tile wall in bright red or yellow will be a handsome stove backdrop for a contemporary kitchen. A gleaming white tile wall with a border of decorative tile is much seen in French country kitchens and is a theme worth adopting.

• Cook to save. Put small pots on small burners; cover to avoid heat loss.

Only preheat oven 10 minutes, and don't use the self-cleaner till the oven really needs it.

• Make your kitchen the heart of the house. Add a dining area even if it's just a shell or ledge plus chairs.

A surprising amount of family activities—from homework and bill-paying to crafting and dining—can well take cozy place in the kitchen, leaving the thermostat low everywhere else in the house.

• A tiled kitchen table or dining shelf will take watercolor and catspills in the stride.

A store-bought Parsons table is very easy to tile and could well be handled by a do-it-yourselfer.

If your family likes chess or checkers, think of tiling it checkerboard-style.

• Ceramic tile counters save personal energy: even the nastiest spills and grime wipe right off, and you can park hot pots right on them . . . No need to turn for a safe surface or to balance steaming pots on trivets.

• Creature comforts are important to the live-in kitchen. They're your personal touches . . . such as baskets, greenery, a beautifully set table, a stereo system that puts you in the middle of the music.

HEW's Office of Consumer Affairs offers these tips to save energy on lighting.

Dust lamps, fixtures and bulbs frequently to get all the light you pay for.

When possible, use fluorescent tubes. They are more efficient.

"Four Generations of Quality Work"

Quik Pik Denied Wine—Malt License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Quik Pik, Inc., 318 Furnace Brook Parkway, was denied a retail package goods store-wine and malt beverages license at Tuesday's License Board meeting because of a faulty application.

Board members City Clerk John Gillis, Police Chief Francis Finn, Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeogh and Fire Chief Edward Barry voted against the request. Building Inspector Allan MacDonald was not present at the meeting.

According to Gillis, the application was faulty because of discrepancies in the type of license requested by the company in a cover letter and application.

Quik Pik had been granted a retail package goods store-wine and malt beverages license three years ago, but failed to renew it in 1979.

They reapplied for the license March 25, but the request was continued when Gillis told the board City Councillor Leo Kelly opposed granting of the license.

At this week's meeting, Kelly told the board he and the 10 area residents present were "adamantly opposed to the request as they had been three years ago."

"Everything we were afraid would happen, has happened," said Kelly. "There are gangs around the store who are drinking and preventing people from entering the store, or asking them to buy beer for them. They are creating a total nuisance," concluded Kelly. Kelly submitted to the board a petition signed by 32 area residents.

Gillis examined the license application, and said that there was nothing before the board because the application was faulty.

Gillis suggested manager George D. Caisse withdraw the request without prejudice or it would be voted down.

When the request wasn't withdrawn, Dr. McKeogh made the motion to deny, which was seconded by Chief Finn.

Quik Pik can reapply for the license.

In another matter, the board continued until May 13, a request from George P. Marangos of Dorchester to be licensed as manager of School St. Sunoco.

Marangos appeared before the board, as requested, with station property owner Arnold R. Swinimer of East Falmouth, and Sun Oil representative Ray Salminen who told of plans to upgrade the station.

Salminen told the board that he is simply the station's oil supplier, but because he didn't like the station's appearance, he had contracted a Weymouth company to paint the station, inside and out.

Chief Barry examined the painting contract and noted there was no completion date. "We want assurance that the station will definitely be painted. As it is, it is no asset to Quincy," said Barry.

Chief Finn reiterated Barry's sentiments saying, "That area is one of the nicest in the city. St. John's has spent a lot of money on their property and you (Marangos) have to spruce up the station's appearance."

After several motions which failed to receive a second, Dr. McKeogh made the motion to continue the request for one month and to deny it at that time if the station hasn't been upgraded to the board's approval. Chief Finn seconded the motion. In other action, the License Board:

- Granted a request from the Paul D. Harold Committee for a one-day all alcoholic license for a fund-raising dance Friday, April 11, 8 p.m. to midnight at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.
- Granted a one-day all alcoholic license to the Quincy Youth Arena, Inc., to be used in conjunction with a Las Vegas Night Saturday, May 31, 8 p.m. to midnight at the arena. Youth Hockey representative Mrs. Beverly Reinhardt told the board there would be no professionals running the games.

- Continued for one week a request from the George F. Bryan VFW Post for a poppy drive permit May 15, 16 and 17.

- Agreed to send a letter to Michael Cahill of the Quincy High School Band Parents after Dr. McKeogh told of the group soliciting last week at intersections during tag day activities. The group had been instructed to stay out of intersections for safety reasons.

ANTI-BURGLAR BOOMERANG

Keeping burglars out of your home is one thing. But while you're at it, make sure you don't lock your family inside as a by-product. It could spell death in case of fire.

Take for example the case of Willy Lynch of Los Angeles. To prevent burglars from looting his home, he installed bars in all the windows and two-way locks on all the doors - the kind that needs a key to get out as well as in.

One morning after leaving for work, the inevitable happened. Smoke was seen pouring out of the front windows. In seconds, the mother and children were beating frantically at the windows and doors. Flames and smoke had prevented them from getting the door key from the living room which was in flames. The neighbors had no luck in removing the bars. Finally, a motorist pulled up, produced a chain from his trunk and pulled off the bars from the front door.

Results - Two children were hospitalized with severe burns and a third, an eleven month-old child was found dead under a toppled bookcase. The moral of the story should be clear.

Braves Begin Quest For Second Crown

The South Shore Braves, who easily won their second straight N.E. Junior Hockey League regular season title, began their quest for a second successive playoff crown Tuesday when they faced Fitchburg at the Quincy Youth Arena, their new home.

The teams, which swept their semi-final series in straight games, met at Fitchburg last night (Wednesday) and will play the third game Saturday night at 7:50 at the Quincy Youth Arena. The fourth game will be in Quincy Tuesday at 7:50 with the fifth game, if necessary, at Fitchburg next Wednesday and the sixth back in Quincy on Saturday, April 19, at 7:50.

After two laughers against the Tyngsboro Huskies (12-4 and 16-4), the Braves had to battle all the way last week to eliminate the Huskies, 7-5.

"My hat is off to Tyngsboro," said Quincy Coach Bob Sylvia. "They could have thrown in the towel but they battled us all the way and they showed us you can't take anybody for granted.

"It would have been easy for them to come down here and play out the string, but they didn't. They came to play and they're a credit to the league."

Sylvia said he was glad his team would be playing Fitchburg, eliminating the necessity of traveling all the way to Suffolk, N.Y., for the final series.

"Now we are playing for the Wallace Cup and every game is going to be tough," Sylvia said. "The fact that we had a better record (33-6-1) means nothing. It's been proven before that the team with the better record doesn't necessarily win the playoffs."

Glen Giovenucci, who had four goals in the second game of the Tyngsboro series, added a hat trick in last week's clincher.

Goalie Rick Cohen was tough when he had to be and came up with many outstanding saves.

Bolster Junior League MVP

Jackie Bolster was named the American League's Most Valuable Player at the recent Quincy Junior Baseball League banquet at Montello's.

Bolster, who played four outstanding seasons for the Foley Chrysler Plymouth team, coached by Bob Foley, will play for Granite City Electric in the Babe Ruth League this summer.

Varsity, Jayvees Sport 11-1 Records

Broad Meadows Girls Basketball Champs

By PETE ZOIA

Both girls' basketball teams at Broad Meadows Junior High did themselves proud this past season.

The varsity ninth grade won the championship with an impressive 11-1 record. Not to be out done, the junior varsity team also sported an 11-1 year. The one loss for each group came at the hands of Sterling.

Coach of the teams is Peter Swanson, who formerly directed the boys' team for six years.

Swanson sensed during early practice sessions that B.M. was in for a good year. He noted that the girls worked hard in conditioning themselves for the 12-game schedules and that this conditioning played a huge part toward their success.

Another contributing factor to such an outstanding record was that they played pressure defense, holding their opponents to low scores.

What made the difference from going undefeated for the ninth graders was one point, that being the margin of defeat in their sole loss. With seconds remaining, a final shot was taken and missed.

Coach Swanson emphasized that team effort was always evident as 14 different girls started at one time or another.

Outstanding contributions to the team were attributed to Mary Ann Agres, who was the top scorer and Most Valuable Player.

The most improved basketball player was Bernice DePietro who shone as a defensive player, making the pressure defense work so well.

Mary Rollins, along with Mary Kussman were mainstays by their aggressiveness. In the rebound department, getting the ball to the scorers were Stacey Spark and Ellen Dedy.

The junior varsity squad, with its commendable record, give a good nucleus for next year.

What pleased Swanson was the fact that these younger players were multi-dimensional, doing more than one thing well. Working well together were Cindy Morrell, Susan Beven, Michelle Miller, Joan Agres, Janet Scheurch, Karen Cullen and Chris Donovan.

Coach Swanson let it be known that his ninth grade championship was acquired through the efforts of Frances Brown, Karen Dami, Paula Riley, Kim Moccia, Kathy Reddish, Jill Congdon, Jody Megnia, Maureen Connolly, Rita Pattivina, and Jean Rudolph.

Players. Coach Rich Carroll praised the team for its second half explosion.

Quincy's B team, the Black Aces, came from behind to edge Worcester B, 15-11.

Messina Ends St. Anselm's Career With 107 Points

Former Archbishop Williams High standout Paul Messina of Quincy has completed a highly productive career as a member of the St. Anselm's College hockey team.

The 5-9, 170-pound wing collected 107 career points on the way to becoming the eighth leading scorer in St. Anselm's history. For this year's 7-16 team -- which was beset by inexperience and injuries -- he notched 37 points to rank second in team scoring.

"Paul had a good scoring year and played quite a bit, with his regular shift and killing penalties," noted Hawk Coach Tom Birmingham.

His 30 goals last year were the second highest single season total in school history.

In addition to hockey, Messina also played baseball at the hilltop, anchoring third base.

At Archbishop Williams, the versatile Messina played football, baseball and ran track, when not on skates. He distinguished himself in all four.

A Business and Economics major, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Messina of 10 Appleton St., Quincy.

QJC Has Quincy-North Look

By TOM SULLIVAN

Dave Burke is starting his 12th season as Quincy Junior College's only baseball coach and for the first time he has a squad of virtually all Quincy and North Quincy players.

"I was surprised to find all but three of our 16 players are from Quincy and North Quincy," said Burke, whose Jaguars opened their regular season Tuesday against Bunker Hill and today (Thursday) host Mass. College of Pharmacy at 3:30 at O'Rourke Field. Next Tuesday the teams clash at Mass. Pharmacy.

The keys to QJC's success this spring are Burke's "old reliable," Ed McElaney, and the pitching corps.

McElaney, who won several games with field goals to put Burke's North Quincy High football team into the Super Bowl a few years back, was QJC's shortstop last year but this season, through necessity, he has taken over the catching chores.

"Ed is just great and he can play anywhere," said the Jaguars' coach. "When I said we didn't have a catcher, he took over and has looked good in practice. I think he will fill the bill all right."

Last season McElaney hit safely in all 10 of QJC's games. The Jaguars were 6-4 last year as Burke continued to come up with winning seasons. They play an independent schedule again this spring.

For pitchers QJC has Bob Thomas from North Quincy, southpaw Steve Jaehnig of Quincy and B.C. High, lefty Bob Olgey from Weymouth and Jim Sweezy of Hanover.

"They all throw pretty well with Thomas, Olgey and Jaehnig having a lot of high school experience," Burke said. "If they come through, we should do all right. We have some good hitters and our defense should be strong."

North Quincy's Brian Condon is at first base, Quincy's Eric Carrera, who comes from a family of outstanding athletes, is at second, Quincy's Dave McLaughlin, who played at Don Bosco, is the shortstop, and Paul Vespaziani of Quincy is at third base.

Burke has a number of fine looking outfielders, including veteran Dave Moran of North Quincy, Mike Colon, Tom Pistorino, John Newcomb, John Livingston and Mike McCormick of North Quincy and Tom O'Brien of Dorchester, who played at Catholic Memorial.

Moran and McElaney are the only returnees.

"McElaney, Carrera, Vespaziani, McCormick and Moran are good hitters and we should score our share of runs," Burke said. "The key, as usual, is the pitching."

President's Golf Course Open

The Presidents' Golf Course at the Wollaston Recreational Facility is now open to the public and the tennis courts will open in early April, announces County Commissioner George B. McDonald.

Greens fees have been increased for the first time since 1977 by 10 percent, but several changes have been made to enhance the course. The number of golf carts has been increased from 16 to 20 and No. 2 hole is being re-designed to cut down on golf balls from leaving the course.

The second Annual Norfolk County Golf Classic is planned for May 17 and 18. Last year over 150 of New England's top amateur golfers competed and this year over 200 are expected to participate.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

One of the most incredible baseball records of all-time was set by Shodless Joe Jackson who had season batting averages in the major leagues of .387, .408, .395, .373, .354 and .382 - AND NEVER WON A BATTING TITLE... Jackson compiled those averages in the American League starting in 1910, but every season when he had such high averages, some one else had a better one... It seems unbelievable that a player who hit that well should not have won at least one batting championship - but Joe Jackson never did!

Here's a surprising fact... Did you know that when a good tennis player serves, the ball travels more than 100 miles per hour... And, recent tests showed that some serves by great players measure up to 160 miles per hour!

Amazingly, a big league baseball pitcher once won EVERY game his team won over a complete season... Pitcher Will White of Cincinnati won 43 games in 1879... Cincinnati won only 43 games that year - so White won 'em all... There's a record that'll probably never be broken.

I bet you didn't know... That Colman's has a full line of action clothes for all sports, and at prices that will save you money. A full line of outdoor sport items await you, at sensational prices.

WEEK OF APRIL 10.

AQUARIUS—January 21-February 19
Thursday-Friday find you making key domestic decision, but weekend is in gauging in life's favorite luxuries. Friction eases in career environment and family is more attentive.

PISCES—February 20-March 20
An older person takes you into his/her confidence, and a youngster adopts you as a role model. Week has exotic touch; you might meet a charming someone from a faraway corner of the world.

ARIES—March 21-April 20
Harmless jokes can be misinterpreted, so keep satirical streak in check. Life brightens Sunday, as you're the object of everyone's affection. Review documents only when at your sharpest.

TAURUS—April 21-May 22
Don't mince words Tuesday-Wednesday, when you're bound to find yourself at the right place at the right time. Ingenuity solves a friend's romantic dilemma. Hasty is accented through weekend.

GEMINI—May 23-June 21
Someone is pulling the strings for you behind-the-scenes, a dreamed-for opportunity may be imminent. Good time to catch up on miscellaneous health needs and clear up domestic misunderstandings.

CANCER—June 22-July 22
Exchange is the week's theme: trade-ins and pooling ideas bring profitable results. Interesting correspondence is due—and the interesting part is what's between the lines. Romance is on the upswing.

LEO—July 23-August 22
This isn't a week for sand-guessing anyone. Speak out if you doubt a partner's or colleague's judgment. Travel is favored on the weekend. Be kind to digestive system and avoid too much sugar or spice.

VIRGO—August 23-September 22
Watch your habit of imposing high standards on others; loved ones may be in an independent mood. New ways to earn money open up. A financial bonus is favored, and an ancient investment pays off.

LIBRA—September 23-October 22
Delays, rearranged plans and unexpected guests are part of present plan—and you may be ready for a holiday by Wednesday. In love, recent uncertainties clear up, and you and mate achieve deeper understanding.

SCORPIO—October 23-November 21
The weekend is ideal for home improvements and general repairs. Negotiating takes up more time than expected, but don't opt for short-cuts. Gemini and Taurus people play key roles in social life.

SAGITTARIUS—November 22-December 22
Spend more time listening to, and encouraging, children. There's a financial theme to the week—a good time for launching business venture. Make the weekend athletic time.

CAPRICORN—December 23-January 20
A turning-point kind of week; it may be time to think about making an important career and/or domestic decision. Emphasis is on communicating; make overdue calls, host a family powwow, write a sonnet.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Financial security among your chief goals. And you can begin to realize it this year—by being less impulsive and trying more subtle tactics. Romance takes on new dimension—provided you don't insist on having everything yesterday.

BORN THIS WEEK

South Boston Savings Reports Highest Earnings In State

South Boston Savings Bank is the highest-earning savings bank and maintains the lowest expense ratio of any savings bank in the state, announced president Richard R. Laine at the annual corporators meeting Tuesday.

"We are the highest earning savings bank in Massachusetts and maintain the lowest expense ratio of all the savings banks in the State...these facts are good reasons why we are always the leader," Laine said.

The original size of the building was doubled, the lobby and customer service areas were enlarged and five additional teller terminals added, as well as another drive-up window. This expansion also provided parking spaces for 35 more vehicles.

"We are in the process of renovating a building directly across from the main office for a mortgage service center to provide additional service and convenience for our depositors." The total assets of the South Boston Savings Bank are over $450 million. Offices are in South Boston, Neponset Circle in Dorchester and in Quincy.

A message to all savers from The Cooperative Central Bank

You put your hard-earned dollars in a bank to avoid the risks and uncertainties associated with other investments. For that reason, you should know just how safe your savings are in a co-operative bank.

Your co-operative bank is chartered by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, whose statutes require that each co-operative bank be examined regularly by the State Banking Department to assure proper management and investment of depositors' savings. In addition, it is required that each bank be audited yearly by independent accountants approved by the Banking Department.

Further, each co-operative bank is required by law to set aside part of their earnings as reserves to safeguard deposits. These reserves form only part of your total deposit protection.

In addition to these statutory regulations and reserve requirements, your savings are protected by the Share Insurance Fund of the Co-operative Central Bank. This fund was established in 1934 to further protect all deposits in every co-operative bank in Massachusetts.

Each co-operative bank must be a member of the Insurance Fund. Annual premiums from these banks, plus the income the fund realizes from conservatively investing in various types of governmental securities, continue to increase the assets of the Insurance Fund. In fact, the Co-operative Central Bank and its Share Insurance Fund have a greater ratio of reserves for insurance to insured deposits than any other deposit insurance fund—private or federal.

Your Deposits Insured in Full

Our financial strength is such that we insure all deposits in full, including interest left on deposit. No one can offer you better deposit insurance—no one.

Schools Move To Court Because 'Nothing Is Done'

JOHN MAHONEY

By TOM HENSHAW
Since Quincy schools opened last September, 46 students have been apprehended for possession of drugs or alcohol on school property, according to figures from the office of Social Health Coordinator John W. Mahoney.

During the same period of time, according to Mahoney's figures, there were 27 juvenile arrests of students off school property, most if not all of which were continued without finding in Quincy District Court.

"I have no knowledge of any juvenile being sent away for possession of drugs," said Mahoney.

During the same six months, a total of 357 students — 216 boys and 141 girls — were challenged by police off school property as to why they were not in school. Most of those cases did not involve drugs, Mahoney said.

"Many more were observed smoking in open areas," he added, "but they would field strip their cigarettes before officers could reach them."

Det. Sgt. Daniel Lyons of the Quincy Police Juvenile Unit feels that the schools are showing progress in their fight against the use of drugs by students.

"It got up to a point a couple of years ago where we were doing about 35 requests a month from the schools," he said. "Right now it has dropped down to about 10 a month. They're doing a fantastic job in the schools."

But both Lyons, who has been with the Juvenile Unit for

$6 On Tax Rate Firefighters Win $1.5M In Arbitration

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy firefighters have won a binding arbitration award that will cost the city some $1.5 million in the budget for fiscal 1981, or nearly $6 on the tax rate, it was learned by The Quincy Sun.

The award was scheduled to be announced yesterday (Wednesday) by the Dunlop Commission, a 13-member group set up to resolve fire and police contract impasses.

According to The Sun's information the 275 firefighters will receive wage hikes of 11 percent as of Jan. 1, 1980, 5 percent as of July 1, 1980 and 3 percent as of Jan. 1, 1981.

In addition there will be a $1,600 bonus for each firefighter payable in four installments due in July and October, 1980, and in January and April, 1981.

Mayor Tobin's office said the Mayor was out of town and unavailable for comment.

The dispute that went to the Dunlop Commission was made up of two parts, an economic one involving salaries and a non-economic one involving transfers and minimum manning.

The Sun's source was unable to say whether a decision had been reached on the non-economic part.

Calculated on the basis that every $275,000 in the budget is the equivalent of $1 on the tax rate, the $1.5 million award would cost Quincy taxpayers slightly less than $6 on the 1981 tax rate.

Sees Community Services Reduced Creedon Warns Of Sports, Other Cutbacks, Layoffs If Council Slashes School Budget

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Services to the community, evening classes, summer school and extracurricular activities, including sports, might be eliminated next year if the City Council cuts the school budget, according to School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon.

In addition, Creedon said, layoffs of many "auxiliary personnel," such as lunch matrons or teacher aides, could occur if the City Council makes the $4.8 million in cuts recommended by Mayor Arthur Tobin.

The School Committee has submitted a $39 million budget for 1980-81 to the council. In a March 17 letter to the councillors, Tobin asked them to approve only $34.2 million, the part that comes under the state's four-percent spending cap.

The entire city budget is expected to come before the council on Tuesday, April 22.

If the cuts recommended by Tobin occurred, Creedon said, the school system's main priority would be to preserve its "primary mission," education from kindergarten to grade 12.

Creedon would first recommend that the School Committee consider cutting "any kind of services rendered the community at some expense to the school system," he said. These include evening programs, the Quincy Community Theater and the use of school-owned buses by senior citizens groups and others.

Next to go, in no particular order, he said, could be summer school programs, "auxiliary personnel" and school extracurricular activities, including the sports programs.

Any cutbacks in programs, Creedon said, would have to be approved by the School Committee and probably would not occur until the committee had exhausted all legal avenues to obtain its full budget.

Traditionally, the school budget has been protected from council cuts by state law. However, Tobin says this principle of "fiscal autonomy" applies only to that portion of the budget under the four percent cap. School Committee members feel the entire budget is immune from cuts by the council.

Because the school budget

Eyes Receipts, Valuations Council To Seek More Budget Info

The City Council has not yet received Mayor Tobin's budget proposals for fiscal 1981 but already councillors have served notice that they will seek information on city finances that goes beyond the budget before they vote for it.

Councillor James J. Sheets has asked Finance Committee Chairman John J. Lydon Jr. to invite Treasurer Robert Foy and Chief Assessor John Comer to the budget hearings so they can be questioned on valuations and estimated receipts.

Those are two factors that play as large a role as the budget in setting the city tax rate.

"To me," said Sheets, "it doesn't make a whole lot of sense to begin looking at the budget and talking about a tax rate unless we have a firm understanding of precisely what is happening in these areas.

"If I look at the total valuation of the city and the estimated receipts and they tell me we're deeply in trouble that's going to affect how I vote on matters in the budget."

Sheets noted that the city had to submit four different statements to the State Department of Revenue and three of them were rejected before the 1980 tax rate was finally set at $224 per thousand.

Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who has filed home rule petitions with the State Legislature in an effort to assure Comer's appearance before the Council, wished Sheets good luck in his quest.

"It's been a pet subject of mine since I've returned to the Council," he said. "If we can get

For Bermuda Trip

QHS Band Defends Tag Day Activities

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Representatives of the Quincy High School Band appeared before the City License Board Tuesday and emotionally defended the group's conduct during April 5, Tag Day activities.

The band held the Tag Day to raise funds for a class trip to Bermuda, and according to Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeough, violated the terms of the permit by soliciting at intersections.

Band director Michael Cahill told the board Tuesday that when Tag Day activities began, there was some solicitations at intersections but that it was stopped right away. He said he was "very upset that the group was singled out" for criticism.

Peter Ricciardi, president of the Band Parent's Organization for the past six years, said, "if the incident caused any embarrassment to (license Board member) Police Chief Francis Finn, I apologize. The Police Department is the only department that has recognized the achievements of the kids."

Ricciardi said that the community has not been responsive to the band and that the band didn't want to conduct its second Tag Day but members felt that was the only way they could raise money.

"I'm very upset about the publicity we got. This is the first mention I've seen of the band in the media and it inferred that I wasn't doing my job", said Ricciardi.

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley told the board he was at the meeting as a parent and councillor to inform them of all the time and effort band members put in.

Amvets Meeting

The Veterans Council will meet tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the AMVETS Memorial Post, Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

"The city wouldn't have as many problems if all of the kids were of the caliber of the band kids," he said. "I wouldn't like to see them turned down by the board if they come for a permit another time. They are doing a great job and are the least of our troubles over-all."

Dr. McKeough defended his complaint against the band by saying, "I would rather have 149 band members here and safe, than 148 in Bermuda and one in a cast in the hospital. My concern is for the safety of the kids. I'm not objecting to the band, motherhood or apple-pie."

Fire Chief Edward Barry said he didn't think the board should excuse solicitation at intersections "because that would be over-looking a real hazard." Chiefs Barry and Finn suggested groups gear solicitation more toward shopping centers.

McCauley suggested that the band contact the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and South Shore Chamber of Commerce for some publicity and support of its activities.

Finn said he personally apologized if the matter caused embarrassment to the band, but that the board wanted to express its concern for the safety of the band members.

The matter was placed on file. In related matters, the License Board granted Tag Day permits to the Bryan VFW Post and St. Mary's School.

The VFW permit is for a Poppy Drive May 15-16-17. Commander Henry J. Williams said his organization would try to set an example by staying out of intersections.

St. Mary's School Tag Day will be May 16-17. In a letter to the board, Rev. John J. McMahon, Pastor said there would be proper supervision and he could assure there would be no solicitation at intersections.

Dr. McKeough did not vote on either of the Tag Day permits.

Receives Freedom Foundation Award

Harold Honored For Role In Preserving Adams Birthplaces

Over 100 local officials, Quincy Historical Society members and residents gathered Sunday to honor State Senator Paul Harold, recipient of the Freedom Foundation Award for his part in preserving the Adams Birthplaces.

Harold was honored by the National Freedom Foundation for his three-year effort to bring the birthplaces under federal protection.

That effort bore fruit last year when Congress approved assumption of the responsibility for the birthplaces by the National Park Service.

The award was presented Sunday at First Parish Church by Harold Crowley, Quincy Historical Society secretary who nominated Harold for the award.

Also participating in the ceremonies were Rev. Keith Munson, pastor of First Parish Church, and Thomas Boylston Adams, a fifth-generation member of the Adams family.

Harold suggested federal protection for the birthplaces when a member of the city council, noting the expense of maintaining the birthplaces was approaching $100,000.

In accepting the award, Harold said the success in securing federal protection for the birthplaces' preservation was particularly satisfying because the project was national in scope and permanent in result.

He praised H. Hobart Holly, former president of the historical society; William O'Connell, current president; Henry Bosworth, Quincy Sun publisher; Wilhelmina Harris, director of the Adams National site; former Cong. James A. Burke, and Cong. Morris Udall of Arizona, chairman of the congressional Interior Committee, for their cooperation and assistance in making the federal protection a reality.

Adams, guest speaker for the ceremonies, lauded Harold's effort and success, as well as his concern for historic preservation.

"Sen. Paul Harold is a great man for Quincy," he said, pledging to lend his support and that of the Adams family to Harold's new project, federal preservation of the historic First Parish Church.

Harold serves as co-chairman with Richard Porter, board member of the church, of a committee to work toward federal assistance.

Estimated 27 Cases

Apparent Food Poisoning Reported At Sterling, Central Junior Highs

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Final lab reports were expected Wednesday afternoon on samples of food believed to have caused an estimated 27 cases of food poisoning at two junior high schools.

But City Health Commissioner Dr. Robert McKeough theorized the illnesses were caused by contamination of the meals while being transported from North Quincy High, where they were cooked, to the schools where they were served.

Sterling Junior High Principal Paul Breslin said Friday there were "22 known situations" of apparent food poisoning at his school following Thursday's meal of turkey fricassee and mashed potatoes.

McKeough said three teachers and two students at Central Junior High also reported the symptoms of food poisoning—vomiting, diarrhea and fever—leading him to believe the cases were related.

An inspection of the schools' food facilities turned up no apparent cause for the illnesses, McKeough said. Also, none of the persons handling the food reported any recent illness which might account for the infection, he said.

This leads him to believe the contamination occurred while the meals were being transported by truck Thursday morning, McKeough said.

After checking on what the Sterling students had eaten Thursday, Breslin said the turkey fricassee appeared to be to blame.

Germantown Problems Topic For Heritage Society

Germantown residents are invited to take part in a community meeting at St. Boniface hall tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting, sponsored by the Germantown Heritage Society, is aimed at devising steps to deal with community problems such as litter, dogs, vandalism, youth, housing and apathy.

Heritage Society President Harold S. Crowley Jr., said task forces composed of Germantown residents will be formed and asked to make recommendations on action by the community. City and state officials have also been invited to the meeting, Crowley said.

Intern Raises Recommended Controversy Lingers Over Clerical Workers Contract

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy's clerical workers have accepted a new contract giving them raises effective July 1—but the political controversy lingers on.

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley has written to Police Chief Francis X. Finn seeking information on the student intern and cadet programs at the Police Department.

McCauley said he is concerned that the programs "are becoming a patronage haven for the relatives of elected officials and their political allies."

His desire for that knowledge, he said, was whetted by "recent newspaper reports of substantial salary increases granted to the student interns who are sons and daughters of high elected officials in the city."

Two interns mentioned in a recent Patriot Ledger story were Kelly Ann Tobin, daughter of Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, and Arthur Quinn, son of City Councillor John J. Quinn.

Other student interns not mentioned are Ralph Brinkman and Carol Hester.

The agreement between the city and the Hospital, Library and Public Employees Union show that the four interns were given raises from $10,000 to $11,000 a year.

City Labor Negotiator Joseph McParland said the four were given raises because they will be doing more work under a recent police reorganization aimed at putting more uniformed men on the streets.

"Just before we sent the final draft of the agreement to the union," he said, "Chief Finn came to me and requested that they be given pay raises because he felt their jobs had been expanded."

McParland said he added the four jobs to the contract and it was agreed to by John J. Keefe, president of the union.

McParland explained that for the first time city employees were specified by name in the contract when their jobs were upgraded or they were reclassified.

In the past, he said, upgrading and reclassification was handled on the basis of job title which led to jealousies. It was so bad, he said, that even an arbitrator refused to touch it.

"So this time," he said, "we agreed with Keefe that we would list people by name by department and we would not settle and sign a contract until we agreed on the list."

Some of the controversial names that appeared in Appendix B of the contract, McParland explained like this:

Joseph McLaughlin, who is listed as an assistant planner in the Planning Department at $12,513, moving up to a planning assistant at $17,309.

"First of all," said McParland, "the job titles are reversed. He is going from planning assistant to assistant planner. We did not negotiate his promotion."

"He was promoted because Jim

'Women Need To Show Empathy For Themselves'

By MARY WEAVER

"Women need to show empathy for themselves as well as others" was the message Professor Caryl Rivers gave to the over 200 who participated in the fourth annual Woman-to-Woman Day Saturday at the Lincoln Hancock School.

The event was co-sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College.

A journalist and co-author of "Beyond Sugar and Spice," Miss Rivers said her research had revealed there is no basis for the argument that if a woman works, the children will suffer.

She has found, she said, that the most important factor is for a woman to be happy with herself and, lifestyle, thus capable of generating more love for her family and serving as a good role model.

Noting that the Department of Labor had ranked homemaking on par with a parking lot attendant, in terms of difficulty and skill, she urged women to work together and to raise the status of a homemaker. She also noted that while empathy which women have for others is a true strength, too much empathy can become a roadblock for the career-minded women. Women must learn to say no and not always worry about being liked, she said.

A similar theme of knowing one's strengths and needs was carried throughout the six workshops offered during the day.

Libby Fennel, a professional career consultant told women to set priorities - identify their roles and objectives - wife, mother, career, education, money, etc. and prioritize them.

"Priorities will change throughout your life, but it is important to know what they are now so that you can commit your time to the top priorities without feeling guilty," she said.

When she asked women to identify their strengths and skills by thinking about their major accomplishments, the audience responded with a number of unique feats, including completing the marathon three times and traveling through Europe alone.

"Women are getting closer to equality in divorce settlements," said Judge Albert Kramer, presiding Justice of Quincy District Court at the workshop on Divorce.

The need for work to know their rights and to retain a good lawyer were stressed at this workshop.

In another workshop, Donald Gohl and Doris Morfold of the Quincy Cooperative Bank told participants how to budget their money and to control their spending. The mortgage market was also examined.

Rocco Ricci of the Community Health Education Department at Mount Auburn Hospital conducted one of the more popular workshops on Stresspoints. Beginning his program with an exercise aimed at relieving stress, Ricci noted that stress is a given part of life.

"Stress can be both good and bad and it will always be with us. The important thing is to recognize it and know how to handle it," he said.

After a filmstrip on Stress and Disease, Ricci explained the cycles of stress and noted that it was important to consciously set aside time to deal with stress, such as a daily exercise routine.

The need to come to grips with one's problems and make society more aware of the different lifestyles and needs was the message given by five women with varied backgrounds during the lifestyles panel. In another workshop the role which 9 to 5, an organization of women office workers can play in helping women to obtain jobs and improve their working environment was discussed.

Mature Temps, explained how they help older women and men return to work. "The day was a great success," said Carol Mahoney, chairwomen of the Mayor's Commission. "We are gratified by the overwhelmingly positive response which we have to this program each year." She extended her appreciation to Deborah Orman and Harriet Goldman who organized the day and the others who helped to make it a success.

Your Dental Health

by Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S.

Moving to a new town? Find a new dentist and doctor fairly soon. It is a lot easier to make an emergency appointment when preliminary contact has been established. Ask your old dentist to send along your present records so that the new dentist can make a comparison with the condition of your mouth. In fact, your old dentist may be able to recommend an excellent dentist in your new area. Otherwise, consider calling the local dental association for information on dentists in the area.

A family dentist and a family doctor should be chosen as promptly as possible when you are new to an area. If you have just moved into the area visit the office of DANIEL P. SWEENEY, D.D.S., 539 Adams St., East Milton Square, 698-3636. Get to know us before an emergency arises, have your records forwarded and get a routine check-up. Children too should learn proper oral hygiene early, get to know their family dentist and establish routine visits. Call us soon for an appointment.

DENTAL TIP: When moving it is easier to pre-arrange transfer of medical as well as dental records.

STONE RUINS of the old Lyons Turning Mill stand in a West Quincy woodland, mute testimony to a day when granite was king of industrial Quincy.

As Others See It Save The Historic Lyons Turning Mill

By WILLIAM A. O'CONNELL

Once again attention has been focused on one of the last remaining exhibits to Quincy's former greatness—the Lyons Turning Mill and Quarry in West Quincy.

Once again we hear of its imminent doom.

Once again an historic building is proposed to be sacrificed to the whim of progress, this time because it is in the way of expansion of the city dump.

And once again concerned citizens are asking for help to preserve a building and an area that would link a glorious past with an equally glorious future.

Protection of the 86-year-old building from the bulldozers is an investment in the future, not a cost to the present.

Its preservation could mean, not a predicted $6 increase in the tax rate, but an increase in jobs and land value and even a reduction in the tax rate.

In its natural setting, the site could become at no expense to the taxpayer, a public park and recreation center for residents of Quincy and tourists alike.

Or, with a little development creativity, it could become the catalyst around which a corporate headquarters or a condominium might be built.

In the construction of such an area, there can be job opportunities for hundreds of people, many of those jobs continuing well into the future.

Should the historic structure be destroyed and replaced by the city dump as now contemplated by the city one sees the possibility of endless litigation.

Wetlands would be destroyed, poisoned water would seep into Cunningham Park in Milton and down the old quarry road into Fuller Drive, Milton.

Defense of suits growing out of those possibilities would cost the city many more thousands of dollars than the cost of transporting rubbish into another town.

And, if a proposed disposal plant is constructed in the area, the destruction of the mill and the quarry site that dates back to the 1820s would have been all for naught.

That is a terrible price to pay for a dumpsite that is expected to last only 10 years.

We urge you to send a postcard to the Mayor's office, stating simply: "Save the Lyons Turning Mill and Quarry Site!" and sign your name to tell him where you stand.

(William A. O'Connell is President of the Quincy Historical Society)

Points To Ponder

- Many intelligent people can read between the lines, now if they could only park between them.
- As people get older they start to reach the metallic age—silver in their hair, gold in their teeth and lead in their pants.
- Teaching kindergarten has been described as trying to keep 30 corks under water at the same time.
- It's ironic that a fine is a payment made for doing wrong, but income tax is a fine you pay for doing well.
- There's one thing nice about inflation—you can live in a higher rent district without moving.

The first U.S. census, that of 1790, cost about $44,000, or just over a penny for each person counted.

Miss Litchfield: A Special Person

I keep asking myself, why didn't I do it? It was just a little thing—a letter. Why didn't I write it?

Some months ago, I was invited to address the Quincy Historical Society. Afterwards I was chatting with some of the people there.

One was Mrs. Elizabeth Dowd of Wollaston and we soon discovered we had a mutual favorite person: Miss Mildred Litchfield, who was my fourth grade teacher at the Pollard School in Quincy Point where Mrs. Dowd later taught.

I mentioned I was always thinking of writing to Miss Litchfield to tell her how much I appreciated her as a teacher but just hadn't got around to it. Mrs. Dowd said she would get me her address—and did.

Well, for days, weeks and then months I was going to write that letter. But newspapermen are terrible when it comes to letter writing. They meet news deadlines because they have to. But facing up to a letter is something else. It's so easy to put off until another day.

About once a week I reminded myself to write that letter but something else always seemed to grab the priority. Then, the other day, I came to work and told myself: "This is the day, I'm going to do it."

But, I decided to look at the mail first. And there was a letter from Mrs. Dowd. Attached was a newspaper clipping that started: "SCITUATE—Mildred Dalby Litchfield, 85, retired Quincy schoolteacher, died yesterday at her family home..."

I was stunned. I hadn't heard or seen a word about it.

I looked again at Mrs. Dowd's letter. Out jumped the words: "Did you ever get in touch with her?"

I had waited too long.

I haven't forgiven myself. And never really will.

I had just wanted to tell her that I fondly remembered her—even though it has been a lot of years since I sat in her class—helping me to get the hang of long division. How nice she was to us kids. How patient and understanding she was with us. How important she made us feel.

I wanted to tell her that way back then, I thought she was a peach. And still did.

And just the thought of her now opens a floodgate of nostalgic memories of her and other teachers at the Pollard School in those days. Dedicated teachers, most of whom couldn't have had more interest in us than if they were our mother.

Teachers like Ruth Abbiatti, Mary

DiBartholomeo, Irma Salvucci, Esther Sullivan, Helen O'Connor, Helen Duncan, Sadie Berman, Loretta McDonald, Beatrice Fitts, to mention a few. And, of course, Principal William Morrison and Assistant Principal Frank Mills.

Miss Abbiatti, who later became assistant principal at the Pollard and principal at other schools, fondly recalls Miss Litchfield:

"She was so dedicated. She always arrived early and stayed late. If a student needed help, she was always there to help him. She loved her pupils and was so interested in them. She never lost that interest. When they grew up, she closely followed their careers."

"She had a great heart," remembers Mrs. Dowd.

There were a lot of poor kids in Quincy Point during the depression years. Miss Litchfield would never admit it but there were mornings when she provided breakfast for the hungry ones. And there were times when she bought them clothing.

"She kept close track of all her pupils," says Mrs. Dowd. "She kept a list of every pupil in every one of her classes (for 30 years at Pollard until her retirement) and could tell you the exact year each of them was in the fourth grade."

Miss Litchfield was also kind to fellow teachers. She virtually adopted Miss DiBartholomeo and Miss Salvucci in their first years as young new teachers at Pollard.

She helped them and took them everywhere. "She had a car—it was her only luxury," says Miss DiBartholomeo.

"She did so many nice things. But she was a private person and independent. You could never repay her for the nice things she did. She just would not let you."

"The kids were her whole world. She loved them. She was a very special person."

It seemed only fitting that when she died, the funeral services were conducted by Rev. George Hodgkins, minister of First Trinitarian Congregational Church in Scituate. He is one of her former fourth graders at the Pollard.

Incidentally, her former pupils might like to know that the Pollard School PTA has a scholarship fund for deserving students from that school.

Maybe some of them might like to donate to that fund in Miss Litchfield's memory. She should never be forgotten.

If there ever was a perfect teacher, she was it. She was a very special person.

And, she was a peach.

I'll always regret I didn't say so in a letter.

Supports Earn-It Program

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I feel as both a concerned citizen and a Criminal Justice student at Northeastern University, that I must respond to a letter printed in the Quincy Sun on April 10, 1980.

I understand the frustrations that some readers may have with the occasional short comings of Judge Kramer's Earn-It program, but I feel that the Judge has had the good sense and courage to begin a program designed to strengthen our dwindling concept of rehabilitation.

Generally, there were three points of Mr. Hurley's letter that I disagreed with. First, he referred to the "average person" who is concerned about protecting his or her valuables from burglars. I suggest to you that a great deal of the young people committing crimes today are not lucky enough to be called average. Whether it is due to neglect, or perhaps even tragedies, some of these kids have missed out on what some of us have been fortunate to experience, LOVE. I also feel that the Judge is to be commended for his unique attempt at providing jobs and a more tangible sense of responsibility. I know there are some failures, but let me assure you that repeated offenders are also sentenced to institutions for further discipline.

Another important point I wish to make, is in response to Mr. Hurley's idea that the police and courts should simply do their respective jobs. When the Criminal Justice planners of our states finally receive the cooperation of the general public, they will indeed provide a more effective Criminal Justice System. One that must interact with each other at all three levels: Police, courts, and corrections. Above all it must begin to work toward the reduction of crime causation as well as disciplinary actions.

However, the most disturbing view of that article was the ever present, ill effective concept of jails! Recent studies across the nation have actual proof that incarceration simply does not act as a deterrent to crime.

Thus, perhaps more importantly should we who wish to protect society, admit youngsters and first offenders in with these harder, or chronic offenders who simply cannot reform.

Build more jails? I don't think so, and neither will your neighbors I'm sure, should it be your city or town proposed as a building site.

Therefore as is going to happen sooner or later, community interaction, programs and an understanding of what really causes crime can set us on a more productive course.

Several Schools Affected

NQHS Completion To Set Off Classroom Chain Movement

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The completion of North Quincy High School this spring will cause a giant chain reaction of movement in the school system, resulting in students at several schools being released a week early.

Arthur Woodward, coordinator of secondary education for Quincy schools, says he is seeking a waiver from the State Department of Education so that students at the affected schools can be released June 13 instead of June 20.

If that waiver is received, he said, teachers at those schools can spend the week supervising the moving procedure. The School Committee last week gave Woodward the go-ahead to seek the early release.

Under the plan, all students at North Quincy High, Atlantic Junior High and the Squantum School would be released at noon on June 13. Students at Quincy High Schools' Alternative Learning Environment and Special Needs programs would also be released that day, although the rest of Quincy High would remain in session until June 20.

According to Woodward, the chain reaction would happen like this:

- Classes and departments at North Quincy would "fan out" across the newly renovated building. They would be joined by ninth grade teachers and departments assigned to Atlantic Junior High during the renovations.

- They would be replaced by the Atlantic seventh grade, which had been assigned to the Squantum School for the past two years.

- In turn, Squantum's kindergarten classes would return to that school from the Myles Standish School. Early education classes now housed at the Quincy elementary school would then shift to the Myles Standish.

- Special needs classes now at Quincy High will be shifted to take advantage of the new space at North Quincy High. The Alternative Learning Environment classes would be transferred to the space in Quincy High formerly occupied by the special education classes.

- The Quincy Junior College nursing program would move from the Vo-Tech to space in the QJC Courthouse building formerly used by the ALE.

"All in all, I think there are about 24 departments involved," said Woodward, who noted the massive movement of desks, materials and equipment should be completed by June 20.

The exact cost of the moves is not yet known, as the project will be put out to bid soon, Woodward said.

School Committee member Patricia Toland, who admitted to being a bit superstitious, thought such a massive project shouldn't begin on Friday the 13th.

"Maybe we'll move a few things on the 12th to break that," Woodward told her.

Hearings On New High School

A large but generally quiet crowd attended a City Council public hearing into a proposal to take land at the corner of Woodward Ave. and Coddington St. on which to build a new high school.

No one spoke in favor of the landtaking and only three spoke against it.

They were Otto A. Hayward, whose home would be taken; Martin Burns, who did not want land taken from the tax rolls in Quincy Center; and Alfred P. J. Pinel, who objected to the method of taking.

NEW HAVEN GRADE WORK

A. P. Russell, president of the New Haven Railroad, said that only the lack of money was standing in the way of a quick elimination of all grade crossings in Quincy.

"Under present circumstances," he said, "there is absolutely nothing available in the way of funds for any work outside the necessities of keeping the road in operation."

Work began last fall on the elimination of the Saville St. crossing but, said Russell, there has been a general falling off of business on the Old Colony line since last November.

Promises Active Role

Raymondi New Democratic City Committee Chairman

Daniel G. Raymondi, the newly elected chairman of the Democratic City Committee, has promised that the committee will play a more meaningful role in the city's political life.

"I have a sense that people out there want to be more active," he said. "All they need is a catalyst. The City Committee is going to try to provide that."

One of Raymondi's first moves following his election Saturday, April 12, at Sherry's Restaurant was to appoint a committee to formulate a set of bylaws for the City Committee.

"I was amazed to find that all these years there have been no bylaws to govern the actions of the committee," he said. "We don't even have rules defining the role of the officers or what makes up a quorum."

Named to the bylaws committee were Leo J. Kelly, chairman; Theophilus McLelland, Robert Cerasoli, Mary P. Collins and Richard F. Rines.

Also elected to serve with Raymondi were:

John J. Sullivan, 14 Marion St.,

Wollaston, first vice chairman; Patricia Toland, 82 Cedar St., Wollaston, second vice chairman; Albert R. Bariloro, 65 Grove St., West Quincy, secretary.

Louise M. Brabazon, 94 Alrick Rd., West Quincy, recording secretary; Joseph P. Shea, 222 Governors Rd., West Quincy, corresponding secretary; and Joanne Condon, 175 Quincy Shore Drive, Atlantic, treasurer.

Raymondi said he was pleased by the turnout at the organizational meeting, which was attended by about 125 of the 210 committee members.

United Kingdom Educator

To Visit Quincy Schools Friday

Dr. John Graham, staff inspector for the United Kingdom's Education and Science Department, will visit the Quincy Public Schools Friday as part of the Distinguished Visitors Program.

Professional Head of the Assessment of Performance Unit, Dr. Graham will meet with School

Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, coordinators and teachers.

They will discuss the nature and development of assessment procedures in elementary and secondary schools, the amount of time spent administering tests, uses of information generated by assessors, and the reactions of students, teachers, parents and Quincy's school system will be the only one visited by Dr. Graham in this section of the country.

Arrangements for his visit were made by Paul Stanton, community organizer for Project LINC, through the cooperation of the U.S. Office of Education.

QJC 'Open College Week' April 22-24

Local residents are invited to find out what college is like without enrolling in a course by participating in Quincy Junior College's "Open College Week" April 22 to 24.

Residents can sit in on the class of their choice on those dates between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m., and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Some of the more popular courses are business, psychology, sociology and English classes. Many people are also interested in courses in criminal justice, early childhood education, secretarial sciences, math and sciences.

Brochures and advising will be available on financial aid, admissions, student life, careers, continuing education and academic programs.

According to a 1979 survey, adult students enrolled in the college would have loved the opportunity to build up their confidence about returning to school by attending a class before they enrolled.

"Open College Week" will provide adults with that opportunity. Participants will also be able to meet other adults returning to school after many years, and to share ideas and fears about going back to school.

The survey also indicated that attending college is much more satisfying and easier than adult students had thought.

According to Ed Tumavicus, QJC instructor and head of the Office of Institutional Research, older students do better academically than traditional age students.

"Motivation is often the key to academic success. Most of the older students we have at the college now do have that motivation and therefore tend to do well in college," said Tumavicus.

For more information, call Donna Rothenberg at 786-8777.

Crane Library To Celebrate 'Earth Day'

The Thomas Crane Public Library will celebrate "Earth Day '80" with a film program April 22, and exhibits that will continue through the week at the main branch.

The films, to be shown at 10:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m., will be: "Jet Roar," dramatizing the problem of aviation noise and what can be done about it; "Speak Up," encouraging people to become involved in decisions affecting the quality of life; and "Charlie Brown Clears the Air," with Charlie Brown, Lucy, Linus and Snoopy helping clear up air pollution.

The displays will feature give-away material from the Environmental Protection Agency.

The celebration marks the 10th anniversary of the first Earth Day in 1970, which began a decade of environmental awareness.

Local residents are invited to participate.

Cancer Crusade Meeting Thursday

The Quincy Cancer Crusade House-To-House Committee officials will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in Barry's Ships Haven, 1237 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The meeting will be held in the rear room of the restaurant opposite the MBTA Station.

Richard J. Koch, Cancer Crusade chairman, requests that ward and precinct chairmen attend to receive assignments for the 1980 house-to-house canvas to be conducted Tuesday, April 29, when 1,500 volunteers will visit their neighbors to distribute pamphlets containing life saving cancer information and solicit contributions to the American Cancer Society's Research and Education Programs.

Additional volunteers are needed to assist in the April 29 Cancer Crusade. Those wishing to assist may attend Thursday evening's meeting.

Massachusetts is one of the world's leading centers for cancer research, noted Koch. Nearly $6.9 million dollars in research funds are currently in effect in the state through American Cancer Society programs, he said. These funds provide emergency support to gifted young cancer investigators who might otherwise be forced to enter a different area of research.

THE EMPHYSEMA VICTIM

Emphysema is a disease of the lungs in which the microscopic air sacs rupture into one another, gradually causing the lungs to lose their elasticity. The victim of the disease has difficulty in breathing. After he inhales, he finds it difficult to get the inhaled air out.

The victim of the disease is more likely to be a man (6 to 1); a cigarette smoker; to live in the city, have frequent chest colds; and be short of breath. Sometimes he wheezes when he breathes rapidly and has probably had a cough more or less continually for a number of years. He is probably underweight and J tends to tire easily.

Experts do not know any cure for emphysema as of this writing, but the patient who cooperates with his doctor can live with the disease because, if caught in time, physicians can go a long way toward at least arresting the progress of the disease in damaging the lungs.

Caddy Detachment Urges Full Benefits For Marine Hostages

A regional conference of the Marine Corps League is supporting Quincy's William R. Caddy Detachment in its urging of full prisoner-of-war benefits for the Marine hostages in Iran.

A motion introduced by the seven Quincy delegates at the conference in Chicopee last week passed unanimously. The motion directed national Marine Corps League Commandant Paul Hastings to ask President Carter to approve the benefits for the Marine hostages.

About 18 of the 50 hostages are Marines assigned to the American embassy in Tehran, said past state commandant Leo Cardarelli of Quincy.

Also representing the Caddy detachment were Commandant David Dunderdale, paymaster Joseph J. Callahan, scholarship chairman Robert Flaherty, trustee Joseph Muscato, color guard captain Wayne Gauthier and past commandant Albert Parker.

The two day conference involved delegates from detachments in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and the six New England states.

Council Votes Funds For Mosquito Control

The City Council has appropriated $26,077.72 to pay Quincy's share of mosquito control for 10 South Shore communities.

Councillor Francis X.

McCauley called it a program that "is worth its weight in gold and very much needed, particularly in the Houghs Neck, Adams Shore and Germantown areas."

Hough Students Learning About Health Care

Students at the Atherton Hough School, Houghs Neck, have been taking part in field trips to the Manet Community Health Center, to acquaint them with the center, what a trip to the doctor is like, and the importance of health care.

Each week a different class from the school visits the health center, according to nurse Anne McFadd.

"A visit to the doctor can be a frightening experience for a child, but it can be less threatening for a child to visit the health center in a group, with their classmates," she says. "At the Manet Community Health Center, it is believed that a visit to the doctor should be a learning experience for every child."

During the tours, Dr. Terry Newlove takes the children into an examination room and explains what happens during a physical exam. The children have the opportunity to listen to each others hearts through a stethoscope and look in each others ears with an otoscope.

Then, in the laboratory, lab technician Brenda Gaudette lets the students view blood cells under a microscope. This is usually their favorite part of the tour, she says.

Film strips from the American Cancer Society show the children how they can make important decisions about their own health by, for example, not smoking.

Creedon Sees Cutbacks

exceeds the four percent cap, it would require a two-thirds vote of the nine councillors to pass.

If the council voted to cut the school budget, the issue would undoubtedly end up in court, said School Committee Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy.

"Obviously, education comes first," Kennedy said. "That would be the last thing to be cut. But, next to education, I would place sports, which I would consider a very important adjunct to education. I would place that just below education on our priorities."

On Creedon's other possible recommendation, Kennedy said, "it would take a lot of study and a lot of supporting data to decide."

Tobin, out of town this week, was not available for comment on Creedon's statements.

"I'd really rather not talk about this right now," said Creedon of the possible cutbacks. "I'd prefer not to add to the level of anxiety in the school system right now."

The prospect of school closings and layoffs, contract problems and still-unpaid raises for this year and the long-running dispute with Tobin over the budget have all contributed to this "anxiety," Creedon said. In an effort to combat it, he said, a series of weekly briefings open only to school employees have been scheduled for Mondays at 2:45 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock School.

At these meetings, Creedon said, school employees will be able to check out rumors they have heard or question him and his assistants on recent developments.

Court Bypassed On Drug Cases

15 years, and School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon agree that drugs are a problem in and around the schools.

"I don't think you could resolve the problem 100 percent," said Lyons. "If you push it away from the school, it's going to go into another area."

"You can get it anywhere because to most kids today smoking a joint isn't any big deal. You can probably go down to any place in the city and find something going on."

"It's going on in the schools, there's no doubt about it," said Creedon. "The school is not immune. The kids don't change their habits one way or the other when they step through the door."

"What we're saying is that we're taking every precaution that we possibly know of to combat it."

The Quincy schools have had a drug policy for the past dozen years, longer than most school systems. It was tightened considerably after the big drug raid May 5, 1977, in and around the Quincy High School complex.

Procedures for teachers to take when a tip of the drug problem pops up in their classrooms are spelled out in detail. Problem areas have, since 1977, been patrolled by plainclothes police officers on paid detail by the School Department.

"The only ones who go into the schools are plain clothes men and juvenile officers," said Lyons. "There is no school that we can't go in. A lot of cities and towns don't have this relationship and when you don't have it you've got a problem."

Creedon said that since a directive about drugs went out in 1977, "we haven't had one complaint from a teacher about doing what was asked of them. We have a serious situation here in the schools because of the contract dispute, but as far as drugs that Quincy school officials tend to look upon the new "get tough" policy announced by the Braintree School Committee with a somewhat jaundiced eye.

"They are only doing the things that we have been doing since 1972," said Mahoney. "They're eight years late, that's all. And we have spent the eight years learning about it, refining our policy, establishing a relation-

"We've found that for us to take a kid to court is like a last resort, because once a kid finds out that they don't do anything to you in court then we've lost our clout. So we'll talk to the parents or try every agency first."—Det. Sgt. Daniel Lyons, Quincy Police Department.

and alcohol go we have no problems with the teachers."

"For the past 10 years we have had a very consistent approach to the drug problem. Anybody's idea that this will help or that will help, we'll try. We have never, as some school systems have, denied that the drug problem exists."

The vast majority of the drug problems that surface in Quincy schools are handled in-house between the school and the parents. Few arrests are made.

"We've found that for us to take a kid to court is like a last resort," said Lyons, "because once a kid finds out that they don't do anything to you in court then we've lost our clout. So we'll talk to the parents or try every agency first."

It is largely for this reason ship with the kids.

"For one thing, the suspension policy announced by Braintree is clearly illegal, or at least it is the way it was written up in the Ledger. You can't suspend a student without due process. I can cite you a half dozen Supreme Court decisions that say that."

"When we apprehend a student offender in Quincy, we first confiscate the evidence and then we hold a hearing within the school system. If we wish to go beyond that, we prosecute in court."

Part of the new "get tough" policy in Braintree is mandatory court action against even first time offenders.

"The people in Braintree are kidding themselves if they think something will happen in court," said Mahoney. "The kids aren't scared by the court. Back in 1977, we had 17 of them in court on warrants and one indictment and that hasn't stopped them."

"I would suggest that the best punishment is in-house suspension. Expelling a kid does more harm than good."

"It is possible to get so fed up with a kid that you want to kick him out of school. But doing that creates more problems that it solves. I've seen figures that 80 percent of the kids committed to the Department of Youth Services (DYS) were kicked out of school."

"And remember," said Lyons, "most of the kids we deal with are essentially good. Probably 97 percent are. But you've always got a small percentage that are bad and if God himself came down He probably couldn't deter them."

This is the ninth in a series of articles on the drug problem in Quincy.

Energy, Economy Reasons 2-Week Vacation For Students This Christmas

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Next year's school schedule, joked School Committee member Joan Picard, may be a boon for the budget but not for some harried mothers.

"As a School Committee member, I look favorably upon this calendar. As the mother of two children who might be home for two weeks, I'm not looking forward to it," she said.

Economy considerations will turn the traditional one-week Christmas-New Year's vacation into a two-week holiday for kids and teachers next year. School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon told the committee last week that the two-week break will cut down on the system's oil use at the peak of the heating season.

Students will be dismissed on Friday, Dec. 19, 1980 and return 17 days later, on Monday, Jan. 5, 1981.

In addition, energy conservation will turn the Jan. 15 Martin Luther King state holiday into a four-day weekend. There will be "no school, all schools" on both Thursday, Jan. 15 and Friday, Jan. 16.

In supporting that decision, committee member John Sullivan noted that "one-day work weeks," such as the Friday after Thanksgiving, are considered by industry to be the most expensive days of the year. Boilers and other machinery have to be started up for one day before being shut down again for the weekend.

The committee approved Creedon's proposed 1980-81 calendar, which sets Opening Day for Wednesday, Sept. 3 and has a tentative closing day of Friday, June 25. As usual, the calendar schedules 185 days, which allows for the state-mandated 180 class days plus five cancellations.

Permits Issued For $175,249 In Plumbing

The city plumbing and gas fitting inspection department issued 261 permits during March, for work costing an estimated $175,249, according to its monthly report.

According to Inspector James A. Erwin Jr., the department made 234 plumbing inspections, issued 146 plumbing permits for work costing $79,382 and collected $966 in fees.

The department made 143 gas fitting inspections, issued 115 permits for work costing $95,867 and collected $446 in fees.

Tobin Urges Residents To Return Census Questionnaires

Mayor Arthur Tobin, in an effort to encourage everyone to be counted in the 1980 census, is urging Quincy residents to send their census questionnaires in as soon as possible.

"The success of the 1980 census report in Quincy is vitally important," Tobin said. "Not only does our community's political representation in the U.S. Congress and in the State legislature rest on population totals, but large amounts of federal and state funds are returned to Quincy each year based on census statistics.

"The office of Revenue Sharing of the U.S. Treasury uses census population and per capita income figures to allocate these payments to each community.

If everyone is not counted, it means our community will be shortchanged and we will not receive our fair share of these tax funds which, after all, come from residents in the first place."

DR. BARRY FREEDMAN SPEAKS TO YOU ABOUT HEALTH!

YOU CAN BEAT THE "BAD BACK" SYNDROME

Are you one of 7 million people suffering from back problems?

There are more than 7 million people in the United States who suffer with back problems. So if you get out of bed every morning holding your back, and are afraid to do anything strenuous even when your back is not in pain for fear of having a recurrence, you are not alone. But having partners in misery is really no consolation!

Surgery is not always the answer.

Surgery might even be appealing, if you knew for sure that it would correct your problem. But you have no guarantee, and the track record has not been outstanding.

It must be recognized that all operations, no matter whether they are called "major" or "minor", offer an element of risk. Actuaries can give you the percentage, but certainly death is a possibility with all surgery. Disability may be more frequent. And pain and hospitalization are certain.

Chiropractic treats back problems without drugs or surgery.

Many spinal and back problems that would require surgical procedure have been treated successfully with manipulation by doctors of chiropractic. Chiropractic's record has been excellent with cases of slipped disc and sacroiliac problems. Likewise, case histories have shown chiropractic to be an effective non-surgical method for the treatment of many other types of health problems.

Chiropractic specializes in treatment of structural and health problems related to the spine and nervous system.

Chiropractic utilizes the inherent recuperative powers of the body and the relationship between musculo-skeletal structures and functions of the body, particularly of the spinal column and nervous system, in the restoration and maintenance of health.

When all is said and done, in some cases, you may need surgery. And if you do, your doctor of chiropractic and every other conscientious member of the health team will refer you to a surgeon experienced in handling the problem. But on the other hand, you may not need surgery. Isn't it worth while to at least find out before you take the painful step?

Morrissey Asks For Increased Train Service

Rep. Michael Morrissey (D Quincy) has asked MBTA Chairman Robert Foster, for an increase in Quincy Train service during the morning and evening rush hours.

Morrissey wrote to Foster in response to constituent complaints on the unavailability of trains during the rush hour since the opening of the new Braintree station.

"Most of the complaints come from the North Quincy residents," Morrissey said, "who claim that they can't get in the trains because they are so crowded by the time they reach North Quincy. They end up waiting through a train or two to board one."

Morrissey believes an increase in trains during these times will help to alleviate the problem.

Wollaston Family Adopts Central American Youngster

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Suchan of Wollaston have a new addition to their family a three year old boy, Matthew Carlos, from El Salvador, Central America.

The Suchans, who also have a five year old daughter Stephanie, adopted their new son through Adoption Associates for All Children, Salem. Proceedings took just over a year due to the civil strife in El Salvador.

Matthew arrived in this country March 25, apparently healthy but weighing only 23½ pounds, the result of not having had enough of the right kind of food.

According to Mrs. Suchan, since being in this country he has been intent on making up for his lack of food.

"He would eat from morning to night if we let him," said Mrs. Suchan. "Food is his main concern. He isn't that interested in toys. He likes clothes and sometimes carries them around with him. But food is always on his mind. He likes to go to bed with some bread in his hand and has gained almost four pounds so far," said Mrs. Suchan.

His favorite food is meat,

MATTHEW CARLOS SUCHAN

mainly chicken and he has a real craving for it, says Mrs. Suchan. She prepares some sort of chicken for him at each meal because it has protein and is easy to digest.

He refuses milk, probably because it isn't very good in Central America, says Mrs. Suchan. He does eat cheese and cottage cheese.

The Suchans haven't introduced him to the standard American fare of fast food hot dogs and hamburgers because his digestive system is still pretty delicate and they want to make sure his meals are balanced.

Though Matthew knows little English and the Suchans know little Spanish, they manage to communicate using basic words. After some initial reluctance, Matthew has adjusted beautifully to his new home, says Mrs. Suchan.

He and his new sister Stephanie seem to be getting along pretty well and the Suchans would like to adopt another little girl in the future.

In the meantime, Suchan, owner of Mary Carter Paints, Quincy, has composed a letter from Matthew's point of view to introduce him to relatives and friends.

The letter concludes: "My home was in El Salvador, Central America, a country no larger than Rhode Island. Many people live there and most of them are poor. I was one of the poor ones and I needed a home. It took a long time to get my papers . . . and my new mama and papa did not think that I would come. Then one day it just happened and I came to my new family".
Welcome home, Matthew!

More Schools To Be Considered

April 29 Hearing, May 14 Vote On 4 Proposed School Closings

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

May 14 is the most probable date on which the School Committee will decide what, if any, schools will be closed this year.

That vote will be preceded by an April 29 public hearing at which the committee invites any and all interested citizens to sound off on the topic.

Those dates were set by the committee last week after receiving the citizens task force on school closings' recommendation that four schools be closed before this September. They are the Great Hill, Myles Standish, Hunting and Cranch.

Task force chairman William Denneen wound up the group's six-week study by noting that as many as one-third of the school system's seats could be empty next September and telling the committee "this is no longer a long range problem. The time for action is now."

School closings should not end with those four schools, Denneen said. The task force recommended that the committee act on further closings and a possible total reorganization of the school system for September, 1981.

Committee members praised the task force's efforts while accepting their report and dismissing the group. Mayor Arthur Tobin, who admitted he had reservations about appointing such a panel, told Denneen, "I'm truly impressed."

On the same topic, the committee later agreed to hear a statement from Patrick Conroy of North Quincy, who urged them to close between nine and 11 schools this year.

"Your inaction could be costly," said Conroy, an unsuccessful candidate for School Committee last fall. "Every dollar you spend on an empty seat is one you can't spend on the kids who fill those seats."

While the system has 28 schools, declining enrollments mean no more than 17 to 19 are now needed, Conroy claimed.

Harold To Attend Foreign Policy Conference In Washington

State Senator Paul D. Harold will go to Washington Friday to participate in a special State Department conference on international relations and foreign policy sponsored by the U.S. State Department.

Harold was selected to participate in the conference by U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, who will present experts in various areas of foreign diplomacy, including Mid-East relations, oil and energy, the balance of trade, and the East-West conflict.

Topics will also include newly-established lines of trade with China, and expansion of trade with Japan, as well as international nuclear policy, and treaty relations.

Harold was selected from among a select group nationally to attend the briefing, sponsored by the State Department and the Young Political Leaders of America.

"It is an honor for me to be selected to participate in this conference, and to serve as a representative of the New England Region in examining United States policy and representing the best interests of New England," Senator Harold said.

Controversy Lingers Over Clerical Workers Contract

(Cont'd from Page 3)

Lydon got the Planning Director's job and McLaughlin got Lydon's old job. The old job is phased out but it was left in the contract because we negotiated it."

Dorothy Mulcahy, who goes from senior clerk typist at $10,768 to secretary to the Fire Chief at $13,603.

"If you look through the contract," said McParland, "you'll see that all secretaries to department heads are at $13,603."

"The Mayor and the Fire Chief agreed in the previous fiscal year that she should be raised to that level primarily because the secretary to the Police Chief has been making that for many years."

Mulcahy and Gemma Fertile, who moves up from principal clerk in the Planning Department at $11,902 to head administrative clerk at $14,795, are the subjects of an unfair labor practices suit by the union.

They were paid their raises retroactively to 1978, while others are retroactive only to 1979 and the union doesn't think that's right.

A third employee, Rita Trycinski, who goes from junior clerk typist in the Veteran's Services Department to senior clerk at $10,768, also received her raise retroactively to 1977 but the union is not contesting that one.

"In essence," said McParland, "what we're saying is that we had an agreement to pay them at the expiration of the old contract and it just never happened."

"So when the fiscal 1980 budget was prepared the money was put in based on what was understood to be a commitment that they would be upgraded at the end of the old contract."

Josephine Carnali, who goes from $11,353 to $13,603 as secretary to the City Clerk. Actually, Carnali has been serving as acting assistant City Clerk at $18,456 while Thomas Burke is on leave of absence as the Mayor's executive secretary.

"She was always the secretary to the City Clerk but she was not getting 'secretary' money," said McParland.

"Our agreement with the union was to raise her to $13,603 in her permanent job. We agreed that secretary to major department heads were more in the nature of administrative jobs than simply taking shorthand and typing."

Raymond Cattaneo, who goes from administrative assistant in the Park Department at $12,937 to office manager at $15,706.

"We were directed to change that job title," said McParland. "He could no longer be an administrative assistant."

"The union requested that the job title be changed to office manager and we agreed to that. We also upgraded it. We gave him more money."

something of meaningful value you have done a great service to the city. But I wouldn't hold my breath."

The matter came up at the last Council meeting when Mayor Tobin sent a letter to the Council challenging the School Department's budget requests which, he said, would result in a $22 hike in the tax rate.

Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia asked to see the figures that were used in calculating that increase.

"It's important that we understand what anticipated revenues or lack of revenues were taken into consideration," he said.

Viable alternative to moving . . .

New insulated siding will make your house more comfortable

Over the past three decades, aluminum siding has remodeled more than 11,000,000 older houses and, in recent years, due to the need to conserve energy, much of this remodeling is done with insulated aluminum siding.

Many types available

Before you invest in siding, however, it is wise to be aware of the different kinds of insulation available, and thus be able to judge which will do the best job for your particular house.

Insulating systems are measured by thermal resistance values (R values). The higher the number, the better the insulation properties.

Aluminum siding over a 1/2" isocyanurate board foil faced on both sides is particularly effective with an R factor of 5.

Also effective are polystyrene insulated aluminum siding and aluminum siding over a polystyrene backer board and a layer of foil.

With mortgage rates rising prohibitively, remodeling an older house has become a viable alternative to moving.

And one of the most rewarding forms of renovation in these fuel-conscious days is to perk up the exterior with insulated siding.

This can be an investment that repays its initial cost by reducing painting bills, and saving on heating and cooling fuel costs.

Increase in resale value

Certainly, it will add to the resale value of your home, for most aluminum siding today comes with warranties of up to 40 years.

Consider that if it costs $6000 to put new aluminum siding on an old, peeling house and $2000 to repaint the existing wood siding every four years, a homeowner would recover his original investment in eight years, if it needs painting now.

Aluminum siding over a layer of foil has an R value of only 1.1, and uninsulated siding of any kind rates an R value of less than one, of little insulating value.

To ensure air tightness, the caulking around windows and doors must be done properly before trim and accessories are added to the siding.

Before you make your final selection of siding, make sure it is the right style and color for your home in its entirety, and that it will blend well with neighboring houses.

The long and short of it

Pre-finished aluminum siding can be used either horizontally to accentuate the long, low lines of a house, or vertically to minimize an overlong horizontal sweep or accent gables of colonial architecture.

When installed skillfully, it is virtually impossible to distinguish from wood without going up and touching it. New colors and textures add to this effect.

The baked-on colors on aluminum siding come in a wider range than finishes on other siding, such as vinyl plastic.

Seek reputable contractor

Remember, too, that no matter how good the siding, it must be installed by a reputable remodeling contractor for it is his expertise that will give you the best possible re-siding job for your investment.

Check home's exterior during spring cleaning

"In the spring a young man's fancy . . . Unless he's a homeowner. Then, chances are his thoughts turn heavily towards spring cleaning.

But spring cleaning shouldn't be confined to the indoors. It's also the ideal season for sprucing up a home and its surroundings.

A good place to start is with a thorough check of the home's exterior.

Such an inspection ought to include the condition of windows and doors, their ease of operation and weatherstripping, basement walls, siding, trim, gutters, downspouts and the general condition of the roof.

Gutters, downspouts and the roof surface, no matter what the season, should be kept clear of fallen leaves, twigs, broken branches or other litter so that water can drain freely and not back up.

Tree branches, climbing plants or vines should be trimmed to prevent scuffing of the roof surface.

Don't go up on the roof to check its condition. It's dangerous and could damage the shingles.

Inspect it from the ground using field glasses. Look for cracked, curled or missing shingles.

If the roof is fairly new and has suffered slight damage from a storm or falling objects, chances are it can be repaired easily.

Damaged or missing shingles can be replaced and any leaks around flashing points patched.

All roofs have to be replaced eventually, however. If the roof is badly worn because of years of weathering, it will have to be replaced.

A roof of standard shingles 15 years or older is probably due for re-roofing. Before going ahead, call in a professional roofer to conduct a thorough on-the-roof inspection.

Re-roofing procedures differ with the type of material used. Asphalt shingles, for example, can often be applied directly over the old roofing material, eliminating the cost and time involved in removing the old material.

The professional you hire to inspect your roof can tell you whether this can be done. He's also a good source of information on the use of color and dimension in roofing.

"Four Generations of Quality Work"

1980 wallcovering designs: "instant decorating"

New wallcovering styles and colors emerging in the '80s will be coordinated and luxurious—whether inspired by classic traditional or "high tech" furnishing with its industrial influence—according to a recent design survey conducted by the Wallcovering Information Bureau.

Design and color directions of new wallcoverings are in step with the movement toward greater sophistication in home furnishings.

Trends in wallcovering designs forecast by designers for this decade include a heavy emphasis on mini prints and orientals, and a renewed focus on traditional patterns.

Mini prints, smaller scale prints and geometrics have grown in popularity with the move toward smaller homes, apartments and condominiums.

Wallcovering colors are becoming clearer, cleaner—more colorful and less grey—than in recent years.

Oriental designs are gaining favor as a result of increased trade with China, many designers comment.

There is also a strong focus on traditional patterns, ranging from small prints to large, elegant designs.

In color, blues are strong, with trends toward navy or midnight blue, in combination with rust or burgundy, the designers observe.

Dark, bright blue is also popular, with accents of tan, sand, beige or peach. The return of soft, but clear, turquoise and aqua is also seen.

Neutrals are still present, designers indicate, with chocolate brown at one end of the spectrum, ranging to beige, bisque and bone.

Dusty pastels and soft, light colors are favored by designers for traditional and documentary type wallcoverings.

Decorating

Wallcovering collections offer a wide choice of patterns—many with companion fabrics—in color combinations that can serve as the basis for an entire decorating scheme. One designer calls this the "instant decorating" aspect of wallcoverings.

Remodeling busiest room requires careful thought

There's only one thing that can be said for an inefficient, poorly planned kitchen—"remodel."

Being the busiest room in the house, today's kitchen should be efficient, convenient and attractive. Making it so depends on basically one thing—careful planning.

Begin with an appraisal of your family's needs and lifestyle. This will enable you to modernize the kitchen to meet your specific needs.

Remember, an inefficient kitchen is a problem awaiting a solution. Determine where the problem spots lie and remedy them.

Since a workable kitchen depends on organization, divide the kitchen into distinct work areas. Make sure each area has sufficient storage and counter space.

If storage is a problem, select cabinets which feature adjustable and revolving shelves, lazy Susans, vegetable bins and partitioned lid drawers. Arrange items on shelves within view and easy reach.

As important as organization, says the National Kitchen Cabinet Association, is cabinet durability. Since the kitchen is essentially a workroom, the cabinets you select should be able to provide years of easy-care service despite hard use and abuse.

Frank Evans Inc.

Quincy, Mass.

Dear Frank:

As much as I have read on the values of insulation, I never really believed it could make such a difference in the "feel" of the house. The difference is fantastic. I'm sorry I waited so long to have it done.

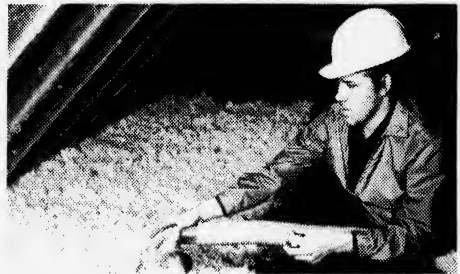

The cost always seemed too high for the yearly saving. Now with the price of fuel being so high the amount of saving is so much greater.

It really feels great not to hear the oil burner running almost continually on these cold windy nights.

Thank you,

Prepare for next winter . . .

Replace old windows, add storm sash to save fuel

Don't let warm weather lull you into forgetting that ill-fitting and drafty old windows can rob you of precious heat next winter unless you replace or repair them.

If they are not snug and do not provide good insulation, you should consider remodeling with efficient, modern replacement windows. If they can be sealed effectively against leaks and drafts, shop for storm windows instead.

Either way, you can reduce heat loss through your windows substantially, be more comfortable, and help to reduce your fuel bills.

To achieve maximum savings next winter, order storm sashes early so you have them when the cold weather arrives.

Aluminum-framed replacement windows are still the most popular because they are efficient, require little maintenance and blend into any style of architecture.

Although rigid and strong, these windows are lightweight and easy to handle, and the metal won't shrink, swell or rot.

The most efficient kind with a single opening sash are thermalized aluminum windows because they reduce heat conduction throughout the entire window and insulate as well as wood or vinyl.

Improved weatherstripping is used in the component parts of most windows, along with double or triple glazing (two or three sheets of glass separated by dead air spaces). Savings in energy alone can help offset their initial expense.

For instance, if you owned an average size house with 250 square feet of old single-pane windows in Manchester, Vt., you might have saved up to $260 in your heating bills last year, when oil was 85¢ a gallon, by installing double-glazed replacement windows with a thermal break.

Where windows do not need replacing, storm windows can be equally effective in reducing heat loss, providing your prime windows are in good condition and can be caulked and weatherstripped properly.

Because of reduced heat loss and resultant increased fuel savings, you can usually realize a return on this type of investment in three to five years.

Double protection

A storm window provides a second window over the original glass, and almost all of them today have aluminum frames and self-storing screens.

Just as with a good replacement window, a storm window helps to keep the cold outside and the heat inside in winter, and the reverse in summer.

Most popular and efficient are multitrack, low maintenance units which come in standard sizes or can be custom-cut to fit any size or shape opening, including bay and picture windows and notched doors.

The frames can be ordered in mill, baked-on or anodized finishes in several different colors.

Installed over single-glazed windows, these aluminum storm units create double-glazed windows; over double-glazed thermalized windows they create a triple-glazed unit which gives maximum protection for particularly cold areas and further reduces fuel use.

Whether you're shopping for replacement or storm windows, don't buy the first window you see. Compare the quality of the various styles being offered.

Check to assure that the joints in the frames are neat and strong, and remember that the heavier the aluminum frame and general construction, the stronger and more durable the window.

Weatherstripping should be thick and properly placed, and the glass should be flat and free of indescence.

Improve original windows

No matter how good the storm window you buy, however, it will not give you maximum performance unless your prime windows are airtight. Your storm window installer will usually caulk around the frame before putting the new units in place.

It's wise to choose your remodeling contractor as carefully as you choose the windows, for it is his installation expertise that will enable you to realize the best results from any kind of window improvement.

Judge Orders Tobin Again: Submit School Raises

A judge has ordered Mayor Arthur Tobin to submit raises for school employees to the City Council for funding.

Judge Paul Garrity of Dedham Superior Court ordered the mayor on Tuesday to submit a $2 million supplementary budget request from the School Committee to the City Council at its April 22 meeting.

Garrity had already ordered Tobin on April 2 to submit the request to the council, but set no date for the submission.

"We thought that was kind of vague, so we asked for this amendment," said Quincy Education Association president Robert Garner. Although the council has had a regular meeting and a finance committee meeting since Garrity's April 2 ruling, Tobin has not yet submitted the supplementary budget request.

"We're not saying the mayor was not going to comply with the judge's order," Garner said, "but we are concerned that we get the fastest possible action."

Since raises negotiated with school employees have not yet been funded by the council, the 1979-80 raises have been included in the 1980-81 school budget for payment next year.

Approval of the supplementary request would fund those raises for payment this year instead of next.

Since the tax rate has already been set, no money can be appropriated by the city this year.

According to School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, the council could fund the raises for this year in two ways:

"They could bond it—and I'm not sure if that's possible—or they could apply the cost to next year." Garrity's decision did not change the 1980-81 budget request since "the mayor hasn't done a thing" to submit this year's raises for council approval.

Tobin and City Solicitor Robert Fleming were not available for comment Tuesday on Garrity's latest ruling.

QJC Seeking More Response To Survey

During March and April, Quincy Junior College is conducting a telephone survey of area residents to find out the kinds of courses and programs they would like to have available to them.

Toby Felton, Student Outreach Activity Coordinator, said the survey is almost completed, but noted "We still need a hundred or so additional responses. If someone calls you from the college, we would really appreciate your spending the time to give us your opinions."

To date, over 300 area residents have been surveyed about the kinds of courses they would like to see, the times and locations that would be best for them to attend a course, and their opinions on the kinds of barriers adults face when they consider returning to school. "To those of you who have already answered the survey, we thank you for your cooperation," said Miss Felton. The data gathered from the survey will be analyzed and will be used to help shape the future direction of the College.

If you have any questions about this survey or about returning to school in general, please call Miss Felton at the College at 786-8777.

Sub Shop Awarded Wine, Beer License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

South Shore Sub and Pizza Shop, Inc., 686 Southern Artery, was granted a common victualer wine and malt beverages license at Tuesday's License Board meeting after being denied the license a year ago.

Voting in favor of the license were City Clerk John M. Gillis, Police Chief Francis X. Finn and Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeogh. Fire Chief Edward Barry was opposed. Building Inspector Allan MacDonald was not at the meeting.

Atty. Peter Eley told the board that manager Charles Droushiotis was requesting the license because economically it is difficult for the small businessman. Eley said that the shop's business has dropped off in the past several months and that the license would help his client maintain the restaurant.

Eley said he has spoken to neighbors who feel the license would bring a traffic increase to the Southern Artery and surrounding streets, but that he doesn't feel there would be any adverse effects.

Gillis said that Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymond was opposed to the license because of the neighbor's concerns. Fred Bergfors of neighboring Quincy Oil said he favored granting of the license.

Chief Finn said the artery is one of the heaviest traveled in the city, and that any traffic impact would probably not be that consequential.

Chief Barry said he was afraid young people who had been drinking at the establishment would return to their cars pull out in traffic and cause traffic accidents. Barry made a motion to deny the license but the motion died.

Finn moved to grant the license. The motion was seconded by Dr. McKeogh. The license will be reviewed in three months.

In another matter, the board granted Louis Pasqualucci & Sons, Inc., 40 Summer St., Quincy Point a permit to store 2,000 gallons of gasoline underground in addition to present storage.

The total storage will now be 3,000 gallons of fuel, and abutters Gabriel Spadorei and Dora Scindonato told the board they were concerned about safety with the additional fuel.

Chief Barry explained that underground tanks are fully protected and are an extremely minimal hazard.

Still not in favor of the increased fuel storage, the residents asked if they could be present when the tanks are installed. The license was granted with that stipulation.

The board placed on file a request from Old Colony Petroleum Co., Inc., 1230-1232 Furnace Brook Parkway, for a permit to store 10,000 gallons of gasoline underground in addition to present storage.

Six area residents led by Mrs. Margaret Dorey told of gas fumes from the station, and the gas company was to give a formal report on the source of the odors before the license would be considered.

In other action, the License

Board:

A Mighty Day For The 'Mighty Mites'

The "Mighty Mites" of the Quincy Youth Hockey Association, a group of 5 and 6-year-olds (a few are 7), who drill for an hour a week on Saturdays at the Youth Arena, recently had their big day.

For the first time the youngsters, who are not allowed to use sticks or pucks in their weekly drills, were divided into two teams and saw their first actual competition.

"These youngsters are equipped only with helmets and elbow pads for their weekly drills," said Lorraine Rooney, QYHA secretary-treasurer. "They just learn the skills of skating and making various moves and learning how to protect themselves. Near the end of their season they are allowed to get the rest of their equipment and actually play a game.

"This is a big thing in their lives and they are so cute. Looking down from my office, it is really something to see them get excited, but it's just as much fun to see their parents. The parents get every bit as excited as their sons."

Next season most of these youngsters will be assigned to a House team. In fact, during the season, a few of them are considered far enough advanced to be promoted to a House team.

This program for beginners has been a part of the Youth Hockey Association program for many years and if a youngster wants to make a Mite House team he must attend these weekly drills.

Bill Hughes and Joe McConville, who direct these drills, coached the teams together with Tom Collins and Paul Connor.

Gravelli.

Playing for the Reds were Bob Merrill, Matt Kelley, Joe Botti, Rich Watt, Brian Fitzgerald, Jim Smith, Matt Fahey, Scott Collins, Jeff Craig, Gene Moore and Jeff Bertoni.

These youngsters provided a great deal of excitement as well as a few laughs in their first taste of hockey competition. Look for many of them to provide more thrills as members of the House League teams next season.

Strong In Catching, Infield But:

Big Pitching, Outfield Question Marks At North Sports

North Quincy's baseball team faces a struggle to equal last year's 14-3 record which earned it a berth in the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

Catch Charlie Bunker has probably the best catcher in the strong Suburban League and an experienced infield but has a lot of question marks on the pitching staff and in the outfield.

The Raiders, who lost a 3-2 extra inning decision to St. John's in the opening round of the tournament in 1979, open Friday at Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 3:30 and next Tuesday will face Quincy at 10:30 at Adams Field.

Bob Biagini, who had a brilliant season last spring, is back behind the plate and three veterans, Dave Nagle, Bill O'Connell and Leo Graham are back at second, shortstop and third base respectively. Tony Camillo, up from the junior varsity, is the first baseman.

Graham also is the number one pitcher. He was 3-0 with two saves last year and when he pitches, either Dave King or Pete Alibrandi will play third.

Veteran Chris Petrillo is back in left field, junior Mark Millane, following a brilliant basketball season, will be in center and Glen Segalla, who saw a little varsity action a year ago, will be in right.

Behind Graham in the pitching department are Rich Hallberg, Jamie Walsh and Mike Quinn, all up from the jayvees.

Dave Lapsley is an outfielder. Bob Bolster, Bob McCormick and Peter McDonough are pitcher-outfielders and Ken Mann is a fine utility infielder with loads of speed.

"If Walsh and Hallberg can come through and give Graham some pitching help, we could do all right," Bunker said. We have a good, experienced infield but a lot of inexperience in the outfield. Biagini, I feel, is the best catcher in the league.

"However, I am worried about our lack of hitting in practice games. We have a lot of potentially good hitters, but they haven't done much in the scrimmages.

"Biagini, Nagle and Graham have hit well in the past and I hope when the season starts, they regain their batting eyes.

"I think the Suburban League is the strongest and best-balanced in Eastern Massachusetts. Anyone of several teams has the potential to win it all."

Lou Ioanilli, who led the junior varsity to several outstanding seasons, has left to coach the girls' softball team and has been replaced by Kevin Lewis, the Raiders' hockey coach.

Here's a question for you, with an odd twist... Who's the ONLY manager in baseball history to win the World Series in each of the first 2 years he was a big league manager?... Answer is Ralph Houk, who won the World Series with the Yankees in 1961 and 1962 - his first 2 years as a manager... But then, oddly enough, Houk never won a World Series again after that.

Here's a tricky sports puzzler... See if you can name the three sports in which the winners cross the finish line GOING BACKWARDS... Not many people can name all three... Here are the answers... Rowing, tug-of-war and backstroke swimming.

Did you know that of all the big league baseball players in this century, only 2 have ever been able to steal 100 or more bases in a season... Can you name the 2 who did it?... One is Lou Brock, who stole 118 bases in 1974, and the other is Maury Wills, who stole 104 bases in 1962.

I bet you didn't know... That Colman's has a complete line of fishing needs for ALL types of fishing. You can get completely outfitted at the lowest prices at Colman's... plus wide selection.

'Granite Chips' Attend

Over 150 Old Grads At Quincy Reunion

By PETE ZOIA

More than 150 attended last week's third annual Quincy High basketball reunion at Fore River Clubhouse where many former Quincy players and friends renewed old acquaintances and revived memories of past games.

Guido (Buddy) Pettinelli headed a large committee and also served as toastmaster.

A number of pictures and clippings of this year's outstanding team and past clubs were displayed around the hall. Pettinelli presented the Quincy high school coaching staff, head coach Joe Amoroso, and assistants Doug MacFarland, and John Franceschini.

Members of this year's Quincy quintet, champion of the Suburban League, were individually introduced by their coach. He was proud of their overall 17-4 record and how they handled themselves. Amoroso thanked the sponsoring Alumni organization for its financial contributions, helping toward honoring his team at another banquet.

Former President coach Marty Finnegan spoke of being very close with this past year's team and he rated them as champions off the basketball floor also.

On hand were the famous "Granite Chips" of yesteryear, consisting of Fran Ranieri, Ralph Graham, George Ross, George Page and Jackie Pettinelli. Two of the "Chips" who also played, Al Mountain and Fred DeSantis, are deceased.

Capturing honors as the oldest player grad present was Ellie Hughes, who played for Coach George Clark in 1924.

Two previous Quincy greats of the 1930 era, who became highly respected basketball officials, were introduced in the persons of teammates Vic DiGravio and Eddie Dunn.

Among those taking part in the festivities were former players and well wishers Fred "Duke" Comi, Bill Drachic, Jim Boddie, Bob Gumpwright, John "Tubba"

Faces Bristol Thursday

QJC's Thomas Blanks Bunker Hill On One-Hitter

The Quincy Junior College baseball team opened its season last week with a 3-0 win over Bunker Hill Community College behind the one-hit pitching of Bob Thomas, a former North Quincy pitcher.

The Jaguars, rained out of their scheduled second game with Mass. College of Pharmacy, played that team Tuesday and today (Thursday) meet Bristol Community College at 3:30 at O'Rourke Field. Tuesday QJC hosts Blue Hill Regional and Wednesday North Shore at the same times and place.

Thomas, who also pitched for Quincy Data Service, gave up only a fifth inning hit and helped his own cause by laying down a perfect sacrifice bunt in the fourth, advancing Dave Moran, who had walked, and Moran scored the winning run on catcher Eddie McElaney's triple. He raced home on Eric Carrera's hit to make it 2-0.

Carrera walked a long triple in the sixth and scored the final run on Paul Vespaziani's single. Carrera, the second baseman, also contributed the fielding gem of the game, diving in short right field to grab a pop fly a foot off the ground.

Coach Dave Burke, who is in his 12th season as QJC's only coach, was pleased after the game.

"We played smart baseball for an opening game," he said. "Thomas looked strong and I've always believed a team must be solid up the middle, catcher, pitcher and second base, and we got all that today."

McElaney, another former North Quincy athlete, had two hits and an RBI. Thomas struck out five and didn't walk a batter, and Carrera, former Quincy High star, had two hits and an RBI.

5 Seniors Choose Vacation Over Baseball

By TOM SULLIVAN

The decision of five returning seniors, all expected to play regularly, to vacation in Bermuda and Florida next week, has turned Quincy High's baseball team from a top tournament contender into what Coach Bud Mosher calls "just another ball team."

Members of the senior class at Quincy will vacation in Bermuda and Florida.

Last year Mosher suffered through a 5-15 season, his worst at Quincy, but looked forward to the current season with high hopes, with many returnees.

"I honestly thought we would be in the tournament this season and expected to win a couple of tournament games," the coach said. "But when the squad reported, I asked if any of the players were going to make the vacation trip with other seniors."

"Five of them, all outstanding players whom I was counting upon heavily, said they were going. They are pitcher Dave Austin, whom I was expecting to win seven or eight games; Frank Donovan, a veteran shortstop and one of the best around; Tom Brennan, an excellent second baseman; Steve Picot, who was to be our designated hitter and backup catcher, and Robbie Craig, a utility infielder.

"I told them they had to make a choice—vacation or baseball—and they chose vacation. I told them I wasn't going to start someone in their places and then yank them when they came back. That wouldn't be right.

"We play three of our toughest games on successive days that week, North Quincy on Tuesday, Brockton on Wednesday and Waltham on Thursday.

"I tell you, I've lost a lot of motivation by their decision, but we won't be a bad team. We have a very willing and hard working group, but our job is now going to be a lot harder."

Mosher is left with but three veterans, first baseman Mike Scurti, southpaw pitcher-outfielder Andy Carrera and catcher John Kavanaugh.

Gary DiNardo, who came up to the varsity for the last four games last spring, will play second and also pitch. Mitch Johnson, a transfer from Brockton, will replace Donovan at shortstop and also do some pitching and juniors Hugh Campbell and Walter Kilgallon are battling it out for the third base job.

Joining Carrera in the outfield will be Mike Abboud, Phil Caggiano, a senior playing for the first time, Jim Hacunda and Russ Cunningham, also playing for the first time.

Ron Dooley will be the backup catcher.

Joining Carrera, Johnson and DiNardo on the mound will be Ed Tinney, who has looked extremely good, especially in relief, and sophomore Jim Austin, Dave's brother, who also will be a utility infielder. He pitched a strong three innings in a scrimmage with Silver Lake and, although the youngster still needs work defensively, he looks like a capable infielder.

Quincy opens Friday against Brookline at Adams Field at 3:15, then come North Quincy Tuesday at 10:30 at Adams, Brockton Wednesday at 2 at Brockton and Waltham Thursday at 10:30 at Adams.

Rick Hutchison has returned as junior varsity coach after a two-year absence.

"We have a rough road to travel but these kids are eager not to let the other players' decision ruin the season for them," Mosher said.

The blood drive is primarily to collect platelets which help control bleeding and are often used in large quantities by leukemia patients.

The platelets must be produced from fresh blood within four hours of donation and may be kept only three days.

The Red Cross reminds residents that April 21, may be a holiday for some people, but not for hospitalized patients who need blood.

PSSB Honored For Adoption Services

A Quincy-based human services agency has been honored for its efforts in placing children in adoptive homes.

The Protestant Social Service Bureau, 776 Hancock St., has received special recognition from the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange of Boston for completing the adoption of 15 children in 1979, more than any of 28 agencies in New England working with the Boston group.

"All of the children were handicapped," said Robert F. Taylor, executive director of the Protestant Social Service Bureau. "Most suffer from emotional problems, while others have physical and mental handicaps." Taylor noted that several are multiply handicapped.

The local agency reports that the children ranged in age from 1 to 14 years.

The adoption service of the Protestant Social Service Bureau is headed by Margaret Davidson, a social worker. It serves the South Shore and all of South-eastern Massachusetts.

Adoptions through the Massachusetts Adoption Research Exchange represent about one-half of all the placements made by the Protestant Social Service Bureau. Since it began adoption work five years ago, some 155 children have been placed in permanent homes.

Founded in 1947, the Protestant Social Service Bureau offers family counseling, special services to children, a free emergency food program, a thrift shop and referral information, in addition to its adoption program.

Robert Weddleton Appointed Dynamic Fitness Center Manager

Robert Weddleton of Wollaston was recently named manager of the Dynamic Fitness Center, Revere Rd., Quincy Center.

A Wollaston native, he is a 1976 graduate of North Quincy High, where he played hockey. He was also on the hockey team at Quincy Junior College.

He has been lifting weights for years and working out at Dynamic Fitness Center for two years, and says he thought it only natural to get a job in the business. He entered last year's Mr. Massachusetts contest "just to get the feel of what competition was like."

The Dynamic Fitness Center offers weight training, body building and slimming, running instruction and diet advice for both men and women. Facilities include a whirlpool, sauna, steam bath and showers.

The center's most important feature, Weddleton says, is the close supervision members get.

"A lot of people work out and don't know what they're doing," he said. "If you do exercises the wrong way for six months, you won't get anything out of it."

Quincy Cooperative Bank Praised For 'T' Pass

The Quincy Cooperative Bank has been singled out for praise by the Environmental Protection Agency for its adoption of the Bank "T" Pass program to encourage the use of public transportation.

The bank, which is adjacent to the MBTA's Quincy Center Station, is selling close to 700 MBTA passes a month under a program that is rooted in legislation filed by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy).

Brownell filed the legislation after a survey conducted by his office indicated that MBTA passes were generally inaccessible to Quincy residents.

The EPA, which encourages the program as a means of saving energy, noted that the Quincy Cooperative Bank has exceeded MBTA estimates of pass sales by some 600 per cent.

Brownell Bill Would Increase Tax Deductions On Interest

Legislation filed by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) that would increase income tax deductions on interest from savings accounts has received a favorable report from the Committee on Taxation.

The bill would exempt the first $200 received in interest on savings accounts from the state income tax for single persons and the first $400 for a husband and wife filing jointly.

Brownell predicted favorable action on the bill when it reaches the House Floor.

"This legislation is beneficial to both the banker and the consumer," he said.

"At a time when people are almost discouraged to save, this will provide a stimulus and at the same time give the savings bank industry capital to loan, thereby stemming the tide of rising interest rates."

"I see this legislation as anti-inflation."

WEEK OF APRIL 17.

AQUARIUS—January 21-February 19
You may have to speak up for your rights; someone could be trying to get the better of you—merely because you're shy. Body language says a lot, and you're probably right-on as you interpret messages.

PISCES—February 20-March 20
Communications improve, and while you and loved one may not see eye-to-eye, you do understand—and respect—the other's viewpoint. Avoid informal transactions, be alert to good investments involving land.

ARIES—March 21-April 20
Possible leaning toward excess; you can come on too strong with loved ones, get carried away with entertainment expenses. It's important that you appreciate life's lighter side—particularly during weekend tie-ups.

TAURUS—April 21-May 22
It's time to speak up about injustices you've observed—just be sure that you can back up criticisms. Friends may embarrass you with generosity; family seeks advice and/or funds.

GEMINI—May 23-June 21
Your life seems less restricted, you're able to do things you've been putting off lately, and you can consider purchasing a dreamed-for luxury item. One more bonus: romance is in full bloom.

CANCER—June 22-July 22
A good culture week; enjoy jaunts to galleries or concert halls—and enjoy them in the company of those you love most. If planning a career change, update resume and send in applications.

LEO—July 23-August 22
The members of your favorite group seem too political; just when you relax, a controversial subject is introduced. You're in a carefree mood—no doubt because your work tensions ease.

VIRGO—August 23-September 22
Grooming is critical. It's a must that you look your brightest, so don't begrudge the time—or expense—involved. You're a wonderfully creative cook, decorator—whatever—earning a round of oaks and ahhs.

LIBRA—September 23-October 22
You have more fun being a spectator than a participant in week's varied activities. Could be working overtime to solve family problem—but it pays off by Wednesday. Take time to improve physique.

SCORPIO—October 23-November 21
Current emphasis on simplification—in decor, dress, approach to romance. Watch out for fanatics this week—they seem to be everywhere—and stay clear of prying neighbors.

SAGITTARIUS—November 22-December 22
Just when one seems a little remote, what's important is that he/she just knows you care. Outdoor recreation is favored all week, but be careful in tackling outdoor repairs.

CAPRICORN—December 23-January 20
Explain any difficult situations before you really become embroiled. Friends seem argumentative, but family is highly supportive. Intuitive strengths are astonishing beginning Monday.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

During the next three months, you find it surprisingly difficult to make some of life's larger decisions. Perhaps it's because you're beginning to act less impulsive, temperamental and stubborn; and starting July-August, you're feeling much more partnership oriented.

BORN THIS WEEK

April 17th, actor William Holden; 18th, conductor Leopold Stokowski; 19th, actress Jill St. John; 20th, poet Piero Aretino; 21st, actor Anthony Quinn; 22nd, actor Jack Nicholson; 23rd, stateswoman Shirley Temple Black.

Police Estimate Haul At $20

Teacher, Second Suspect Arrested On Marijuana Charges

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Two men, one of them a Quincy school teacher, were arrested Tuesday after Quincy police allegedly found 24 pounds of marijuana valued at $20,000 in their possession.

Police said John F. Oliva, 35, of 348 Sandwich Rd., Falmouth, and Eulus L. Martins, 27, of 42 Warwick St., North Quincy were charged with possession of a Class D substance (marijuana) with intent to distribute.

The pair pleaded innocent in Quincy District Court Tuesday before Judge Albert Kramcr. They were released on personal recognizance for a May 29 hearing.

According to police detective Lt. David Rowell, Oliva is a gym teacher at the Lincoln Hancock School and formerly taught at the Squantum School and Atlantic Junior High School. According to Detective Robert Crowley, one of the arresting officers, Oliva first gave the spelling of his last name as "Oliver," but later gave the different spelling.

Martins gave his occupation as "unemployed."

According to Rowell, Crowley and Detective Peter Gallagher confiscated $800 and 24 one-pound bags of a

Targets Under $10 Tax Hike

Tobin Submits $112.5M Budget Proposes 85 Employee Layoffs

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Tobin, with a flourish of charts, presented a $112.5 million budget to the City Council Tuesday night, and showed them how, if they followed his instructions, the tax rate increase could be held to under $10.

The budget contains funding for binding arbitration awards to fire fighters and policemen, contractual pay raises under collective bargaining, pension increases and court rulings—but, the Mayor said, the cost is about 85 jobs in all city departments.

The Mayor's recommendations also include a school budget of $34.2 million, a reduction of some $5 million from the School Committee's request, which would bring the school budget to within the state-mandated 4 per cent cap.

"If the Council does not follow my recommendations on the school budget," the Mayor warned, "I will veto any appropriation by the Council of more than 4 per cent."

"If the Council supports my action, it will represent $17.20 on the tax rate."

"I am putting it up to the Council. If they override the veto then it is their tax rate. Or they can cut $17 from the other side and get into further layoffs affecting the police, fire and hospital."

"That's the decision the council has to make."

Tobin said the department heads made budget requests of him totalling $119,481,745, a projected increase of $22,875,890 over the budget of fiscal 1980.

"If the departmental demands were granted and if there were no

Tobin's Budget Blueprint

The Mayor's budget in capsule:

- He asks for $112.5 million.
- He proposes 85 layoffs in city departments.
- He cuts $4.8 million from the schools.
- He'll veto any attempt to increase it.
- He indicates tax rate hike can be held to under $10.

additional revenue coming into the city," he said, "that would represent an increase of $78 on the tax rate."

"This intolerable situation demanded drastic action."

His drastic action, he said, cut the budget to $112,507,209, a reduction of $6,974,536.

The Mayor told the Council that City Hospital would be able to hold the line and not show a deficit if "the medical equipment requested by the general staff can be bonded to modern the facility."

The hospital budget is $26,600,198 and the city projects hospital receipts of $27,800,000 based upon the studies of an independent audit made by Troiano Connolly and Co., Wakefield CPAs.

"The findings of the audit have been sent to the State Department of Revenue to see if they have any objections," said Tobin. "Their preliminary perusal shows no objections."

One of the major reasons for the delay in setting the 1980 tax rate was the Revenue Department's refusal to accept the city's optimistic projections of receipts from the hospital and other sources.

The Mayor said department

Ceriani Gets Plasterer's Job

Fr. William McCarthy New QHA Chairman

By BERNIE O'DONNELL
Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Parish, Quincy Center, is the new chairman of the Quincy Housing Authority.

Fr. McCarthy, a QHA member since 1978, was elected at the board's annual meeting last week to succeed Carmine D'Olimpio.

Edward Graham was re-elected vice chairman, Lolita Harris was elected treasurer and Alphonzo Papile assistant treasurer. There were no other nominations for any of the four posts.

Fr. McCarthy jokingly accepted his nomination "with regrets" and told the other members, "we might as well move the authority up to St. John's rectory."

D'Olimpio thanked his fellow members for their cooperation during the past year, saying the QHA has been "an active and working board for the community."

"Of all my endeavors in the community, I consider this to be one of my most favored years," D'Olimpio said.

In other business:

The authority rehired Robert Ceriani of Weymouth as plasterer, apparently ending three months of controversy over the position.

Ceriani has held the position on a temporary basis for a year and a half before this January, when the QHA selected Richard Ojala of Holbrook as permanent plasterer.

Ojala was fired by a 3-2 vote March 19, after a stormy meeting at which D'Olimpio, Papile and

Fr. WILLIAM MCCARTHY

Mrs. Harris expressed dissatisfaction with his work.

The authority then voted 3-2 last week to rehire Ceriani on a permanent basis, with Graham and Mrs. Harris dissenting. Both refused to comment on their most recent votes, although Graham added, "I had someone else in mind."

The authority heard a representative of a consulting firm speak on the advantages of purchasing a computer for the authority's records and asked for more information on his proposal.

John Johnson of the Institute for Housing Management told the QHA that a computer could handle such information as accounts payable and receivable, rent payments, applicant lists and vacancy records faster and more accurately than by hand.

"What took 25 to 30 man-hours can now be prepared in a few minutes," said Johnson, former director of the Brockton Housing Authority. Similar systems are now being used by the Brockton, Cambridge and Fall River Housing authorities, he said.

"We have proved this system works," Johnson said. "It's a foolproof, almost error-free... and it's security proof." The computer system makes it impossible for confidential information, such as a tenant's rent payments or income, to be released to unauthorized persons, he said.

The QHA asked for a formal proposal, including prices, from Johnson. Other bids from competing companies will also be sought, said then-Chairman D'Olimpio.

The QHA announced it was no longer considering Phipps St. Quincy Center as a site for proposed large-family housing and released true owner of the property from an "option to sell" agreement with the authority.

QHA administrator Clement O'Brien said subsoil at the site was not good for construction and community objection to the construction was considered "but was not the deciding factor." The authority is now studying other sites for the proposed housing. O'Brien said.

Alumni Night May 13 For Central's 85th Anniversary

An Alumni Night is planned for Thursday, May 13 to celebrate Central Junior High School's 85th anniversary.

A 23-member steering committee is now holding planning sessions for the festivities. The committee hopes all former Central students will contact classmates and former staff members, as the task of notifying all involved is monumental. The committee also invites graduates to forward Central memorabilia, which would be on display at the Alumni Night.

Other activities planned for May include a family night, a walking tour, a treasure and a "Step Into Society" week.

Members of the steering committee are:

Maureen Ajemian, Paul Bregoli, Angela Carroll, Mario Casali, Carter Caudle, Lucille DiGravio, Barbara Donelin, John Flynn, Hilda Heikkila, Thomas Henderson, Mary Catherine Iannoni, Kathleen Kelly, Stella Krupka, Ann MacDonald, Lucy Marchant, Robert McKay, Vincent Moscardelli, Paul Periot, Mark Roberts, William Roberts, Nancy Saffer and Gloria Volpini.

Assisting the committee are State Sen. Paul Harold; Reps. Robert Cerasoli and Michael Morrissey; John Harrington, coordinator of social studies for Quincy Public Schools and Laurence Yerdon, William O'Connell, Mildred Harrison, Doris Oberg, Owen Della Lucca and Gordon Nelson of the Historical Society.

LAKE CHARLES will carry 125,000 cubic meters of Liquefied Natural Gas between Algeria and the United States' Gulf Coast. The cargo would supply enough energy to heat a modern sized city for a month.

Seeking 'Meaningful Work' GD Optimistic On Quincy Yard Future

Executives of the General Dynamics Corp. have painted a cautiously optimistic picture of the future for the Quincy Shipbuilding Division.

David S. Lewis, chairman and chief executive officer, said the corporation is determined to keep its Quincy team together for the day when more liquefied natural gas (LNG) tankers are built.

P. Takis Veliotis, executive vice president, said that new developments in technology and productivity are on the way to achieving employment stability at the Quincy shipyards.

Lewis and Veliotis spoke last Friday at the namings ceremony for the Lake Charles, the ninth and next to last LNG tanker to be built under current contracts at the shipyard.

"The people of Quincy know that this is the next to last ship and are undoubtedly concerned that other ships are not coming," said Lewis.

"Now we are doing anything we can to get more business in here and keep this team together.

"We are absolutely convinced that when our country has a coherent energy policy there will be a great increase in the amount of liquefied natural gas brought into this country.

"The other LNGs have earned for this team the reputation of being the best in the world and, when the energy policy comes into reasonable balance, we are sure this shipyard will get the business.

"We had competition from two other shipyards that started the same time as Quincy and by comparison their performance is lacking and this shipyard is recognized throughout the world.

"The corporation is determined to protect and do everything we can to maintain the strength of this facility until the time comes by bringing in meaningful work in the meantime."

Veliotis, who is also general manager of GD's Electric Boat Division in Groton, Conn., said "new construction techniques and improved productivity are the keys to our future."

"At the Electric Boat Division," he said, "as a result of major investments in technology and facilities, we are in a position to handle increased production volumes without having to drastically expand our work force.

"By the same token, we can also handle a reduced workload without painful cutbacks in employment. Employment stability is a priority objective. Technology and productivity is the way to achieve it.

"We intend to achieve this same result here at Quincy."

Veliotis noted that in the last six months the Quincy yard has obtained contracts totaling more than $150 million, adding that "we are determined to broaden the base of our business."

Later, Veliotis told WJDA News Director Herb Fontaine in an interview that he doesn't anticipate any reduction in the current 3,000 man work force at the shipyard in the next six months.

"But if we don't get additional work after six months," he said, "we may have to reduce it to about 50 per cent of what we are right now.

"We believe we will have additional LNG orders within the next 12 months and we will be able to start work on the LNG ships within 16 months from now."

Veliotis said his own Electric Boat Division in Groton, Conn., currently employs 26,000 workers and is booked with orders "well into 1987."

Lewis said that the Quincy yard "looked for a serious ebb in employment by the end of this year but with all the new work we don't see that. It's been put off for at least a year."

"I don't think there's any question but that Quincy will get the new LNG ships that will bring liquefied natural gas from Indonesia to the West Coast," he said.

"That has almost been finally approved. The ships are to be delivered in 1982 and 1983. The earliest we can look for contracts is the latter part of this year."

In the meantime, he said,

"our job is to get as many small jobs as we can get to keep the team together and not let employment slip much below what it is now. We won't be able to keep everybody that we would like to but we can keep a nucleus."

Joseph H. Lennox, general manager of the Quincy Division, said the eight LNG tankers previously built at the Yard have made 213 round trips between Indonesia and Japan in the past three years, delivering more than 25 million cubic meters of LNG.

The Lake Charles will carry LNG between Algeria and Lake Charles La.

The Lake Charles, which is 936 feet long and displaces 93,500 tons, was sponsored by Mrs. Richard L. O'Shields, wife of the chairman and chief executive officer of Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co.

The tanker is owned by a consortium that includes subsidiaries of Panhandle, General Dynamics and Moore McCormack Resources Inc.

'Discussion Theater' In Housing Set For First Parish Church

The Quincy League of Women Voters was scheduled to sponsor an unusual discussion of housing problems last night (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. in United First Parish Church.

The discussion was to be in the form of a play, "Shelter Skelter," produced by the Peoples Theater of Cambridge, in which the audience is encouraged to interact with the players.

Quincy is the second stop in a month and a half tour of Massachusetts for the production, which is funded by a grant from the Massachusetts Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy.

All performances are free.

The cast consists of six actors and two musicians, who join the "host-humanist" in prompting audience discussion after the show. The host-humanist is drawn from one of the state's colleges.

The first half of the show is based on a history of housing and the second half on research in the Greater Boston area on the significant housing events and laws since 1938.

Issues addressed include public housing, rent control, tax amendments, snob zoning, block busting, red lining, urban renewal, ethnic movements, neighborhood change and gentrification.

Urges Students To Vote

Kathleen McCloskey 'State Secretary'

Last week Massachusetts had its first woman Constitutional officer as Kathleen McCloskey of North Quincy assumed the duties of Secretary of State Michael Joseph Connolly as part of Student Government Day in Massachusetts.

Kathleen, 17, was joined by her alternate student State Secretary, Laura Hourihan of Milton, for a reception in the Governor's office, a Student Government Day Joint Inaugural Session in the House of Representatives, and a tour of the divisions of the Secretary of State's office.

"The annual Student Government Day program provides both an excellent education and fine insights into our political process," Connolly said.

Kathleen, who has earned varsity letters in volleyball, basketball, and softball at Fontbonne Academy in Milton, thinks the role of government is "to help the public keep aware of the major issues of the day."

Displaying the idealism of youth, Kathleen added, "Everyone should be involved in their government. We should judge our leaders and those running for office by their issues and policies, not by their appearance."

Kathleen, class representative to her school's Student Council urged her fellow students to register to vote once turning 18. "The public should be more interested in their government and follow the news more closely," she said. She hopes to study law or government in college.

Kathleen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McCloskey of Newbury Ave. Her alternate student State Secretary, Laura Hourihan, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hourihan of Randolph Ave., Milton.

NOW FOR NOW

(or payment by check
is coming back in style.)

In this topsy-turvy economic period, there is one stable, safe way to handle your money—open a NOW account at our Bank.

What can a NOW account do for you and your money management?

Well, as the use of credit cards becomes more and more restricted, a NOW account lets you switch to a cash operating basis, thus avoiding interest charges for time payments. And your money in your NOW account is earning 5% interest per annum. Thus you get the best of both worlds—you avoid interest charges while collecting interest for yourself.

But, you say, going on a cash basis means I can't make larger or more costly purchases and spread the payments. In this economy with interest charges going up almost daily, maybe that is not all bad.

It depends on how much you need a "big ticket" item. If you have a wife and five youngsters and your washing machine breaks down hopelessly, you need a washer, of course. If you don't have the cash, you charge it. But if you can switch to a cash only (or check) basis for most items, you will save money.

The trouble with cash itself is that cash is dangerous. You can be robbed or you run the risk of losing it. NOW account checks are safe and you have an ongoing record of your expenditures.

Think about it.

Should your household budget be keyed into a NOW account?

Will it save substantial interest payments?

Will it be safe and convenient for you?

If you don't have a NOW account and want to open one (for as little as $10.00) come in to our main office or one of our branches.

We think a NOW account is the simplest and best way you have to help fight inflation.

Are "Free" NOW Accounts Really Free?

You will notice in this advertisement we did not use the term "free NOW account." That's because we want no confusion about our NOW accounts even though we feel that we come as close as anyone in offering NOW accounts at a basic minimum cost with no hidden charges.

Here is the way we work our NOW accounts:

You can open an account for $10.00.

As long as you maintain a balance of $10.00 or more you will get interest credited monthly at 5% per annum.

Overdraft charges are $5.00 each, which covers the paperwork in notifying the customer.

Stop payment fees are $5.00 for the same reason.

And the only other charge is $3.85 for each book of 200 plain checks imprinted with your name, address and account number.

What about those which claim to have "free" NOW accounts? They can demand a $300 monthly balance—or $500.00. The only minimum at our bank is $10.00 if you want to earn interest.

The thing to think about when someone says "totally free NOW account" is this: if you don't keep your balance at $300.00 all month long, you can be charged 20 cents for every check you write that month even if you bring your account up to $300.00 within 24 hours. Nothing like that at Quincy Cooperative!

We remind our customers that nothing in life is really free.....but the cost of a NOW account at our bank is very much less than for most other banking institutions.

As Others See It

Save The Cranch

By JOHN A. LUTTS

On April 9, 1980, a citizens' task force of the Quincy School Committee recommended the closing of four elementary schools and a later reorganization of the whole school system.

The Cranch PTO is strongly opposed to the closing of one of the schools: the Cranch. It has also serious reservations about reorganization.

The Cranch PTO is not alone in its opposition. The whole area has been aroused. "Save the Cranch" signs are cropping up everywhere in the neighborhood. People are calling WJDA's Community Spotlight. The School Committee has been deluged. Over 650 signatures have been collected in protest. The support comes from taxpayers who are Cranch parents as well as those who worry about higher taxes and/or lower property values. Why do so many feel so strongly?

Briefly, they feel that the task force's recommendations are losers. They think that they would be very costly to the taxpayer, very disruptive of their children's education, and death dealing to their neighborhood.

Quincy expects to save nearly a quarter of a million (actually $206,000) this year by closing four schools. The Cranch PTO doubts this. They fear that the opposite will happen this year and every year thereafter. Their fears focus on a key factor in closings and reorganization: closing schools means lots of busing. And busing costs are high and keep growing. They see taxes going up, not down. They seriously question any plan that both cuts costs by firing citizens who would largely spend their salaries in Quincy and also adds on expenses that fill the pockets of the OPEC cartel. They regard any plan to economize that relies heavily on busing as hopelessly out of place in the 80's and the 90's. They urge the "powers that be" to go back to the drawing board on reorganization.

The Cranch PTO also feels strongly about the assumption in the task force's recommendation that small schools are "bad". They think that just the opposite is true at Cranch. It is not expensive to run: it is second in the city in low fuel costs; starting from the cheapest, it is 14th out of 21 in total operating costs per pupil. They think that education at Cranch is conspicuously better because of its small size. They see that size allowing for a closely knit team of teachers and a very actively involved parental community. It makes individualized attention, an ideal in Quincy education, a real possibility. It fears that all these qualities would be destroyed by closing the school and busing the children to a larger, more distant institution.

Lastly they are very upset that the task force did not take into account the environmental impact that closing the Cranch would have. They fear that the building will become a boarded up eyesore or a fire hazard. They see the neighborhood's stability and family character disappearing. (They note that currently there are at least 59 preschoolers in the area.) They see the move to close as counter productive in another way: it will lower property values and thereby adversely affect the tax base of the city. Finally, they see the closing as a death knell to the neighborhood's chief cohesive force.

In sum, the Cranch PTO is opposed to the closing of the Cranch School and all reorganization plans that rely heavily on busing. They think such measures will lead eventually to higher taxes, overcrowded schools and poorer education. They also see them as bringing death to very vital and valuable Quincy neighborhoods.

(John A. Lutts is chairman of the Cranch PTO.)

Points To Ponder

- The bathtub was invented in 1850 and the telephone in 1875, which means there was a period of 25 years when people could bathe and not be interrupted by the phone ringing.
- Do you think the early bird enjoys the worm as much as the late bird enjoys the extra sleep?
- While it's true that government spends a lot of money on consultants, think how much more money it would cost if we followed their advice.
- The wheel was man's greatest invention—until he got behind it.
- Silent people aren't the only ones who don't say anything.

Women Head Republicans

The Quincy City Republican Committee, you might say, now has a strong woman's touch.

The committee made city and state political history the other night by unanimously electing an all-woman slate of officers:

Joyce Baker, chairman; Vicki Carolan, vice-chairman; Sandra McCauley, secretary and Annali Johnson, treasurer.

It marked the first time in Quincy that a city committee—Republican or Democrat—voted women into all the top posts.

State Rep. Andrew Card (R-Holbrook), speaking at the meeting, noted that Quincy is also the only city committee in Massachusetts with an all-female executive board.

CARD

Card, one of Massachusetts' brightest young Republican figures, had praise for John McGowan stepping down as Quincy GOP City Committee chairman after four years service.

Card was optimistic about the GOP's future, noting that the recent Presidential primary indicated Republican enrollment was picking up. Card also underlined the pledge of Andrew Natsios, newly elected Republican State Chairman to rebuild the GOP party in Massachusetts.

Maybe the ladies elected the other night in Quincy might breathe some new life into the party on the local front.

The worst thing that could happen here or anywhere in the U.S. is to wind up with a one-party system.

The ball is in the girls' court. Let's see how well they bounce it.

INCIDENTALLY, the election of 11th District delegates to the national GOP convention in Detroit will be held May 3 (starting time, 1 p.m.) at Wollaston United Methodist Church, Beale St.

FORMER Mayor-Senator James McIntyre,

now Massachusetts Senate counsel, has been elected to the board of directors of the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston. The bureau recently opened a Quincy office on Cottage Ave., dedicated in honor of former Norfolk County Probate Judge John Fox. McIntyre, incidentally, recently served as a panelist at Harvard Law School on "Legal Careers." Joining him were Douglas MacDonald, formerly of Quincy, now general counsel of Massport and Peter Bronson, deputy general counsel state Department of Environmental Quality Engineers.

GEORGE McCALL, former Park and South Shore leagues baseball manager (Sagamore Plebes) is a patient at Quincy City Hospital. George, of course, was also active in the Local 5 union at Quincy Shipyard before his retirement and recently stepped down as president of the Norfolk County Labor Council. Drop him a card if you have a chance.

By the way, his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth McCall was recently honored by her family on her 92nd birthday. And if you live to 92, you'll never meet a sweeter person.

ATTENTION FISHERMEN: The April issue of "Salt Water Sportsman" features the Quincy Bay flounder fleet. The articles notes it is not unusual for even a casual angler to take home 45 to 60 flounder a day, each weighing a pound to a pound and a half. And, these days, that's quite a catch. Flounder fillets are going for $3 a pound and up at fish markets and supermarkets.

SMILE DEPT: From the Quincy Rotary Club newsletter: "There's always some person who thinks the bottom is dropping out of everything—and he's usually sitting on his."

Quincy schools visited the State House last year on tours arranged by Harold:

Merrymount, Mass. Fields, Sacred Heart, Broad Meadows Junior, St. Ann's, Adams, Montclair, Beechwood Knoll, Atlantic Junior and Gridley Bryant. Also Quincy Camp Fire Girls and Houghs Neck Girl Scouts.

Tours of the State House can be arranged by calling Ann Knafelz at Harold's office, 727-0194.

Keep Up The Drug Articles

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing concerning the article written in Today's Quincy Sun Dr. Creedon's criticism on your series on the Drug Problems here in the City of Quincy.

I am interested in reading about the Drug scene as I am concerned for the Young People of the City of Quincy, and the fact, that it isn't every young person doing it; we have some fine young people who we do not hear about in the Quincy area.

I cannot see anywhere in the articles where the teachers have received any bad publicity, so I cannot understand why Dr. Creedon thinks that the articles say that the teachers "don't care selves."

Please keep up the articles, as no one knows maybe some of those young people on drugs will wake up and see what damage they are doing to themselves as well as to others.

I enjoy reading the Quincy Sun every week from front to back cover, better than trying to read the daily Quincy paper.

QUINCY COURTHOUSE, where more than 80 per cent of cases are plea bargained down to lesser crimes to prevent the court from being overwhelmed with trial caseload.

Because Of Case Volume Over 80% Drugs, Other Cases Plea Bargained At Quincy Court

More than 80 per cent of the cases, including those involving drugs, that are brought into Quincy District Court are plea bargained in some form, according to Asst. Dist. Atty. Dennis Mahoney.

And if they weren't, says Mahoney, the whole system might collapse.

"Plea bargaining is absolutely essential to the courts," he says. "If everyone who came in here under arrest for just one month insisted on going to trial it would cripple the court."

"The sheer volume necessitates plea bargaining."

For the most part, plea bargaining involves trading off the court's time and energies for a lesser charge and a more lenient punishment.

In drug cases it frequently means trading a trial for possession with intent to sell for a guilty plea to simply possession, a charge that carries a lesser sentence.

Many police officers and other critics of the system claim that it turns dangerous criminals loose much too soon and lessens the respect that offenders have for a court appearance.

Mahoney does not agree with pending legislation (Senate Bill 950) that would prohibit plea bargaining in drug cases without the written approval of the arresting authority.

The bill is being pushed by police officers, including Lt. Walter Lynch, who was recently transferred at his own request as head of the Quincy Police Drug Unit.

This is the 10th in a series of articles on the drug problem in Quincy.

Lynch detailed one case in which 31 street dealers in drugs were charged but only two were committed and one juvenile was sent to the Department of Youth Services.

The cases, he said, were "settled as a result of plea bargaining and obviously to the benefit of the defendant."

Mahoney said Senate 950 would have the effect of "giving the individual officer veto power."

"He may have one case and he's going to decide that every time he makes an arrest he wants the person incarcerated," he said.

"The prosecuting officers have an overview of all the cases and have an idea of how the system is going to treat the matters better than the arresting officer."

Patrolman Donald Pearson, whose beat is Quincy Square, is one of those who is frustrated by the apparent ease with which the people he arrests are freed by the courts, especially through plea bargaining.

"There are times," he says, "when they are out on the streets again before I've finished writing my report."

In Quincy District Court, plea bargaining conferences are almost automatic.

In fact, when a defendant is first arraigned and the case is continued to a later date, more often than not it means continued to a conference date rather than continued to trial.

"On the conference date," says Mahoney, "the prosecuting attorney and defense counsel sit down and go over the case. Sometimes a probation officer is present with the defendant's record, if there is one."

"If the case is clear cut and presentation of the facts would just waste the court's time it is simply a matter of trying to arrive at what type of disposition is warranted."

"They look over the defendant's background and consider his age, his schooling, his employment, his past record, if any, and the nature of the offense, if it's violent or one against property."

"Then they try to come up with a consensus as to what would be the disposition of the case if it were to go to full trial and make that presentation to the court."

Many drug cases are plea bargained down in "class."

The classes of drugs (controlled substances) were established by the State Legislature according to the potentiality for abuse, the

South Shore League Suspends Baseball For Duration Of War

The four remaining members of the South Shore Baseball League voted to suspend operations for the duration of the war due to lack of players and problems brought on by gas rationing.

President Tom Loneragan said that out of 120 players on the rosters during the 1942 season, a total of 103 had been inducted into the armed services.

The folding of the Braintree White Sox and the Thorp Motors team from Weymouth left the league with only four teams—the Sagamore Plebes, the Coalers, Squantum and Hingham Ammunition Depot.

DAY CARE PLANNED

The Quincy Day Nursing Association took steps to establish a day care center for children in Quincy at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Archer M. Nickerson, 116 Putnam St., Quincy Center.

The center would care for youngsters while their mothers worked at jobs in defense plants.

Recently a committee headed by Public Welfare Commissioner Anthony J. Venna found that there was no present need for such a center and referred the matter to the Quincy Council of Social Agencies.

BENCH REPAIRS URGED

City Councillor William W. Jenness filed a resolve urging the Park Department to fix the benches on the traffic island at Coddington and Washington Sts. where riders wait for the Houghs Neck bus.

The benches, said Jenness, "are so dilapidated that whenever a man sits down on them he risks getting up without his pants."

Public Service Good Deed

Delivers 2,400 Copies Of Seniors Booklet To Earn Eagle Scout Badge

Ward 4 senior citizens now have a new booklet listing services available to them, courtesy of the city and Baintree Boy Scout Richard Carr.

Carr, aided by eight fellow members of Quincy's Troop 11, recently delivered 2,400 copies of the book as part of the public service requirement for his Eagle Scout badge.

"I wanted to do something different," said Carr, 17. Most Eagle Scouts organize blood drives, community clean-ups, or the like, he said.

So, he recently contacted the office of Mayor Arthur Tobin for a suggestion on what sort of a project he could perform on behalf of the city. Tobin asked his press secretary John Cappavella to contact City departments for suggestions.

Paul Fisher of the Council on Aging had an idea - the 2,400 booklets which were to be delivered to Ward 4 senior citizens. City employees had been delivering the book ward-by-ward since December, with Ward 4 the last one remaining.

"We thought it was a good idea," said Fisher. It's good for us and it's good for the city."

Operation Information is a collection of services available to senior citizens, such as legal, transportation or other types of aids. One copy of the book has been delivered to each household in the city with a senior citizen member.

"A lot of them don't know these services are available," Fisher said.

Once Carr got the go-ahead from the Council on Aging, he and fellow scouts John DeForge and James McNulty began planning delivery routes, arranging transportation and making other preparations. He estimates he spent about 24 hours on planning before the deliveries actually began, his friends 12 or 13 apiece.

Several other Troop 11 scouts aided in the project. Almost all were delivered on Saturday, April 5, with a few delivered the following day.

"I sort of acted as the foreman," Carr said.

The troop's aid freed Council on Aging employees to work on the "Meals On Wheels" program, Fisher said.

"I think it's great," said Mayor

Tobin. "Not only are the city's senior citizens receiving this very valuable list of services, but Mr. Carr was able to help the council with this very worthy project. It's working out all around.

requests for general government that fell under the 4 per cent cap restrictions were $38,555,907 and he managed to trim $6,936,177 from that total.

"There were some very, very difficult decisions in that category to reach this figure," said Tobin. The most difficult decision, he said, was that to lay off some 80 city workers.

The city, he said, will have no revenue deficit on June 30, 1980, which means that the deficit will not have to be added into the budget for fiscal 1981.

This is due to "the Council supporting my recommendation for putting additional people on in the Tax Department on water liens, excise taxes and the hospital," he said.

The deficit for fiscal 1979 was $2,133,315, which had to be picked up in the 1980 budget. It represented $7.65 on the tax rate.

substance they believe to be marijuana. The car the two were driving, a 1973 Mark IV owned by Oliva, was also confiscated, Rowell said.

Lt. Rowell placed the street value of the seized alleged Marijuana at $20,000.

The arrests, made at about 11:50 a.m. on Quincy Shore Drive near Beach St., Wollaston, were "the result of an investigation over the past several months," Rowell added.

Gallagher and Crowley, members of the drug control unit of the organized crime division gave this account of the arrest:

The two suspects were under surveillance by the two officers at the Wollaston Beach parking area, near Fenne St., when they were observed taking a large plastic bag from the trunk of the car into the front seat. The two officers followed the car when it left the parking area and, with the assistance of a patrol car manned by Sgt. Michael Barry and Officer Thomas Spillane, stopped the car near Beach St.

TOO MUCH SLEEP MAY CAUSE FATIGUE

For the person who complains of always being tired even though he gets at least ten hours sleep a night, according to medical authorities, his problem might be too much sleep rather than not enough.

Of course, one simple test for the long sleeper who is always tired is to try setting the alarm for a few nights for six or seven hours at the most. You will have nothing to lose since you won't feel any more tired. On the other hand, you may find yourself refreshed and invigorated.

A recent sleep study at the Boston State Hospital with long sleepers [more than 9 hours] and short sleepers [6 or less hours] found that the short sleepers were more efficient, ambitious, busy, decisive and satisfied with their lives.

OLD COLONY BANK PRESENTS THE $10,000 SAVINGS CERTIFICATE FOR PEOPLE WHO DON'T HAVE $10,000.

Now you can buy a $10,000 six-month savings certificate with as little as $3,000. That means your savings can earn a lot more interest. It's one way banking on a first name basis at Old Colony makes your money work harder.

Here's how. Let's say you have $3,000. We'll lend you the $7,000 you need to buy a $10,000 Six Month Certificate. You earn $10,601.21 on your certificate, pay us back $7,449.98 (total of payments) on your loan due 26 weeks from the date of loan, at an annual percentage rate of 12.892% (the minimum rate we're required by law to charge). Thus, you will receive $151.22 or a 9.970% annual rate on your $3,000 investment. Compare this to the $84.58 you would earn on a 5.5% savings account during the same period.

Over 80% Drugs, Other Cases Plea Bargained

degree of accepted medical usage and the probability of physical or psychological dependence.

Class A is heroin and other specific opiates and opiate derivatives.

Class B is amphetamines, methamphetamines, cocaine, methadone and opium barbiturates.

Class C is hallucinogens such as LSD, THC (the principal psychoactive ingredient in marijuana) hashish and PCP (angel dust).

Class D is marijuana.

Class E is diluted mixtures of prescription drugs, such as cocaine, not listed elsewhere.

Quincy District Court has jurisdiction over cases involving possession of each type of controlled substance. But jurisdiction over sales of Class A and Class B substances is in superior court.

"Class A and B are considered the most dangerous drugs," says Mahoney. "We rarely have a Class A in district court. I can't remember in my two years here ever having a Class A."

"When we're talking about reducing charges we're talking mainly about Class B and more specifically cocaine.

"We hate to reduce a cocaine charge but if the intent to sell involves only a small amount he's probably not going to be treated as thoroughly in superior court."

"In superior court, with all the murders, rapes and armed robberies, it's going to be a low level situation whereas down here, among the matters we can dispose of, it's going to be high level."

"So reducing a cocaine charge may not work to the advantage of the defendant."

Mahoney, like so many other law officers, regards PCP (angel dust) as the most dangerous drug that is readily available, even though it is rated a Class C.

"I have never to my recollection ever reduced a Class C—PCP charge," he says. "As far as I'm concerned, it is the most dangerous substance out on the street. It's just a killer."

One of the purposes of plea bargaining to reduce a charge is to help keep down the workload in superior court but, with the recent court reorganization, it may soon not be necessary.

Now the administrative judge can designate a judge in any of the trial courts to sit as a judge in any other court. It has happened three times in Quincy District Court, says Mahoney.

"All three occasions," he says, "involved intent to distribute Class B substances. We got the judge designated as a superior court judge and we were able to keep the sale aspect of the charge. We went for stiffer sentences without bargaining."

The ages of those involved in the deal also play a role in plea bargaining.

"We've always looked very, very carefully and closely and rather harshly on the matter when the sale is to young people around the area of a school," says Mahoney.

"There's a difference when you're dealing with peers in a peer group as opposed to the sale by an older person for profit to someone in junior high school or the early years of high school."

Massasoit Campers Plan King Memorial Camp Center

Plans and a mock-up of the proposed Deleware King Memorial Camp Center at Camp Massasoit, Plymouth, were presented recently to the Massasoit Campers Association.

Mark Wiesler, a student at the Boston Architectural Center, took on the design of the camp center as a class project. He presented his preliminary drawings and a mock-up of the proposed center to the campers and invited their comments.

His plans include provisions for a large assembly hall, with a stage, a small camp store, a museum, kitchen, toilet facilities, conference room and storage space.

Work on the conversion of the former camp dining hall to a year-round camp center has already begun, using volunteer labor and materials purchased with a grant from the King Family Trust.

The center is expected to be ready for use this fall, said Harold Crowley of the Massasoit Development Committee.

In addition to hearing reports on the rehabilitation work at the camp, the Massasoit Campers Association also elected officers for the coming year. They are: Joseph Hurney, president; Robert Packer, vice president; Warren Murray, treasurer; Joseph Gelsomini, recording secretary and Ted Catino, corresponding secretary.

Elected to serve on the executive board were Norman Basius, Billy Barrett, Frank Borges, Buell Fuller, John Goetz, Dom Ilacqua, Ted Jeffrey, John Murphy, John O'Connor and past President Harold Crowley.

DR. BARRY FREEDMAN SPEAKS TO YOU ABOUT HEALTH!

YOU CAN BEAT THE "BAD BACK" SYNDROME

Are you one of 7 million people suffering from back problems?

There are more than 7 million people in the United States who suffer with back problems. So if you get out of bed every morning holding your back, and are afraid to do anything strenuous even when your back is not in pain for fear of having a recurrence, you are not alone. But having partners in misery is really no consolation!

Surgery is not always the answer.

Surgery might even be appealing, if you knew for sure that it would correct your problem. But you have no guarantee, and the track record has not been outstanding.

It must be recognized that all operations, no matter whether they are called "major" or "minor", offer an element of risk. Actuaries can give you the percentage, but certainly death is a possibility with all surgery. Disability may be more frequent. And pain and hospitalization are certain.

Chiropractic treats back problems without drugs or surgery.

Many spinal and back problems that would require surgical procedure have been treated successfully with manipulation by doctors of chiropractic. Chiropractic's record has been excellent with cases of slipped disc and sacroiliac problems. Likewise, case histories have shown chiropractic to be an effective non-surgical method for the treatment of many other types of health problems.

Chiropractic specializes in treatment of structural and health problems related to the spine and nervous system.

Chiropractic utilizes the inherent recuperative powers of the body and the relationship between musculo-skeletal structures and functions of the body, particularly of the spinal column and nervous system, in the restoration and maintenance of health.

When all is said and done, in some cases, you may need surgery. And if you do, your doctor of chiropractic and every other conscientious member of the health team will refer you to a surgeon experienced in handling the problem. But on the other hand, you may not need surgery. Isn't it worth while to at least find out before you take the painful step?

As a member of the health team, the doctor of chiropractic diagnoses, treats and refers.

Owners Win Court Suit

Tobin, Landlords Confused Over Apartments Decision

Last week's court order rolling back assessment increases on city apartment houses seems to have left confusion in its wake.

Mayor Arthur Tobin said Tuesday, "I haven't seen anything on it and I haven't talked to anybody about."

He said he didn't know what effect it would have on the city budget and tax rate.

Atty. Robert Gorfinkle of Braintree, who represented 17 Quincy landlords last week, issued a statement Tuesday to clear up confusion on the effects of the ruling on his clients and other apartment owners.

This much is clear:

Judge Paul Garrity of Norfolk County Superior Court last week voided $2 million in assessment increases imposed by the city last year on many apartment units. He ordered the city to tax those dwellings based on the same valuation as in the previous year.

Gorfinkle said if the previous assessed value of an apartment house reflected in the 1979 tax bill was $24,000 and the new assessed value was $32,000, the taxes should be computed by applying this year's tax rate of $224 per $1,000 against the previous assessment of $24,000. Thus the total tax payable for that building before May 1st would be $5,376.

Since most taxpayers have already paid their first installment, the second installment, due May 1st, should be adjusted to reflect this first payment.

In the example cited, the taxpayer probably has already paid $3,584 as his first installment, which would have been half the total original bill of $7,168. All he need now pay is $1,792, the new $5,376 adjusted tax minus the amount previously paid of $3,584, Gorfinkle said.

Gorfinkle suggested apartment house owners contact the banks holding mortgages on their properties to make certain that, when these banks pay the second installment of taxes due May 1st, they follow the above procedure.

"There will not be any new tax bills issued for the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1980 to reflect the Court's decision," Gorfinkle said. "It will be up to each owner and each bank to calculate and pay the second installment of taxes due May 1st on the basis of the Court's decision."

Tobin offered "no comment" on Garrity's ruling, but added, "We'll probably have to address ourselves to it in this budget, but I don't know what effect it will have right now."

Tobin said he was still awaiting advice from the city solicitor's office on whether the ruling could be appealed.

Conservation Committee Meeting

The Quincy Conservation Commission was scheduled to hold a regular meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room at 100 Southern Artery.

The meeting was to include a review of material on the "Year of the Coast"; consideration of the order of conditions on Bayside Rd.; report on a field inspection trip; consideration of an extension permit for John R. Skarbinski, 136 Palmer St.; and arrangement of final details for the May 4, public walk.
